Admiral Glennon said that the purpose of the station was to protect the City of New York. He said he did not believe the navy, under any circumstances, would consider buying the land. He said that the improvements already made represented an investment of about $2,000,000 and that it would probably be necessary to spend $1,000,000 more to build a sea wall to protect the air station permanently. The station, he said, would be a distinct asset to the city. President LaGuardia of the Board of Aldermen suggested that the location of the air station at Rockaway would do much to develop the aviation industry in the United States.

SEEKS TO BLOCK MARRIAGE.

Italian Asks for Custody of Sister Coming to Wed Parents' Choice.

Thomas Manganelli of Syracuse has applied to Commissioner of Immigration Wallis and the Travelers' Aid Society for the custody of his sister, Amelia Manganelli, who is coming to this country to marry the man her parents selected.

The girl is 20 years old and she is bound from Vito, Italy, for New York on the Cunard liner Italia to marry Leonardo Minetillo of Brooklyn. The mother made the match without consulting Amelia, Manganelli said. He has been in this country since he was 6 years old, and he is sure that his sister will want an opportunity to see America and understand its ways before she marries a man she has never seen.

Prohibition Turns Jail to Woodshed.

WAUSAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 20.—Joseph Jejols today bought the Wausaukee jail for $30 and will use it for a woodshed. City officers, in explaining the sale, said that since the advent of prohibition the jail, which had been in service for thirty years, had been idle.

La Nacion Criticises Our Attitude Toward Western Union.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 14.—La Nacion today devotes a long editorial to the refusal of the United States Government to permit the Western Union Telegraph Company to land a cable from South America in the United States to provide a new line of communication between the North and South American continents.

"The opposition of the United States to this most important problem concerning communication between the rest of the world and herself is not a legitimate one," says the editorial, "since the existence of international relations presupposes a moral obligation. The conduct of the North American Government prejudices both South American interests and her own, because every international exchange of commerce and ideas progresses proportionately to the facility with which it is exercised.

"When it is proposed to establish a new line of communication between two points it is because there exists a sufficiently important need. Therefore it is as important to the United States, in the realization of her desire for trade expansion, as for South America, in extending the radius of her foreign relations, to possess a new line of communication which is destined to overcome the present congestion and which the sole use of existing lines sooner or later will render inevitable. It would be most appropriate if Secretary Colby, together with the echo of spontaneous cordiality with which our nations have allied his country and himself, could carry back some mention of these questions of the day, in which the United States wields a preponderant influence."

DRUG CONCERNS TO GO DRY.

Liquor Licenses Refused to Those in Two Pennsylvania Counties.

SCRANTON, Jan. 20.—Permission to deal in liquor has been refused to all drug manufacturing and chemical concerns in Lackawanna and Luzerne Counties, according to a report current here tonight, although no official verification could be obtained from local Federal officers. Joseph A. Jennings, who has been in charge of the issuing of permits to drug firms, has been called to Washington, for the purpose, it is said, of receiving the list of firms whose licenses have been revoked and to learn the attitude of prohibition officials in reference to the future granting of permits.

The refusal of the Government to furnish permits to the local drug concerns is alleged to be due to the fact that many of these concerns have done a big business in selling a medicinal preparation which contains 20 per cent. of alcohol.

TO RECOUNT THE VOTE.

Legislative Committees to Go Over Election Figures in Several Districts.

The State Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections and a sub-committee of the Assembly Committee on Judiciary met at the office of the New York City Board of Elections in the Municipal Building yesterday and made arrangements for recounts in the Eleventh Senatorial District, Brooklyn; the Twenty-third Senatorial District, the Bronx, and the Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Assembly Districts in the Bronx.

The recounts will begin tomorrow (Saturday) with the contest of John J. Dunnigan, Democrat, against State Senator George H. Taylor of the Twenty-third District. In the Eleventh Senatorial District Daniel J. Carroll, Democrat, is contesting the election of Abraham L. Katlin, Republican.

REQUIRES NEW AUTO LIGHTS

Legislative Measure Calls for Equipment Furnished by Patented Device.

Special to the New-York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 20.—Owners of "flivvers," in common with the drivers of more pretentious motor vehicles will be put to considerable expense if a bill introduced today by Assemblyman Martin of Oneida finds favor with the Legislature.

His bill would require every motor vehicle to be equipped with automatic lights showing by color or other means whether it is moving or stationary. The word "stop" or "go" or other lettering must show by day whether a car is in motion or not. The requirements of the bill fit a patented device, now on the market.

PROBLEMS OF THE DRY GOODS TRADE

AGAINST PRICE ADVANCES

Federal Reserve Agent Jay on Financial Conditions and Probable Future Policy.

The sentiment against price advances as a result of resumed buying activity was made just as evident yesterday at the concluding session of the National Wholesale Dry Goods Association as it was during the meetings of the auxiliary organizations on previous days of the convention held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. The attitude of the banks, as outlined by Pierre Jay, Federal Reserve Agent, will not be against slight advances, but further speculation will not be countenanced. The wholesalers see danger in any renewed attempt at inflation and the view expressed by textile commission men was that any tendency to take advantage of a temporarily active demand should be repressed. Resolutions were passed by the meeting supporting the nation-wide movement to prevent cancellations and against the payment of price rebates after the shipment of goods. A recommendation was made that individual members establish bureaus in their business for the study of returned goods by customers, preparatory to the establishment of an association bureau for that purpose.

In his review of the work of the Federal Reserve Board, Mr. Jay explained that the reduction in commodity prices was world wide, and therefore could not be ascribed as the work of the board through curtailment of credits in this country. He showed by means of charts that even when commodity prices were falling Reserve Board credits were rising, though at a smaller rate than previously. In an analysis of merchandise deflation he pointed out that the great declines had so far come in raw materials and not in manufactured or finished products. This put deflation on a sounder basis than if the intermediate or finished products had first been affected. The speaker expressed itself satisfied that raw material values have reached a state of price equilibrium and that further reductions are more likely to come in the manufacturing processes, chiefly through wage cuts, greater efficiency of labor, or the increased use of labor-saving machinery. The two latter factors, he thought, would most likely furnish the means of greater manufacturing economy. The reductions to be made in the future, he said, would be of a gradual character, comparable to those following the Civil War.

The banks did wisely, in the speaker's opinion, in curtailing credit to the needs of legitimate business, and business was thereby much better placed at the beginning of this year than in the early days of 1920. He stated that business failures were much larger than they had been, but not above the pre-war rate. "Business as usual," he thought, ought to provide a satisfactory slogan from now on, since there are evidences that the consumers' strike has been called off. Upon the conclusion of his speech Mr. Jay was asked the attitude of the banks regarding advances which are now being made in some markets. He stated that slight advances would not be considered alarming in financial quarters. He was also asked about the large profits made by the Federal Reserve Banks, and welcomed the inquiry with the explanation that these profits were not considered justifiable, but that, as they had been returned to the Government, no one had really suffered.

In his opening address, M. G. Cooper, President of the organization, described organization on returned goods and price rebates: This was embodied in the following resolution later:

Whereas the unfair return of merchandise (shipped in accordance with the order) by the retailer to the wholesaler has averaged from 7 to 10 per cent. during 1920; and

Whereas this great volume of merchandise returned has involved the wasteful use of capital, transportation facilities and man power, in addition to damage to the goods, the creation of jobs, and odd lots, all adding unnecessarily to the cost of the service of distributing; and

Whereas analysis shows that but a small percentage of retailers have been responsible for this abuse;

Resolved, That in view of the necessity of eliminating all waste and reducing overhead expense, it is hereby recommended that each member of the association establish in his own organization a bureau for the study, compilation and analysis of returned goods by customers' accounts, so that each member may know his exact status in relation thereto and work for a reduction thereof.

Further, that this proposition be considered and adopted preparatory to the establishment of a returned-goods bureau in this association to carry out and give publicity to all members to the names of those guilty of the unfair and indiscriminate return of merchandise.

A resolution of rebates committed the must stop with the shipment of goods to the buyer and that no rebates should be made after such shipment.

Thomas A. Fernley, Secretary-Treasurer of the association, outlined the activities of the organization during the year, and referred to the action which will be taken to prevent the reinstatement of charges by some bankers for the payment and collection of checks.

A general discussion of questions considered important by the wholesalers present centred around the subject of advanced prices. It was brought out that the increases being made now may have two undesirable effects, one to check the ready flow of merchandise in its customary channels and the other to bring a renewal of the consumers' strike. Retailers, it was explained further, might suddenly cease liquidating if the upward movement gets far, thus leading to a repetition of the conditions before the readjustment period. The sentiment was distinctly against all advances except those made absolutely necessary. This view was taken not only by the wholesalers but by textile representatives present.

The following officers were re-elected: M. G. Cooper of the Cooper, Coate & Casey Dry Goods Company, President; F. H. Lloyd of the Pittsburgh Dry Goods Company, Buffalo, Second Vice President; Thomas A. Fernley, Secretary-Treasurer, and T. James Fernley, Advisory Secretary-Treasurer.

Conference to Adopt Tax Program.

The Third National Industrial Conference under the auspices of the National Industrial Conference Board, to give final consideration to the tax program known as "The Report of the Tax Committee of the National Industrial Board," will be held at the Hotel Astor today and tomorrow. The outstanding feature of the report is its opposition under present conditions to any one of the several forms of a sales or turnover tax of general application, which are being proposed.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday ....7½@7⅞% for the best names
Wednesday ......7½@8 % for the best names
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Gray Goods Sales Light.

Gray goods sales were again light in this market yesterday, most of the attention of buyers being given to print cloths. January lots of 39-inch 68-72s were moved at 9¾ cents, with 80 squares in the same width sold at 11⅝ cents. For 38½-inch 64-60s buyers paid 8¾ cents, while 38½-inch 60-48s brought 7¾ cents. Spot and January business was reported in 4.70-yard sheetings at 7⅞ cents. Buyers of sateens again paid 14 cents for 61-104, 4.20s.

Silk Show Prospects.

The improvement in the silk market is considered especially fortunate in connection with the exposition shortly to be held. Even the most optimistic were dubious over the results to be obtained through the exhibition, if conditions remained as they were. Since the situation has changed, it is felt that the buying movement will gain considerable impetus from exposition and the inauguration of Silk Week in the stores. Lately the cutting up trade has been especially active in buying, a particularly desired factor in the silk business, since the retailer has therefore been furnished competition in his purchases.

Further Wage Cuts.

With the plain evidences of a renewed demand and the tendency of depressed prices to advance, it is thought quite likely that general wage reductions will become more difficult to effect. This will make it necessary for those manufacturers who have not instituted wage cuts to work out economies in other directions or else invite labor trouble. Those who have watched labor developments closely do not believe that the reductions already effected will be any more permanent than the price cuts made, inasmuch as the labor is likely to drift to those plants where wage revisions have not been so severe, or else where economy has been effected in some other way.

Million-Dollar Textile Sale.

The sale of surplus textiles conducted yesterday by Wilmerding, Morris & Mitchell, auctioneers for the Merchants' Allied Sales at 616-618 Broadway, brought a large response, particularly when cotton goods were placed on the block. The entire stock was disposed of by evening, bringing a little over $1,000,000 in the aggregate. Prices, as a rule, ranged close to the present market, although values on cottons were better maintained than those on woolens, which in some instances sold off 60 per cent. from previous quotations. The buyers were principally jobbers and cutters-up, with only a few retailers present. About 900 attended the sale.

Not So Sold Up.

Buyers have some definite views on the statements heard here and there concerning the "sold up" condition of certain mills and factories. One is that it is easy to make this claim on the basis of 25 or 30 per cent. production, and another concerns the validity of the orders placed. It is the opinion of buyers that such preliminary announcements to a price advance are apt to fall on very unsympathetic ears at present, and are not as disturbing as they are designed to be. An instance of how such statements are being manipulated is noted in the case of one important mill organization whose products were recently placed "at value." A few days after a report from the mills of this concern credited only three plants with full operation

Raw Silk Business Improving.

The Yokohama raw silk market is active, and transactions for American account since the beginning of the week are placed at 2,200 bales. Stocks, according to cables received by H. L. Gwalter & Co., have been reduced to 23,000 bales, to which must be added the Silk Syndicate's holdings of 15,000 bales. Canton is also strong and active. Little silk of the most popular sizes is now available there for shipment earlier than February or March. Prices for these varieties have increased 10 to 20 per cent. since the beginning of the month. Shanghai reports a large business in steam filatures for American consumption, and they and the other silks sold there are firmly held as to price. American buying in Milan is also active, aided by the low rate of lire exchange. The local market is active at steadily increasing prices.

Woolen Shirting Prices for 1921.

Woolen shirting prices for 1921 were announced to the manufacturing trade yesterday by the Valley Woolen Mills. They are guaranteed to be the lowest prices that will be reached by the goods in question during the current year, and represent reductions from 1920 quotations ranging from 25 to 37½ per cent. The new prices run this way: "Cherry Valley" flannels, 45 cents; "Champions," 41½ cents; "plaid C," 50 cents; "Kettle Brook" sacking, 35 cents; "Alberta" broadcloth, 55 cents; "Meteor" sacking, 42½ cents; "Oriental" broadcloth, 55 cents; "plaid O," 62½ cents, 10 gray Thibets, 42½ cents, and 460 range Manhattan, 45 cents. The selling terms are 3 per cent. within 15 days, free on board mill, or 90 days net. Executives of the concern said that the response by buyers had been large.

Open Fall Dress Goods Lines.

The first of the so-called corporation dress goods was opened for Fall here yesterday, when prices on the products of the Pacific Mills were announced to the jobbing trade by Lawrence & Co. at levels which were reported in the trade to show reductions of 25 to nearly 50 per cent. from the figures quoted several months ago at the opening of the Spring season. Inquiry among buyers brought out that leading numbers had been priced this way, the table also showing the opening figures of the same goods for the Spring season:

	Fall.	Spring.
*C. S. G., 55-inch storm serge	$0.45	$0.72½
*T. S., 35-inch French serge	0.50	0.82½
*P. G. L., 50-inch storm serge	0.88½	1.45
*P. P. L., 54-inch poplin	1.47½	2.27½
*M.F.N., 54-inch French serge	1.35	2.20
C. F. S.	0.62½	0.93½

Sees Prospect of a Lull.

Retail buyers of women's ready-to-wear, it appears from questioning them, are resolved to be pushed just so far in the matter of prices for Spring merchandise, and beyond that point will cease operations. It was pointed out by one retail representative that what chiefly concerns department heads at present is the turnover in Winter merchandise, and the thought is common that preparations for Spring goods can wait if they meet with any obstacle. This obstacle, he explained, would be any tendency to reinstitute inflated values. "The stores look forward," he said, "to two months more of real Winter weather and are concentrating on merchandise for this period. Should their operations for Spring be curtailed the gap in time up to where further Spring purchases are necessary is looked to furnish manufacturers with a second thoughts on the advisability of increasing prices.

KANSAS BANK IS CLOSED.

Coffeyville Institution Unable to Realize on Its Paper.

COFFEYVILLE, Kan., Jan. 20.—The People's State Bank of Coffeyville was closed today by Walter Wilson, State Bank Commissioner.

Mr. Wilson said that the inability of the bank management to realize on its paper as a result of business depression was responsible for the action.

The last statement published by the bank gave its deposits as $650,000, and assets $710,000.

FOURTH DAY OF FUR SALE.

Mink Attracted the Most Attention at Auction Yesterday.

Although it was the last thing to be put on the block, mink was the centre of attraction at the fur sale here yesterday. Bidding was fairly active throughout the sale of these skins, of which over 52,000 were sold, with the most active competition visible when the dark skins were under the hammer. The collection was said by buyers not to contain a very large proportion of fresh goods. The number of dark pelts was also small, it was said, and, all things considered, the prices realized were regarded as generally good. They ranged up to $12.75.

The morning session opened with the sale of sundries, which included several varieties of furs that do not enter the general trade to any great extent. They were followed by leopard cats, the best of which brought 65 cents, and which in turn were followed by common house cats. Tabby's stock has fallen since the last sale to such an extent that 50 cents took the cream of the collection. More than twice that figure was paid for the best cat pelts sold at the April auction.

A collection of more than 101,000 marmot brought prices ranging between 26 and 72 cents. Hair seals sold up to $3.25 each.

After ponies and Japanese marten had been sold, stone and baum martens were put up. Next to mink, these goods brought out the best bidding of the day. Stone marten sold from 50 cents to $14.50, and baum marten brought from 60 cents to $16. The highest price paid for the collection of Japanese mink was $1.10. Total sales for the first four days were unofficially estimated last night at $1,385,000, yesterday's receipts being set at $275,000.

	Low price.	High price.	Dec. P.C.
Leopard cat	$0.42	$0.65	..
House cat	0.10	0.50	55
Marmot	0.26	0.72	75
Hair seal	0.60	3.25	60

Baum marten	0.60	16.00	55

†Average price of the three lots sold.

Foreign furs will be prominent among today's offerings, which will begin with Chinese civet cat. Other collections to be sold include Chinese weasel, Chinese raccoon, Australian and New Zealand rabbit (sold by the pound), domestic rabbit, hare, Australian opossum, ringtail opossum, Tasmanian opossum, kangaroo, wallaby, wombat, ringtail cat, wolf and opossum. The sale will be concluded tomorrow.

OFFERS WORKERS TO FRANCE

Train Dispatchers' Association Ready to Help Install Our Methods.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—An offer of experienced American train dispatchers for work on French railways was cabled today to M. Yves le Trocquer, French Minister of Public Works, by J. G. Luhrsen, President of the American Train Dispatchers' Association. The cablegram stated that many of the men available for installation of the American system in France had experience on the French railways as members of the A. E. F.

The offer was called out by press reports that the French Government had decided to adopt the American system of dispatching trains.

"Until a few months ago there was a shortage of experienced train dispatchers in this country," explained the announcement from the association headquarters here. "But recent falling off in traffic has resulted in many dispatchers being laid off, and under present conditions a strong staff could readily be recruited for France."

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Advance and Reaction in Stocks—Liberty Bonds Higher—Call Money 7 Again.

The program of another speculation for the rise in stocks appeared yesterday to be abandoned somewhat hastily. For a time the bidding-up process of the day before continued and advances of 1 to 3 points occurred in the industrial shares; but a general selling movement followed in the later hours, possibly originating with the speculative buyers of Wednesday, and in the end most of the early advances disappeared, with a few net losses substituted. The day's net changes were irregular and there were some considerable advances for the day; but they occurred mostly with inactive stocks whose price can be moved through comparatively light transactions.

Whether the stock market experiment was or was not affected by the recurrence of a 7 per cent. call money rate when the day's prices were at their highest, the incident was of no great importance. The stock market is not the present centre of interest. In bonds the steady buying movement continued yesterday, though again with only gradual and irregular enhancement of prices. All of the Liberty bonds advanced another fraction to the highest of the year to date, the fourth 4¼s at one time selling ½ point over the previous day's closing. Similar further upward movement of the national securities on the London Stock Exchange and the Paris Bourse was reported in yesterday's cables.

A rather remarkable advance occurred in foreign exchange, in the course of which sterling at one time yesterday sold at $3.77¾, the highest rate since the 23d of last July and nearly 67 cents in the pound above the low level of last Autumn, touched on Nov. 8, hardly ten weeks ago. Yesterday's high rate was 12 cents above the quotation of the same day in 1920; but sterling, in its usual accurate reflection of international money market conditions, was then moving in the other direction and was well on its way toward the historic low level of $3.18, which it reached on Feb. 4.

The present month's pace of recovery has been pretty rapid. In default of an actual turn in the general situation, it invites reaction, and there was in fact some reaction before the close. But rates on all other principal European markets moved with sterling yesterday, Scandinavian exchange making the unusually sharp advance of ⅝ cent per crown and the Montreal rate reaching the [illegible] point of the month. German exchange also recovered; not, it may safely be asserted, because of the extraordinary jumble of impossibilities set forth in one of yesterday's newspapers as the secret of the "reign of prosperity" [illegible] we were told in the headlines [illegible] to prevail in Germany.

[illegible] European State banks [illegible] some particular interest at this time as the reports of our Federal Reserve; they show from week to week how far the forces making for easier money are bringing the central banking position back toward normal. Until such normal position is restored, in England and France as in America, the central banks will continue to restrain the fall in money rates. Yesterday's Bank of England statement showed the reserve percentage to have risen to 13 1-2, as against 12⅛ a week ago and 1 1-3 at the end of December. So far as it goes, this is satisfactory. But the first three weeks of last January raised the percentage in almost exactly the same measure—from 9⅞ to 16—and, notwithstanding the present much easier credit position, the reserve ratio is still substantially below that of a year ago.

Similarly, the French Bank's statement of yesterday was satisfactory in itself, last week's reduction of circulating notes was 310,000,000 francs, making 420,000,000 in a fortnight. This is better than the 330,000,000 reduction in the same two weeks of 1920; but it has not yet canceled the 688,000,000 increase of the week ending Jan. 6, and the total of notes now outstanding is still 473,000,000 francs above the total of a year ago. Neither at London nor Paris does the time for reduction of the bank rate seem to be yet at hand.

THURSDAY, JAN. 20, 1921.

Money on call on the Stock Exchange opened and renewed at 6 per cent., advanced to 7 per cent. around 2 o'clock and remained at that rate for the remainder of the session. Most loans, however, were made at 6 per cent. There was no report of an outside market in demand funds. In time money the range continues to be quoted 6@6½ per cent. for both classes all dates. There was a good demand for bankers' acceptances, with rates ruling unchanged. Commercial paper brokers report a drop of ¼ of 1 per cent. in the discount on prime name paper, the rate ruling 7½@7¾ per cent., and on less well known names, 7¾@8 per cent.

1920 REVENUE ON IMPORTS.

Amounted to $337,000,000 on Goods Valued at $2,108,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The United States collected revenues amounting to approximately $337,000,000 in 1920 on imported goods valued at $2,108,000,000, it was learned today at the Department of Commerce. Goods amounting to about $3,000,000,000 were admitted to the country duty free.

The largest item the dutiable list of goods recorded was foodstuffs, partly or wholly manufactured, valued at about $1,120,000,000.

Crude materials for use in manufacturing, amounting to about $1,550,000,000 in value, headed the list of free-duty items.

Egyptian Syndicate to Hold Cotton.

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 19.—A co-operative syndicate has been formed to hold 2,000,000 cantars of cotton in the hope of raising the price of the commodity (A cantar ranges from 100 to 130 pounds). The syndicate apparently is acting on the assumption that the banks will advance the necessary funds, but cotton experts here are doubtful if its members have sufficient knowledge of the world's markets to carry out the operation.

Three Exchange Seats Sold.

Three memberships on the New York Stock Exchange were sold yesterday. The seat of L. G. Fisher went to J. D. Taller for $90,000. The membership of D. Y. Hill was transferred to D. W. Hill for a nominal consideration, and the same was true of the transfer of J. N. Lovell's seat to W. F. Pillsbury. It was announced that Alfred J. Romary had been reinstated.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Market Generally Strong—Reaction in Afternoon, but Rates Close Firm.

Foreign exchange prices moved forward vigorously during the forenoon yesterday and while there was a slight reaction later in the day the late downward movement did not go far enough to cut into the earlier gains, so that there were net advances in nearly all of the European figures at closing time. Sterling got up nearly 2 cents in the morning and closed at a net gain of 1 cent. French francs, which had been as high as 6.59 in the morning, closed at 6.52½, which was .08½ above where it had left off on Wednesday.

The Scandinavian exchanges, which had suffered some interruption in their rapid advance from last December, again moved forward impressively yesterday. Danish and Norwegian rates were up .65 each, but Swedish advanced only .05 on the session. With the exception of Polish marks, which advanced .00¾, the Mid-Continentals were unchanged. Chinese rates were slightly higher than on the previous day and South American exchanges were unchanged.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

A Bit Puzzled.

In the light of yesterday's developments in the stock market Wall Street was somewhat puzzled as to the correct interpretation. It was a clear cut case of selling pressure originating coincident with the announcement of a 7 per cent. rate for call funds, as compared with a 6 per cent. rate which ruled up to 2 o'clock. Investigation showed that there was some scarcity of funds in the final hour, but whether this brought about a liquidation of long stock or simply served as a basis for attack by the bear crowd, was not quite clear in the minds of many. There was a disposition to consider that both factors played a part. In general, it is pretty well established that the professionals are still on the bear side and any untoward news naturally provides the foundation for exerting pressure. The operations of the pools which have come to light here and there are not of a nature to make for stability in the market. In fact, the rapid rise of some issues, it is considered, has beyond a question weakened not alone the technical position of the issues directly involved, but of the market in general. Under such circumstances the market is less able to absorb selling without a clearly defined reaction taking place.

General Asphalt.

The rapid advance in General Asphalt from the low of last December, an advance that represents an appreciation of more than 100 per cent., has naturally drawn attention to this issue in particular. This is the first time that General Asphalt has run true to its speculative quality since its advent to the big board. It is believed the advance represents the activities of a decidedly strong and persistent pool. At any rate, there has been nothing in the way of news developments to account for any such upturn. From all accounts, General Asphalt continues as one of the speculative oils, the measure of its ultimate worth being bound up in the extensive development which must be undertaken with relation to its South American properties. Naturally there is a glamour to General Asphalt because of its somewhat mystic identification with Royal Dutch, and this cannot be overlooked as a market factor.

The Oil Stocks.

Keen attention is being paid to the oil issues, probably because it was this class of stocks which led the upturn that ultimately developed into the bull market of 1919. There is nothing to indicate that the oils will once again be an index to the market. However, there is one significant fact with relation to the oil industry—that it has weathered the period of readjustment with less discomfort than almost any other. Comparing present oil prices with the high for all time and once again comparing with the low of not so long ago, it will be seen that quotations are almost at the peak and that the level is well beyond that which prevailed immediately following the close of the war. It is true that new production is being discouraged now, but this may make for a shortage of petroleum products within a few months, so that an argument can be expounded which would conclude for substantially higher prices. This, of course, is theoretical, but some, at least, are convinced of its soundness.

Stiffening Rates.

Call money, after its renewal at 6 per cent., moved up to 7 per cent. quite early in the afternoon on the Stock Exchange money market, and simultaneously the outside market disappeared entirely. Also call money was not the abundant thing it has been for some days past after the 7 per cent. rate was established. In banking circles the gossip was that the member banks were paying off at the Reserve Bank, and there were such minor theories bandied about as "interior withdrawals" and the "Government withdrawals." Further, there were those skeptically inclined individuals who had worked out their own theory, which ran something like this: "The demand for call money is nominal. It will neither be increased by a low rate nor diminished by a high rate. Ergo, 7 per cent. returns more to the lender than 6 per cent."

C., B. & Q. Financing.

Rumors in the financial community have it that the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy will, some time in March, attempt the marketing of some $215,000,000 in fifty-year 5 per cents. to raise funds with which to meet the big July maturity. Bond men believe the road could sell such a block of bonds in one lot and feel confident that the road's management and bankers would not have to count on getting as much as $100,000,000 new money, because it is their opinion that considerably more than half of the maturing bonds would accept the new bonds in replacement. What the basis for a fifty-year 5 per cent. would have to be, of course, cannot be said at this time, but some of the larger distributers think it would not have to be better than 5½ per cent.

Columbia Gas Dividend.

News of an increase in the quarterly dividend on Columbia Gas and Electric Company stock to $1.50 a share, payable Feb. 15 to stockholders of record Jan. 31, which places the shares on a $6 annual basis, was taken yesterday to be a further proof that many of the public utility companies are enjoying improved earnings. The capital stock of the company has been paying $1.25 quarterly since January of last year, although the declaration of $1 extra last month made the actual dividends in 1920 equal to 6 per cent. The company in its consolidated income account for the year ended with last December showed an increase in gross income from $12,122,595 in 1919 to $14,614,363, while total income increased $1,897,503 to $9,911,518 last year.

Equipment Buying Slow.

While some improvement in the amount of railroad buying of certain kinds of equipment and supplies has been reported in the last month, it was asserted in equipment quarters that there would probably be no purchasing of cars and locomotives to amount to anything until prices were materially lowered. In fact one large inquiry recently in the market for locomotives has been withdrawn because the decrease in price on locomotives of a certain type, which at top prices sold for from $70,000 to $85,000, was only $1,500. The locomotive makers told the road that it was possible to make this much of a reduction only because of the decline in the cost of materials which has taken place, and that until there was a decline in wages being paid in the industry further price declines would be impossible. Many of the equipment plants throughout are running on greatly reduced schedules, and in some instances only work on hand is being finished.

December Rail Earnings.

Within a few days the first of the December earnings reports of the railroads will be sent to the Interstate Commerce Commission, and it is the consensus that they will show a big decrease in revenues as the result of the slump in traffic which continued through that month. Of course, as some railroad men point out, some roads have materially decreased their operating expenses by shaving down all possible items. Chief among those which have been reduced have been payrolls, and while the number of employes who have been let go has not been remarkably large the elimination of their names from the books will be marked in the December reports. That this will show even more clearly in the January reports is the general opinion. In some instances, of course, the item of transportation under expense in the December reports will not show as marked change, as some of the roads did not feel the traffic slump so severely in that month.

BANK PRESIDENT SEES PROSPERITY

During 1920, when general conditions were abnormal, it was not possible for a bank to pursue an individual policy, but, on the contrary, it was necessary to submerge partially special interest to the general welfare, according to James S. Alexander, President of the National Bank of Commerce, who yesterday pointed this out to the Board of Directors of his bank at the annual organization meeting.

Before the close of 1919, Mr. Alexander said, business recession was clearly foreseen by the officers of the bank. There were large classes of the business community, he continued, that did not share this viewpoint. The bank, therefore, had to modify somewhat its own views and the course of action of its customers; it could not dictate, but was compelled to follow a middle course. A conservative policy was counselled as to the disbursement of profits and a liberal policy as to the accumulation of reserves.

Speaking of the outlook, Mr. Alexander said:

"The future does not hold an expectation of a return to the abnormal activity of the latter part of 1919 and the early months of 1920, and a return to those conditions would not be desirable. A large part of the profits of that period has been illusory, and a large part of the apparent business development has been unhealthy and out of proportion. Fortunately, results in banking promise in the main to be permanent in character. The year 1921 offers promise of a slow revival of business on a sound basis. Great progress has been made toward the correction of dangerous conditions which could not continue. The future will be beset with difficulties, but there is now a better foundation for true prosperity than has existed at any time since the outbreak of the war in Europe."

Tea Association Elects Officers.

At the annual meeting of the Tea Association of the United States the following officers were elected: James M. Montgomery, President; Robert F. Irvin, Vice President; Henry P. Thomson, Secretary, and Thomas Dunne, Treasurer.

BUSINESS MEN FOR IMMIGRATION BAN

URGED AS EMERGENCY ACT

Permanent System of Selective Immigration at Its Source Is Proposed.

The Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York went on record yesterday in favor of the Johnson bill to restrict immigration for one year. The Chamber adopted resolutions for support of the bill as an emergency measure pending the preparation of perfected legislation to give the United States a system of selective immigration.

In urging support of the Johnson bill the Executive Committee said the country had two well-developed policies of immigration.

"We are proud of the asylum we have offered to the oppressed, and we desire to welcome into our midst people who will become integral with us in political ideals and social aspirations," the committee reported. "We have, on the other hand, for many years resolutely excluded races not falling within these requirements.

"It would certainly not be inconsistent with our past practice to class with this latter type, for the time at least, immigrants originating in countries wasted by war and ravaged by disease, bringing among them individuals unfitted by limitations of health, mental and moral capacity, physical condition, age and sex from forming useful additions to our industrial population, and permeated with the idea that a universal revolution is the panacea for all the ills to which this generation is heir.

"The Executive Committee is of the opinion that during the period of readjustment, with unemployment staring many of our people in the face, the introduction of large bodies of people not imbued with ideas of American democracy, or orderly habits of mind, will throw such a strain upon our already overtaxed power of assimilation as to constitute a peril of the first magnitude."

The report was presented to the Chamber by Eugenius H. Outerbridge and was supported by Captain John B. Trevor, Arthur L. Leland, Dr. Thomas Darlington, former Health Commissioner of New York, Dr. J. W. Jenks and Major Elihu C. Church. It was opposed by William L. Saunders and William G. Willcox.

Dr. Darlington said New York was overcrowded in its tenement districts where many immigrants must be received. This, he said, offered a ripe opportunity for the rapid spread of disease.

Elon R. Hooker, in supporting the resolution, said the November election showed the American people wanted a domestic house cleaning.

"One of the essential things for us to do," he said, "is to put up the bars on immigration for a time, and then bring forth from Congress thoroughly digested and sound legislation with reference to immigration.

"I take if for granted that most right-minded people are in favor of selection at the source. We want a bill which largely restricts, and almost stops, immigration for the present. I think it will take one year for Congress to give us a good law; and, therefore, I think the best thing is to put through the Johnson bill, and then take up immediate plans for the immigration law which is selective at the source."

Mr. Willcox in opposing the resolution said:

"We have a foreign born population variously estimated at from twelve to fifteen millions, including 50 per cent. of the unskilled labor in industry. The character and record of this large section of our people is not now under discussion.

"Argentina offers immigrants free land, Canada guarantees work and makes large appropriations to care for immigrants; Chile offers land and implements, Australia sells land on easy terms and advances money for improvements, New Zealand offers reduced steamship fares, while Brazil gives free passage, cares for them, and on arrival transports them to destination and supplies tools and seeds, with medicine and care in case of illness. If we wish to compete with these countries in securing desirable immigrants and safeguard their interests and our own, we have a vast problem to face in the organization of an adequate and efficient Bureau of Immigration. The Johnson bill would make no constructive contribution to the solution of this problem, but only make the situation more complicated and difficult."

CHICAGO BONDS OFFERED.

The National City Company is today offering $11,455,000 in City of Chicago 4 per cent. gold bonds, maturing serially Jan. 1, 1922 to 1939, inclusive, at prices ranging from 98.57 for the short bonds to 87.18 for the long bonds, which prices will yield to the investor returns of 5.63 per cent. on the shorts to 5.10 on the longest.

The National City Company was the successful bidder for these bonds in the offering a day or so ago. Its successful bid was 90.779 for the entire block. The second bid was 90.41.

The proceeds of this sale are to be spent by the City of Chicago for bridges, hospitals, street improvement, waste disposal operations, police, &c. The per capita debt of Chicago is only $28.55, as compared with $175.17 for New York.

In offering these bonds at a discount, attention is called to the fact that under a recent ruling made by the United States Bureau of Internal Revenue, profit from State and municipal securities purchased at a discount is not taxable in the hands of a person holding such obligations at maturity, except that in no case may such exemption exceed the total discount at which the securities were originally sold by the State or municipality.

SEES HIGH TARIFFS AS FINANCIAL SUICIDE

Chase National Bank Head Asserts They Will Hamper Debt Payment by Europe.

SHE MUST SEND GOODS

And Upward Tariff Revision Will Seriously Hamper Her Doing So, He Says.

High tariff impositions at this time would constitute a policy "which is financially suicidal if rigorously carried out," according to A. Barton Hepburn, Chairman of the Advisory Board of the Chase National Bank. "An upward revision of the tariff," he said yesterday, "would be an inexcusable blunder in the present situation."

Mr. Hepburn, after explaining that he was not dealing with the problem of protective tariff against revenue tariff, under normal conditions, said he did not question that particular schedules may need modification in the light of the developments since the last tariff law was passed, but this, he inferred, should be regarded as the exception and not as the rule.

"I could offer strong arguments for protective tariffs under conditions to which we were accustomed in the days before the war," said Mr. Hepburn. "But the present situation makes the old arguments wholly inapplicable. We are faced by the fact that Europe owes us many billions of dollars, which she can only pay by shipping goods to us. She cannot send much more gold. The creation of our great merchant marine and the expansion of our American banking activities have lessened America's dependence on Europe for shipping and banking services, and, at the present moment, the actual balance of payments on shipping is against Europe rather than in her favor. The only way in which she can hope to pay off this debt, or even to pay interest on it, is by sending goods to us, selling them in our markets and leaving the money with us.

"It needs little argument to show that high protective tariffs interfere with the importation of manufactured goods from Europe, greatly increase Europe's difficulties in meeting her obligations to us, and greatly lessen the prospects of our receiving payments from her. I am, therefore, vigorously opposed to an upward readjustment of our tariffs at the present time. I call attention to the fact that the platform of the Republican Party promulgated at Chicago last Summer took cognizance of this exceptional situation and refrained, in view of this situation, from making any definite commitment of the party to an early general increase of tariff rates. I do not question that particular schedules may need modification in the light of the development since the last tariff law was passed. A strong case can be made on the basis of military considerations for special treatment of dye stuffs, particularly if world conditions are to remain so disturbed that the possibility of another war is seriously to be entertained. But a general revision upward of the tariff would be an inexcusable blunder in the present situation.

The proposed high tariffs on wheat and other farm products of which we are large exporters must be reckoned as absurd. It is not well to trifle with the farmers, and believers in the long-run policy of protective tariff will do well not to irritate them at the present time."

As will be noted, the guarantee of the Fisher Body Corporation will extend beyond the limits of the provisions of Article 8 of the Articles of Incorporation, in respect to payment of dividends on the preferred stock.

This by-law shall not be amended or repealed except by the vote of the holders of a majority of the common stock of the Corporation outstanding."

You are urged to forward at once certificates representing the common stock of The Fisher Body Ohio Company to The First Trust office of The Union Trust Company, Cleveland, Ohio, who will, as depository, issue a receipt in proper form, and will hold the stock surrendered subject to our direction, to be delivered in consummation of the exchange or in the event that the exchange is not made prior to February 1, 1921, return the stock so surrendered. The right is reserved to postpone the date of exchange until not later than April 1, 1921.

The Time Is Right For Buying

The price cutting campaign has been carried far enough. Very little inflation, if any, is left in the general level of prices. It is time for a general buying movement to set in if the vigorous industrial life of the country is to be sustained.

The advisability of buying applies particularly to the stock market where selling has been carried to excess and price declines have been carried to such extremes that there is especial incentive for buying.

We have just compiled a special article on the changing price trend, and shall be pleased to send copy upon request.

FOREIGN NEWS WEAK BUT COTTON GOES UP

Trade and Short Buying Help Overcome Drop Caused by Liverpool Reports.

Like every other day this week, the Liverpool market came in weak and the influence which this exercised completely dominated the early dealings in our market, forcing prices down about 25 points all around. The Liverpool market, which has been going down steadily since about midday of last Monday, was down another 30 to 40 points yesterday, which, added to what it had lost previously, made the net decline since Monday's highs, 129 points for January, 133 for March and lesser amounts to October, which lost in the period 93 points. Liverpool spots, furthermore, were down 21 points additional yesterday to 9.43d, which compares with a recent high of 10.85, made last Friday.

This foreign weakness, however, did not hold yesterday's market down. After the closing abroad our market rallied, regaining all of the morning's losses and about as much more. Trade buying, the covering of early shorts, and even a little scattered foreign buying in the last hour developed, and with the supply pretty well exhausted the market recovered briskly. At the close it was 7 to 15 points net higher.

There was nothing in the domestic news budget to inspire either selling or buying. Our trade seems to be getting along rather well and most market observers believe that were it not for the disconcerting weakness abroad our market for futures would be considerably higher than it is at present. The trade here seems to have passed through most of its real difficulties, while the British trade and the Continental trade are now, apparently, at the apex of their trouble.

This is pretty much the way it has been for some time. Our markets, both trade and speculative, seem to be anywhere from a fortnight to a month ahead of European markets in the process of readjustment.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Previous Day.
Jan.	16.80	17.10	16.73	17.10	16.95

Oct.	15.50	15.85	15.45	15.75	15.60

The local market for spot cotton was quiet, up 10 points to 17.35c for middling upland; sales, 3,200 bales.

Southern spot markets were: Galveston, 14.75c, unchanged; New Orleans, 15c, unchanged; Savannah, 16c, down .50; Augusta, 15c, unchanged; Memphis, 15c, unchanged; Houston, 14.25c, unchanged; Little Rock, 15c, unchanged.

Yesterday's cotton statistics were:

	Yesterday.	Last Wk.	Last Yr.
Port receipts	24,928	30,528	50,814
Exports	40,445	32,400	21,750

Liverpool cables: Spot cotton was dull at 9.34d for middling. Sales, 4,000 bales, of which American 3,000. Imports, 14,000 bales, all American. Future opened barely steady, 23 to 28 points down, and closed barely steady, 30 to 41 points down on the day. Prices: January, 9.62d; March, 9.65d; May, 9.83d; July, 9.94d.

Manchester: Yarns and cloths were dull and easier.

TAX RETURNS SHOW ERRORS ARE MANY

Partnership and Personal Service Corporation Reports Are Faulty.

Partnership and personal service corporation income tax returns have shown many errors, according to the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Although both are exempt from tax, they are required to make returns on Form 1065, showing gross and net income.

"The net income of a partnership," says the bureau, "is computed in the same manner and on the same basis as the net income of an individual, except that deductions for contributions to charitable, religious and scientific organizations are not permitted. Individual members are taxed on the distributive shares of net income from partnerships, whether distributed or not, and are required to include such shares in their individual return of income, even though they may not have been actually received. It not infrequently happens that the figures in the individual return and partnership return do not coincide, in which event there is trouble for both the taxpayer and bureau.

"Partnership returns must be filed, even though the firm had no net income for the year. The return must show the name and address of each partner and his share of net income. Any one of the partners may sign and swear to the return, which may cover the calendar or fiscal year, according to the firm's method of accounting.

"Requirements of the Revenue act with reference to partnerships apply also to personal service corporations, which, though exempt from tax, must make a return of gross and net income on Form 1065, or even if there was no net income.

"In order to be classified as a personal service corporations, its earnings must be derived principally from compensation for personal services rendered by its owners and stockholders. Merchandising or trading either directly or indirectly in commodities or the services of others is not rendering personal service. Where the principal owners and stockholders do not render the principal part of the services, but merely supervise a force of employes, the corporation is not a personal service corporation.

"If the use of capital is necessary or more than incidental, capital is an income-producing factor, and the corporation is not a personal service corporation. No corporation is a personal service corporation if it carries on a business which ordinarily requires the use of a substantial amount of capital, whether invested or borrowed.

"The following corporations are expressly excluded from classification as personal service corporations: Foreign corporations; corporations 50 per cent. of whose gross income consists of gains, profits or income derived from trading as a principal; corporations 50 per cent. of whose gross income consists of gains, profits, commissions or other income derived from Government contracts made between April 6, 1917, and Nov. 11, 1918."

TURKEY AND OTHER MARKETS

Reviewing the Turkish economic situation toward the end of 1920, the Imperial Ottoman Bank reports that the export trade has been extremely dull, and that in consequence the exchange value of the piastre has depreciated further in terms of dollars, sterling and francs. Exchange on London was 423 piastres to the pound sterling at the end of September; by the end of October the quotation had risen to 445¼. On the same date the New York rate was 77½ cents per 100 piastres, as against 82¾ at the end of the previous month. French francs were 12.15 to 100 piastres as compared with 12.30.

The Milan rate, exceptionally, moved in favor of Turkey, the respective quotations at the beginning and end of October being 19.60 lire and 20.70 lire per 100 piastres. The commodity markets are generally very quiet; supplies of some commodities are large, but in others a pronounced shortage exists and imports are restricted by the weakness of the exchanges. Reports from South Russia, from Asia Minor and from Rumania are all of an unfavorable nature. Under existing conditions many of the foreign banks have found themselves compelled to restrict their accommodation to merchants in certain branches of commerce.

GERMAN PUBLIC FINANCES.

Cause of 52,000,000,000 Marks Deficit and 169,000,000,000 Debt.

A review from Berlin, published in London, of the very unfavorable past year in German Government finances ascribes as the main causes for the enormous deficit the failure to collect taxes, the subsidizing of State services with a view to mitigating the burden on the people, the cost of the occupying allied armies, and the heavy claims granted to German citizens as compensation for war losses. It is added, however, that the basic cause of the very bad showing, which results in a deficit of 52,000,000,000 marks in the budget, was inflation of the currency.

No home loan was raised in 1920 by the German Government, and only a Dutch credit for food and raw materials represents anything in the nature of foreign loans. The floating debt of the Government is stated as having been 45,000,000,000 marks at the end of November, 1918, and as having risen to 76,000,000,000 on Aug. 1, 1919, to 105,000,000,000 on March 31, 1920, to 132,100,000,000 on June 30, 1920, and to 169,900,000,000 at the end of last October. The last-named sum is stated to include 147,400,000,000 marks of discounted Treasury certificates and Treasury bills.

ANOTHER DROP IN WHEAT AT CHICAGO

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—The wheat market showed all the earmarks of being nursed along in order to liquidate long lines today and the undertone was heavy, with the finish about the bottom, at net losses of 3¾ to 4 cents. The covering of a large amount of short corn for a local operator prevented a decline in that grain into new ground, and it lost only ¼ cent, although sales were made immediately after the close below the official finish.

For nearly a week there has been evidence that the leading long has gradually been selling out its lines of wheat and corn, and it is generally believed that all bulges will find plenty of grain for sale. Sentiment in consequence is decidedly bearish, although the disposition on the part of the trade to oversell is expected to result in very sharp rallies from time to time. At the finish many of the pit elements were short and bought offers to protect themselves.

In some quarters it is believed that the foundation of a sensational bull market is being laid, but the strong statistical position is not likely to assert itself for over thirty days at the earliest. The persistent reiteration of the low estimates on the exportable surplus of wheat from Canada, Argentina and Australia, combined with rains which will damage the quality in the latter two countries, and drought and reduced acreage in India, is the basis for this view.

The trade anxiously awaits a decision as to the Argentine super export tax, which is regarded as certain to be imposed. Any official statement would probably be construed as bearish, as it would furnish a basis on which Argentine shippers would be able to do business on a cost and freight basis, whereas there has been very little buying heretofore, as shippers would not sell unless the buyer assumed the supertax.

Weather conditions in the Winter wheat belt are being closely watched and will be a market factor inside the next two months. There seems to be a deficiency in the subsoil moisture in many sections, and a serious outbreak of the Hessian fly is looked for in the soft wheat States, due to the mild Winter.

Milling demand is spasmodic, with Kansas City after Spring wheats at Minneapolis, and the latter market is after hard Winters in the southwest. The Canadian northern has embargoed shipments of wheat to Duluth, effective Jan. 22, on account of congestion there.

Receipts of wheat at terminal markets aggregated 1,268,000 bushels; week ago, 1,102,000; year ago, 625,000. Shipments were 726,000 bushels; week ago, 636,000; year ago, 766,000.

Arrivals of corn were 1,343,000 bushels; week ago, 1,221,000; year ago, 639,000. Shipments were 891,000 bushels; week ago, 616,000; year ago, 537,000.

INFLATION AND DEFLATION.

London View of the Present Situation and Its Causes.

"Just as a period of inflation," The Statist comments, "is one of great prosperity to commerce and industry, so deflation reacts on them with a severity commensurate with its rapidity. It is not surprising, therefore, to find that everywhere at the present day business firms are feeling the strain, production is being curtailed, and unemployment is increasing.

"To say that matters will not get worse in the near future would be merely giving rise to illusory hopes. There has been a tendency in some quarters to lay the blame at the door of the banks, but this is erroneous. The cause of the trouble was the abnormal in prices and profits during 1919, and the present depression is but in the nature of a readjustment."

PHONE RATES INCREASED.

New York to New Jersey Calls to Be 5 Cents Higher.

An increase of 5 cents a call in telephone rates between points in New York State and New Jersey, within forty miles of the points of connection, will go into effect today. The New York Telephone Company announced the increase would not apply to calls between points more than forty miles apart.

"The increase is necessary," the telephone company said, "to secure additional revenue which must be had if we are to fulfill our obligations to the public. Toll rates between New York points were increased on Sept. 21, 1920, and the present increase is to bring the interstate rates into uniformity with the toll in New York State."

N. Y. INCOME PUZZLE OFFICIALLY SOLVED

Answers to Typical Questions Show Why and When to Pay or Not to Pay.

AUTO DAMAGE IS ALLOWED

Salesman Who Lives in the State and Works Outside Must Make His Return.

Questions relating to the New York State income tax, covering points raised in the inquiries of taxpayers, were answered in a statement made public yesterday by the New York State Income Tax Bureau. Some of the questions and answers follow:

Salesman—My car is used six days of the week for business purposes and generally on Sunday for social purposes. How do I compute the expenses of running the car and also depreciation? Answer—You may deduct that proportion of 20 per cent. of the value of the car for depreciation which the time devoted to business uses bears to the total use of the car. Your deduction for repairs, oil, gasoline, tires, &c., should be similarly figured.

Doubtful—If my father earned $600, my sister, aged 18, received $900, and my other sister $1,200, and we are all living with my mother and younger brother, aged 9, would I on a salary of $2,000 be allowed to claim a head of a family exemption. If not, are any exemptions for dependents permitted to me? Answer—No. Neither of these exemptions are permitted because your father and two sisters aided you in supporting the household. It is reasonable that their joint contributions exceeded your payments for this purpose, thus depriving you of the head of a family exemption.

Remsen—My sedan on the way to a social engagement collided with a telegraph pole and the repairs cost me $250. My car was not insured. May I deduct this expenditure? Answer—Yes. This is in the nature of a casualty and the amounts expended are deductible.

Banker—Am I permitted to deduct the 2 per cent. tax paid by the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad to the Government on bonds which I own? In other words, is my bond interest of $400 on $10,000 par value of bonds only taxable to the extent of $392? Answer—No. The amount of tax paid to the Government by a debtor corporation is additional income to the bondholder. Income from this source should be reported as $408, made up of the 4 per cent. interest and the 2 per cent. tax on the bond interest.

Textile—Some of my time as a traveling salesman is spent each year in Chicago. I reside in Rochester and understand amounts paid to me for work outside New York is not subject to tax. Please enlighten me. Answer—As a resident your income from all sources, even though derived from out of the State business, is taxable.

Newlywed—Although I was married in September, 1920, my wife continued teaching school in New Jersey and was obliged to room there. I kept my room in New Rochelle, but we spent the week-ends together. Do I get the $2,000 exemption as a married man living with his wife. Answer—Yes. You are permitted the $2,000 exemption.

CHECK ON LIQUOR PERMITS.

Applications of Wholesalers Must Have Double Indorsement.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—To lessen the possibility of abuse of liquor permits, Prohibition Commissioner Kramer directed today that all applications for new permits or renewal of old permits to sell liquor at wholesale or to use it in the manufacture of alcoholic preparations must be approved by State directors and supervising Federal prohibition agents.

Regulations requiring similar approval of applications for permits for retail druggists also will be issued soon, Mr. Kramer announced.

"It is important," the Commissioner said, "that directors and supervising agents co-operate to the fullest possible extent in this matter as it is felt that by securing their joint recommendations on application for permits of this nature, the possibilities of issuing permits to persons who will abuse the privileges conferred thereby will be very appreciably reduced."

Asks Inquiry on German Airplanes.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Investigation of the purchase by the War, Navy and Post Office Departments of fourteen German airplanes at a total cost of $300,000 was asked in a resolution introduced today by Representative Madden of Illinois. Three of the planes used by the Post Office Department, Mr. Madden charged, were destroyed by fire due to faulty construction and three fliers killed. The deal was closed, he asserted, when there was a surplus of American-built planes on the market.

HOOVER WOULD CURB GRAIN SPECULATORS

Proposes a Federal Control Board and an Agreement Among Exchanges.

MORE WAREHOUSES NEEDED

Receipts Against Stored Products Would Open New Credit to Farmers, He Points Out.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Herbert Hoover, former Federal Food Administrator, before the House Committee on Agriculture today, advocated the establishment of a national marketing board of experts to act with the voluntary co-operation of Boards of Trade and Grain Exchanges to improve marketing conditions.

He also expressed the view that manipulation in grain could be done away with through agreement among the exchanges to limit the quantity which could be handled in speculative trades.

"My own conclusions," said Mr. Hoover, "are that we should have a national marketing board of experts, under the Department of Agriculture, whose outlook is primarily to improve marketing conditions; that some regulatory powers should be given them of this nature, and that they should determine the precise procedure, from time to time, for administrative action by the Secretary of Agriculture. They could accomplish a great deal in improving the trade processes through agreement with the trades and by the establishment of standard practices in co-operation with them.

"One function of such a board, for instance, would be to provide regulation which would secure the extension of public warehouses in such a manner that the farmer can store his grain at any country elevator or terminal and obtain warehouse receipt that will open to him new credit beyond his abilities in loans against holdings on farms. Such a board could give great assistance to the development of co-operative marketing and other important improvements in our marketing processes."

"A large proportion of men in the grain trade are engaged in a legitimate business," Mr. Hoover said, in answer to a question by Representative W. B. Wilson of Illinois. "There is a minority of sellers, however, whose actions tend to depreciate prices.

"A Federal board should be created with authority that would eliminate evil practices. It is desirable to bring about voluntary co-operation of grain exchanges in effecting this, and they should join in the movement to bring about better conditions in the markets of the country.

"Legitimate hedging is desirable in the grain trade and it should be extended to commodities other than corn. Barley, for instance, fluctuates widely in price and other grains should be included in trading in futures.

"Through the establishment of a Federal board and the extension of free hedging to other grains, the farmer would have a national price for his product. The consumer would have the same. If corn, for instance, should be dealt in on a local price, there would be no national price, and there would be wider margin."

Mr. Hoover then referred to the method of reaching the manipulative speculator.

"The board should fix 500,000 bushels as a maximum of a trade in wheat, for instance, with power to extend the amount under special circumstances. This should be the speculative maximum, in my opinion," he declared.

"It as been proposed in bills before this committee that the number of dealings should be limited," suggested Representative J. C. McLaughlin of Michigan.

"Limiting of deals has no effect on the market," said Mr. Hoover. "Quantity is what affects the market. Speculative transactions are small in volume and neutralize each other."

Mr. Hoover, warning the committee against legislation that would be too rigid, said:

"My experience has shown that rigid and too definite legislation leads to unexpected difficulties. The establishment of a board such as I have suggested, with certain powers, could be made effective with the co-operation of the grain exchanges. The rules of the exchanges against violations of the regulations of the board would operate with much greater force than any inelastic legislation."

Answering a question as to trade with Central European countries, Mr. Hoover said:

"There is a lack of a foreign market now for American farm products. No market will be available until a system of credit has been created for Germany and other central European powers. I am opposed to direct United States Government credit. There are a thousand reasons against this. It should be done, and I believe is being done through normal business channels. The great trouble now is under-consumption not over-production. The under-consumption is due to lack of credit, and until this situation is corrected, our European market cannot be what it should."

CHARGES COAL MEN SHIELD PROFITEERS

Riley Declares New York Wholesale Association Obstructs Prosecution.

ASSAILS COMMITTEE HEAD

Chairman Thompson of Trade Commission Backs Calder Bill at Senate Hearing.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Today's study of the coal industry by the Senate Committee considering the Calder Regulation bill brought from Chairman Thompson of the Federal Trade Commission the statement that Congress must either "restore competition in the coal industry or face nationalization," and from Armin W. Riley, special assistant to the Attorney General, charges that the New York Wholesale Coal Association had "put every obstacle in the way" of Lever act proceedings against alleged coal profiteers.

Mr. Riley also presented to the committee sales records of Pennsylvania anthracite mines which, he said, showed the collection last Fall of $13 and $15 a ton at mine mouths for coal which "fair price circulars" valued at $6. He demurred to giving further public testimony regarding the New York Wholesale Coal Association, after naming Charles S. Allen, its Secretary, and Gibbs L. Baker, its Counsel, as chiefly instrumental in the placing of obstacles, because, he said, "publicity would impede the work of the Grand Jury now sitting in New York."

Chairman La Follette thereupon took the committee into executive session, and when it came out members voted to extend hearings on the Calder bill for an indefinite period.

Eugene C. Hullman, State Fuel Administrator for Massachusetts, another witness, expressed the belief that "New England was robbed of $17,000,000 in the coal prices charged last year. He added:

"Coal is a natural resource of the country, created by God, not by man, and belongs to the people of the country, who ought not to be obliged to guess at its fair market price."

Accuses "Fair Practices" Head.

Mr. Riley, discussing the anthracite situation, drew a line between "independent producers" and "railroad companies," saying that most of the Department of Justice cost studies related to the independents. He produced forms of contracts between the mine operators and sales agents to show that most of the profits made by the agents got back to the operators, and that the agents received a premium for the obtaining of high figures in resales.

Answering a question by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Mr. Riley named Madeira, Hill & Co. of Philadelphia and New York as probably "the worst" of the companies charging high prices. He added that the head of this company also was Chairman of the "Fair Practices Committee" of anthracite operators. No other names were given by the witness.

Reading from contracts, Mr. Riley said that sales agents agreed not to sell at figures under those fixed by the producers; to withhold deliveries in case prices should break, and to take commissions of 10 per cent. on the value of coal handled when it was sold at the base price fixed by the producers, but 25 per cent. of the amount received in advance of such figures.

Mr. Riley named Madeira, Hill & Co., as one of those concerns having an agency contract form of the kind he described. The agency was owned, he added, by the same men who owned the producing company.

"We found that this company was actually receiving $9 a ton for coal at its mines, and at the same time selling the same coal to other parties in the same location at $14 a ton," he said.

An agent of the Department of Justice "sat in with the Fair Practices Committee," Mr. Riley said, and the anthracite producers later took the position "that they had been given what amounted to an immunity bath to prevent prosecution."

Obstructions Faced, He Says.

"Are you doing anything to follow up these cases with prosecutions in New York or elsewhere?" Chairman La Follette asked.

"Yes, Sir; but we are encountering every conceivable obstacle in instituting prosecutions," Mr. Riley replied. He added that the New York Wholesale Coal Association "placed every obstacle in our way, though offering us lip-co-operation."

Gibbs L. Baker, Counsel for the New York Wholesale Coal Association, was accused by Mr. Riley of "running with the hare and hunting with the hounds" by "sitting in Department of Justice conferences in Washington" and taking "good retaining fees" from individual New York dealers under investigation. Secretary Allen, the witness said, wrote to each firm coming under investigation, recommending the employment of Baker as legal adviser.

"Baker told me he paid Mr. Allen certain sums," Mr. Riley said in concluding his public testimony. He took with him into the executive session a number of canceled checks and correspondence.

Declares Calder Plan Legal.

Chairman Thompson's indorsement of the Calder bill was practically complete, and he gave the committee the opinion that Congress has the Constitutional right to require the reporting of coal production costs, sales prices and stocks.

The Calder bill was described by Mr. Thompson as "prophylactic legislation—preventative, not parental."

"By this bill," he continued, "the Trade Commission can demonstrate to the consumer when he is called upon to pay such prices, as $18 a ton, as the Shipping Board was last year, the cost of coal. Then there will have to be some explaining done before transactions are made.

"I notice in all these industrial problems and the testimony that has gone before in Congressional committee investigations, that the only time the interest of the consumer comes up, is when the Trade Commission brings it in. All the other questions are those raised by one element of an industry trying to get an advantage against the others, or to prevent others from getting advantage against it."

Ralph Crews, an attorney for several large coal producers, will be heard tomorrow by the committee.

PLAN 70 MORE SCHOOLS.

The Board of Education is planning a building program which will rid the public schools of overcrowding, part time and double sessions. It is estimated that the plan will cost about $100,000,000.

The program will include about seventy school buildings and about fifteen buildings more each year. The matter is now under discussion by the board.

STATE TAX DIRECTOR ASSAILS SINECURES

Backs Miller's Consolidation Plan and Urges Non-Political Reorganization.

Holders of political sinecures infest almost every State department in Albany, said Mark Graves, Director of the State Income Tax Bureau, in an address yesterday before the Real Estate Board of New York, at 217 Broadway. Only through a reorganization of these departments, without the hindrance of political consideration, will the State save money and the community be benefited, he said.

"Many of the holders of sinecures are incompetent and others get more than they are worth because their duties are not worth the salaries they are receiving," continued Mr. Graves. "I believe that at least 30 per cent. of them have not the ability to do the work assigned to them. We need some kind of a reorganization in order to save money, and when it is brought about I hope that all the political consideration is left out."

Mr. Graves asserted that it was ridiculous for the tax laws to be administered by the many departments which now exist in Albany, and endorsed Governor Miller's proposal that they be consolidated into one department. At present, he said, there are eight State bureaus concerned with the administration of tax matters, and these are spread through three different departments. He also complained that payments for the various State taxes are made in many localities in New York and are not confined to one central office.

Taking up a false report, which he said had been widely circulated in this city, that the State income tax law had been declared unconstitutional in so far as it affected non-residents, Mr. Graves said:

"This report is entirely without foundation, and the bureau warns manufacturers, bankers, brokers and real estate and business men of New York City who employ thousands of non-residents against paying any attention to the rumor. The law requires employers of non-residents to withhold from their compensation 1 per cent. of the first $1,000 above their exemption, 2 per cent. of the next $40,000 and 3 per cent. on $50,000 or more, and to make returns to the State not later than April 15.

"Perhaps the most important change which has been made in the income tax law," said Mr. Graves, "is with respect to the time for filing returns, which has been extended from March 15 to April 15 for the purpose of affording relief for those compelled to make heavy payments of Federal tax on March 15 and to whom the payment of a State tax on the same day was a burden."

CHASED BY LOVESICK GIRL.

Philadelphia Man Has to Appeal to Court for Protection.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 20.—Madly in love with a Philadelphia business man, who failed to return her passion, Miss Beatrice Herbert, 29 years old of Montreal, chased him half way around the world, partly by airplane, and the pursuit ended today before Magistrate McCleary.

After the object of her pursuit, William Zinzer, had told his story, the defendant, who was charged with breach of the peace and disorderly conduct, was held in $1,500 bail for a further hearing next Thursday. At that time it is expected papers for her deportation to Canada will have arrived here.

Zinzer, who is about 25 years old, told the Magistrate that when conducting a party of tourists on a trip to the Orient on a transpacific line last March the woman annoyed him so by her actions in pressing her attentions toward him that he had to move his seat at the table and change on his arrival in Japan, he said. He thought he was rid of her, but when Hongkong was reached she appeared again.

On the return trip to Honolulu, he said, Miss Herbert was discovered as a stowaway on the steamship. The Captain turned her over to the authorities in Honolulu and it was understood she was to be sent back later to her home in Canada.

Last September she arrived here and resumed her wooing, with the result that she was arrested and deported to Canada.

Questioned as to how she had reentered this country from Canada after being deported, Miss Herbert answered: "Easy enough; I came by airplane."

BILL HASTENS PAYMENTS.

Another Measure Presented in Interest of Injured Employes.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 20.—Another measure in the program for the reorganization of the State Industrial Commission and the simplifying of its procedure will be introduced tomorrow in the Senate by Senator John Knight of Wyoming, Chairman of the legislative committee which investigated the commission. The bill is designed to expedite payment of compensation to injured employes and to reduce the expenses now incurred in disposing of compensation cases.

The measure will change the procedure of settlement by requiring that the employer or insurance company begin paying compensation as soon as due and pay it at stated intervals without waiting for the filing of a claim or the making of an award by the commission. Exception to this provision, however, is made where the employer or the insurance company has a bona fide defense to the claim.

A penalty is imposed for the benefit of the injured workman in case the employer fails to notify the commission of the beginning of payment of compensation. The bill will have a public hearing on Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 26, before the joint Labor and Industries Committee.

BANS MODERN DANCES.

Kansas Minister Leads Campaign Against Check-to-Cheek Wiggles.

Special to The New York Times.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Jan. 20.—Three dances a week for three months is the attendance record of the Rev. Lewis Jacobsen. He is not learning new steps but seeks evidence for condemnation. As a member of the city's welfare board he decided to put a ban on all improper dancing either among the townspeople or the students of the Kansas State Agricultural College. To do this and to speak with authority he felt that he must know more about popular dances.

After months of observance he has decided that cheek-to-cheek dancing is popular and in many instances he has observed lip-to-lip dancing. The shuffle and the toddle he condemns as awkward as well as suggestive.

The college authorities are supporting the campaign against improper dancing which is being led by the minister, and various organizations of the college have passed resolutions against all freak dances. Dancing at the college has been permitted only of recent years and there is grave danger of its being abolished if more dancing and less wiggling is not practiced by the students.

ELEVEN COMPANIES IN ROW

Demand for High-Class Private Dwellings on the Increase—$130,000 Sale on East 73d Street.

An important lease in Steamship Row was closed yesterday when the Chesebrough Building Company leased the two-story and basement building now in course of construction at 10 to 14 Pearl Street to the Lloyd-Royal Belge Steamship Company for a long term of years.

The demand for office space in this particular section of the city has caused many recent changes and at the present time Henry L. Doherty of the H. L. Doherty Company, and Clarke G. Dailey, President of the South Ferry Realty Company, are co-operating in the rejuvenation of the block between State and Whitehall Streets.

All of the old buildings are being razed, the street widened by setback and two-story and basement limestone business buildings erected on the south side of the street for use by steamship companies.

In this one short block there are located quarters of eleven steamship lines, including the French Line, Anchor Line, Panama Railroad Steamship Line, Furness-Withy Company, and others.

The two buildings at 16 and 18 Pearl Street, which are as yet unrented, will be completed in a few weeks. When these have been rented to steamship companies, as is contemplated, this short block will become unique in that it will contain the homes of more than a dozen prominent steamship lines, and is destined to become known in the future as "Steamship Row."

NEPHEW FILES CONTEST

Counsel for Executors Tells of General's Daughter's Affection for Cats.

The unhappy romance of the late Maria Louise Ewen and her objection to giving up a man she had married under the belief that he was a titled foreigner, even after he was proved to be a fraud, were described to a jury before Surrogate Foley yesterday in a contests of her will by her nephew, John Ewen, a lawyer, who was excluded from a share in the $300,000 estate when his aunt died at the age of 73.

The story of Miss Ewen's love affair was told by Arthur C. Train, counsel for the executors seeking to probate the will. He also spoke of the affection of Miss Ewen, and her two maiden sisters, the daughters of the late General Ewen, who lived together, for cats. Mr. Train described Miss Ewen as "a little old lady fond of dressing in girlish clothes, which gave her a grotesque appearance." She was susceptible to masculine flattery, and upon being introduced to a man representing himself as the Baron von Koenits, she became the victim of his wiles.

Miss Ewen married the "Baron" in New Jersey in 1909, against the opposition of her relatives, and immediately afterward she gave him $45,000 and they went to Florida on their honeymoon. His picture in the society columns of the newspapers attracted the attention of the Warden of Sing Sing, who communicated with her relatives, and they enticed the couple back from St. Augustine, Fla.

Subsidized Troupe of Chorus Girls.

Her husband remained in Florida, but he instructed her to get $300,000 from a strong box in New York and bring it back to him. He had caused a woman friend to accompany his wife to New York to see that she carried out his instructions, but her two sisters and Mr. Train met her and concocted a story for her to tell him as an excuse for not bringing the securities.

When the "Baroness" returned to her husband, Mr. Train said, her disillusionment was made complete. She found that her husband had "subsidized part of a troupe of chorus girls," had bought an orange grove and motorboat and was enjoying himself on a large scale. She finally left her husband, but even after she returned here great pressure was necessary before she agreed to annul the marriage "because she was so proud of the idea of being married and of the title of Baroness." Mr. Train declared that one Bainbridge, a lecturer, who had introduced Miss Ewen to von Koenits, had an agreement by which he was to get 10 per cent. of the $300,000 in securities as soon as von Koenits got control of them. He said that von Koenits got the $45,000 for the alleged purpose of "renovating his castle in Thuringia."

After giving up the "Baron" Miss Ewen took a trip to Europe with Bishop Weller of Fond du Lac, Wis., his wife, and the Rev. Aubrey Percy Nelson, now assistant rector of St. Luke's Protestant Episcopal Church on Convent Avenue. Later the Rev. Mr. Nelson gave up his ministerial duties, Mr. Train said, and went to live at the home of Miss Ewen as a "sort of companion and nurse." He remained there until she died, leaving him $20,000.

Contends Her Mind Was Sound.

Mr. Train contended that Miss Ewen was of sound mind when she made her will, and said she ignored her nephew because he opposed the wishes of her sister Eliza and herself in contesting the will of their sister Caroline, who left the bulk of her large estate to institutions organized for "the amelioration of the suffering of animals," principally cats. The contest was settled by the payment to Mr. Ewen of one-sixth of the sum received by the institutions.

William C. Wilder, law partner of Mr. Ewen, in presenting his case to the jury, said:

"When a woman 60 years of ago wants to get married as badly as she did, and is as anxious to acquire a title as she was, the hysteria has gone to her brain."

Mr. Wilder pointed out that in a will made prior to her marriage, Miss Ewen gave the bulk of her estate to her nephew and her sisters. He insisted that her conduct at the time she was married and afterward indicated that she was dominated easily by others.

Mr. Wilder declared it cost Miss Ewen and her sisters $100,000 to set aside her marriage to the bogus Baron, and that Mr. Train's law firm got $30,000, Judge Parker received $10,000 and another lawyer got $7,500. He said Miss Ewen left Bishop Weller and his wife in Europe, and went on with the Rev. Mr. Nelson to the Holy Land. He declared that Miss Ewen cut off her nephew "purely and solely as a gratify a feeling of spite on the part of her sister Eliza."

The trial will continue today.

FIGHT OVER CUSTODY OF 'TITLED' PRISONER

District Attorney's Office Refuses to Surrender De Clamecy to Massachusetts.

BOSTON GAVE KEYS TO HIM

But State Now Wants Him to Complete a 10-Year Forgery Sentence.

The authorities of Massachusetts and the District Attorney's office clashed yesterday over the legal custody of a much titled prisoner known as Felipe de Clamecy, alias "Judge de Clamecy," alias "Lord Nevius," alias "General Felipe de Clamecy" and also "Dr. de Clamecy," arrested here a week ago on the complaint of William Dench, Secretary of the Underwood Computing Machine Company, 30 Church Street. Mr. Dench charges that on Oct. 28 the prisoner obtained $300 from him on a check, which was returned unpaid. De Clamecy pleaded guilty before Magistrate Koenig in the Tombs Court, and has since been in the Tombs.

He is wanted in Boston to complete a ten-year term in the Massachusetts Penitentiary, to which he was sentenced in 1912 for forgery. Governor Cox of Massachusetts issued an extradition warrant, which Governor Miller of New York approved, and William M. Robinson, a State detective of Massachusetts, arrived with it yesterday, but the authorities here declined to surrender the prisoner on the ground that it has been decided to try him here on the Dench charge, as soon as a Grand Jury has passed upon his case.

According to information gathered by the District Attorney's office, De Clamecy has figured in a series of impostures upon business men and officials in New York and Massachusetts. He was first heard of in 1911, which is said to be the date of his arrival in this country. In 1912 the Boston Chamber of Commerce had De Clamecy as its guest at dinner, and Mayor Fitzgerald presented him with the keys of the city of Boston.

At that time De Clamecy discussed big business schemes, which he intimated he was about to lay before leading financiers. Then, it is said, he spoke of being a member of the French judiciary, and some one arranged another dinner for him, this time under the auspices of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts. De Clamecy let it be understood that he was a special envoy of the French Government, to inspect the American judicial system, and had chosen Massachusetts as a model on which he hoped to improve the court procedure in France.

While serving his sentence he managed to interest some department of the Federal Government in an invention he claimed he had and which he predicted would aid aeronautical development. He was paroled in 1918, having served a little less than six years of his sentence, and was sent to the Boston Institute of Technology to perfect his invention.

It is now believed that his invention was a myth, made use of by him for an opportunity to get his freedom. At any rate he escaped his guard and fled from the institute and appeared shortly afterward, dressed in the uniform of a French General, at Camp Devens, Mass., where he announced to the surprised officials that he had come to make an inspection and to train the draft troops.

De Clamecy was well received. He displayed an alleged medal of the French Legion of Honor until some young French officer recognised him and had him placed in a guardhouse. He again made his escape, and was next heard of at Buffalo, N. Y., where he attempted to organise a $10,000,000 oxygen company.

The District Attorney will ask the State Department to apply to the French authorities for De Clamecy's record or any information regarding his career in France. De Clamecy, who is 50 years old, told Chief Assistant District Attorney Banton he was willing to return to Massachusetts, asserting that he was anxious to see his wife and child there.

CENSUS FOR LONG BEACH.

Women to Conduct Count of Overlooked Village.

The wild waves at Long Beach, which were wilder than ever when it became known that Uncle Sam had overlooked them in taking the census, were somewhat appeased yesterday when Mrs. James Mitchell of the Federal Census Bureau arrived from Washington to count noses. Mrs. Minnie Barruscale, wife of the Police Captain at Long Beach, was appointed to aid her.

When the census was started Mrs. Barruscale was appointed to the job, but she was told soon after that a man had been appointed to supersede her. So she forgot about the census, and so did the man, who labored under the impression that Mrs. Barruscale was counting.

TO HEAR IRISH OFFICIALS.

American Relief Commission Invites Testimony on Needs of People.

The American Commission for Relief in Ireland announced yesterday that all responsible officials of Irish municipalities now in this country, including Lord Mayor O'Callaghan of Cork, had been asked to appear at a special meeting of the American Commission at the Hotel Biltmore on next Tuesday afternoon.

The officials will be asked to provide the commission, of which ex-Supreme Court Justice Morgan J. O'Brien is the head, with a reasonably accurate estimate of the funds and supplies necessary to meet the immediate needs of the Irish people.

IMPERATOR SAILS.

Armenian Minister and Bishop Charles Brent on Long List.

Many well-known persons sailed yesterday for Cherbourg and Southampton in the Cunard liner Imperator. The vessel carried 450 first cabin passengers, and her departure was delayed several hours because of the late arrival of bunker coal. Among those who sailed was Dr. Garo Pasdermadjian, Armenian Minister to the United States. He is going to Paris for a conference of Armenian leaders on "the attitude to adopt toward the Communist Government which has been set up in the Armenian Republic."

Vincent Astor, who was on board, expects to visit St. Moritz, Switzerland. There he will meet his mother, Lady Ribblesdale, and his sister Muriel.

Mrs. William Hayward and her son, Philip Morton Plant, sailed for a trip which will take in Egypt. The Right Rev. Charles H. Brent, Episcopal Bishop of Western New York, sailed for a lecture tour in Scotland. Bertram G. Work, President of the Goodrich Tire and Rubber Company, sailed with Mrs. Work. He will inspect the company's plant in Paris. Others on board included Mr. and Mrs. E. Clarence Jones, Axel Robert Nordvall, who was Swedish High Commissioner to the United States; the Count and Countess de Maupas, Edward J. Nally, President of the Radio Corporation, and Mrs. Nally and Frederick C. Latham, manager for Charles Dillingham.

SMITH AND AMHERST AGREE.

Coolness Due to "Lord Jeff's" Reference to Girls Is Dispelled.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 20.—Once again the Smith girl and the Amherst boy can speak as they pass by, for friendly relations between the student bodies of the two colleges were resumed today as a result of a conference of representatives of the students.

One of the terms of the peace protocol is new chaperon rules for dances. Many hours were devoted to this phase of the treaty, and the rules will be announced tomorrow.

The breach between the colleges occurred over an article appearing in "Lord Jeff," an Amherst publication, which Smith students thought reflected upon them.

Among Mr. Gerard's guests, besides the Marquis, were Brig. Gen. Vanderbilt, United States Marshal Thomas D. McCarthy, Cyrus H. K. Curtis, William Ziegler, Judge Mayer, Lewis L. Clarke, Mortimer Schiff, W. E. Frew, S. D. Bowers and Herbert B. Swope.

UPHOLDS LOUIS POST IN ANTI-RED POLICY

Reply by Secretary Wilson to Legion's Attack Is Given Out at White House.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The policy of the Department of Labor with respect to the arrest and deportation of radical aliens, concerning which it has had clashes with the Department of Justice, was stated for the first time by Secretary Wilson in a statement made public today at the White House. It was summarized as follows:

"(1) No person shall be arrested except upon sworn affidavit based upon information and belief.

"(2) No person when arrested shall be held incommunicado.

"(3) Every person arrested shall be entitled to counsel immediately upon being taken into custody.

"(4) They shall be confronted with the evidence and shall be permitted to furnish testimony and be heard in their own behalf.

"(5) Excessive bail shall not be required.

The Secretary's statement was embodied in a letter to Colonel Henry D. Lindsley, Chairman of the American Legion's Executive Committee. It was designed as a reply to a formal request for the dismissal of Post, which was presented at the White House last October by the Executive Committee in pursuance of a resolution adopted at the last annual convention of the Legion.

"Louis F. Post is one of the truest Americans I have ever come in contact with," said Secretary Wilson's statement. "He is a thorough believer in democracy. He has no sympathy with any alien or American who believes in, advocates or teaches the use of force to overthrow the Government of the United States. He has, however, a profound belief in and reverence for the Constitution of the United States, including that part which provides for its own amendment. He has, therefore, faithfully carried out the instructions given by me as Secretary of Labor concerning deportation cases."

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 20.—The Hartford Central Labor Union adopted resolutions calling upon the United States to recognize the Russian Soviet Government and asking the Department of Labor to refuse to deport Lord Mayor O'Callaghan of Cork.

WEINSTEIN TO BE DEPORTED

"Chancellor" of Soviet Bureau Will Go With Martens and Can't Return.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Deportation of Gregory Weinstein, "Chancellor" of the Russian Soviet Bureau in the United States, was ordered today by Secretary Wilson of the Labor Department.

Weinstein is to sail Saturday from New York on the Swedish-American liner Stockholm with Ludwig C. A. K. Martens and other employes in this country of the Russian Soviet Government.

The summons was issued yesterday by Magistrate Frothingham, who presided in a tightly buttoned overcoat, and the case will be heard by Magistrate Max Levine.

During the last three days witnesses have worn overcoats, muffs and in one case earmuffs in the courtroom. The court stenographer wore gloves and frequently when cases were called a court officer has had to be dispatched to a restaurant for litigants who were drinking hot coffee to throw off a chill acquired in the courtroom. Magistrate Frothingham will appear as a witness.

PLOT TO TAKE LIFE OF LLOYD GEORGE RUMORED IN PARIS

Story of Sinn Fein Plan to Assassinate Him on Visit There Is Widespread.

OFFICIALS ALL DENY IT

But Gossip Connects the Report With Raids Carried Out in French Capital.

PLOT REVEALED IN IRELAND?

Men From the United States, According to the Rumors, Were to Carry Out the Attack.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 21.—"A Sinn Fein plot to assassinate Lloyd George in Paris"—that is the sinister rumor afloat in "inner circles" of the French capital today. In the lobby of the Chamber one Deputy whispers it to another. "Do you think it is true?" they ask. "And if true will it cause another postponement of the conference?"—the inter-allied conference from which France, her interests at last in the hands of a statesman no less subtle than Lloyd George, is expecting so much.

In newspaper offices the ominous story makes city editors frown in perplexity. It comes to them from all sides, but they cannot obtain confirmation or detailed facts. It is sensational enough for scare headlines, but the French press is well disciplined and the "word has passed" to leave the subject severely alone. At most a few of the less important sheets make tentative allusions, hardly enough for the reader to understand unless he has heard the report already.

Official circles maintain absolute silence. "We refuse to discuss so absurd a subject," they say. "Surely, on the face of it, it is incredible."

The police are equally negative. In response to an inquiry, M. Dumas, head of the service of the prefecture charged with surveillance of distinguished visitors to France, declared: "I have heard nothing about any plot against Mr. Lloyd George. My service has received no orders to make a special search for potential plotters in any quarter of Paris. Raids now being conducted in different parts of the city are conducted by another department, and to the best of my knowledge have no relation to any plot. Of course, I shall take the customary precautions, but that is all."

Reassuring as this sounds it is at least strange that M. Dumas has not even heard of the rumor that is all over Paris. In its most definite form the story is as follows: Documents recently seized by the British in Ireland revealed that two, some say three, men had already landed or were about to land in France from the United States with the express purpose of killing the British Premier during his visit to Paris. This information was communicated to Paris, and the dragnet was first of all put out in the port towns of Havre and Cherbourg. Nothing was discovered, so a series of raids on a big scale has been undertaken in Paris. It is suggested that the real purpose of the recent huge round-up in Dublin was to obtain further details of the alleged plot.

The character of the raids in Paris is adduced as further evidence. Nominally their purpose is to cleanse the city of low class or criminal foreigners, deserters, &c., but it is pointed out that many of the establishments raided are frequented by a different class of visitors. For instance, the Café de la Rotonde, at Montparnasse, is a well-known resort of bohemian visitors from every country. Painters, writers, musicians and sculptors sit reverently at the table once reserved for Picasso and other modernist leaders. Yet once or twice recently every one in the Rotonde has been taken to the police station and forced to show papers. Another place raided was the famous night resort Au Père Tranquille, near the Central Markets, where revelers go for onion soup and Welsh rabbit after the Montmartre dancing halls are closed. Some of the places raided in Montmartre are of similar type—not at all dens where low criminals might go, but where one could expect to find political conspirators, and more than one well-dressed American has spent the night in a cell because he was without papers.

Finally, one of the principal bases on which the story is founded is the apparent reluctance of Lloyd George to have the conference in Paris. It is stated that as lately as yesterday a letter was received in Paris from members of his entourage suggesting that he would prefer Boulogne. The obvious explanation of that is that, owing to the grave internal situation in England, the British Premier does not care to absent himself too far from his country. "In that case," triumphantly answer the believers in the plot rumor, "why did Lloyd George previously propose Cannes as the meeting place, which is twenty-four hours further from England than Paris itself?" Anyway, I have unquestionable authority, neither British nor French, for stating that efforts have been made to have the conference held elsewhere than at Paris, and that some representatives of the allied powers are by no means inclined to pooh-pooh possibilities of a Sinn Fein attack on Lloyd George. One representative now in Paris put the matter thus: "Apart from the international com-

Army Officer Wins Court Tilt In Move to Prevent Retirement

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Army officers seeking to prevent their retirement from active service by the Army Reclassification Board won their first skirmish in the courts today when Justice McCoy, of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, ordered Secretary Baker to show cause on Jan. 28 why Colonel John W. French should not be restored to the active list.

Colonel French, who enlisted as a private in 1895, has sued for an injunction on the ground that action of the board in ordering his retirement constituted an invasion of his constitutional rights.

ANTI-HUGHES MOVE GROWS IN SENATE

Opponents of Ex-Justice for Secretary of State Now Talk Openly for Root.

FALL TO INFORM HARDING

Daugherty Also Counted On—Some Senators Pressing to Put Hoover in Cabinet.

Special to the New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Opposition among Republican Senators to the appointment of Charles E. Hughes as Secretary of State has assumed such proportions that it is now described as a "revolt." Since Saturday when the Senators received word that convinced them that President-elect Harding had selected Hughes for the place there has been growing dissatisfaction over the choice. For several days they managed to keep their state of mind from becoming known, but now that it is out they are not as reticent.

All Senators who preferred Senator Knox or David Jayne Hill for Secretary of State are now apparently concentrating efforts in behalf of Elihu Root, because they believe that Root is the only man to whom Mr. Harding will turn if he is sufficiently impressed with the opposition to Hughes to erase his name from the tentative Cabinet slate. They are looking for an early indication as to whether the President-elect continues to stick to Hughes. This expectation seems to be based on the fact that Senators Fall and Frelinghuysen and Harry M. Daugherty will be in Florida with Harding and will be able to give him an understanding of the feeling in the Senate concerning Hughes.

Only Two Senators Favor Hughes.

Senator Frelinghuysen is believed to be the strongest supporter that Hughes has in the Senate. One Republican member of the Committee on Foreign Relations is said to be favorable to the appointment of Hughes but is not enthusiastic about it. These are the only ones, it is said, who would be satisfied with the choice.

Senator Fall has been strong for Root and he now has the support of most of his associates in the Senate. He is a member of the Committee on Foreign Relations and is generally regarded as the President-elect's closest friend among the Senators.

Of the other Republican members of the committee, Lodge, McCumber, Borah, Brandegee, Knox, Johnson, New and Moses, a majority, are irreconcilables on the League of Nations, and so were not favorable to the appointment of Root as Secretary of State. His desire to preserve the structure of the present League in the organization of any new "association" did not please them. But the situation has now changed materially, and while it cannot be said that all the irreconcilables are behind the movement for Root, it is obvious that he has sufficient support in the Senate to make an impressive showing with the President-elect.

Negotiations in Florida.

Apparently the Senators here look to Fall, Frelinghuysen and Daugherty to tell the President-elect that the appointment of Hughes would cause extreme dissatisfaction in the Senate and also to many party leaders. When Mr. Daugherty was here just before his departure for Florida he had the opportunity of learning sentiment on Cabinet possibilities.

The opposition to Hughes is largely personal. There is a fear among Republican Senators that it would be difficult to do business with him, and that he would be tenacious of his views on general policies. Some suggest that his tenacity might be embarrassing to Harding when his ideas did not quite ac-

J. D. ROCKEFELLER JR. GIVES $1,000,000 FOR STARVING CHILDREN

ANNOUNCEMENT BY HOOVER

Members of Class Had Just Showered Several Thousand Dollars at Collection.

ADMITS ENVYING FATHER

John D. Rockefeller Jr. gave $1,000,000 to the proposed $33,000,000 found for the relief of the destitute women and children of Europe at the annual dinner of the Young Men's Bible Class of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church at the Hotel McAlpin last night.

Announcement of Mr. Rockefeller's gift was made by Herbert Hoover, head of the American Relief Administration, after a speech by Mr. Hoover describing conditions in Europe and after a dramatic scene, in which the members of the Bible Class insisted upon making contributions to the fund on the spot.

Mr. Hoover said later that Mr. Rockefeller's contribution was his own individual and personal gift and was not in any part his father's or a benefaction of the Rockefeller Foundation or any Rockefeller organization. The announcement of the gift was cheered enthusiastically. The members of the class jumped to their feet and applauded Mr. Rockefeller, who seemed embarrassed by the demonstration.

After Mr. Hoover had finished his speech Mr. Rockefeller suggested that a contribution for the fund be taken at the regular meeting of the Bible class next Sunday. "Men," he said, "we did not call you together to ask for subscriptions. That has never been done at a Bible class dinner and it will not be done now. But the condition is unusual, and I believe we might take up a collection next Sunday."

Bible Class Starts Collection.

"I move we do it now," called a man at one of the tables.

"Certainly," called another. "I second the motion," cried half a dozen or more in unison. There was a chorus of approval, which was followed by a roar of even greater volume, when a member of the class put the motion.

Several members dragged out a table and placed it near the door at the entrance and the members of the class present, 373 in number, went forward and began to shower notes upon the table. There must have been several thousand dollars at least on the table, judging from the size of the pile of notes.

Mr. Rockefeller, who had watched the scene smilingly, suggested that if any of those present were not prepared to give all they wished, they would have an opportunity to do so next Sunday, as he originally suggested. He then leaned forward at the speakers' table and spoke to Mr. Hoover. The latter smiled, rapped for order and made his announcement.

Before suggesting contributions to the European Relief Fund, Mr. Rockefeller said he envied his father only one thing. "I do not envy him his mother, although she was a wonderful woman, because I had a wonderful mother," he said. "I do not envy him his wife, my mother, because I have the best wife in the world. I do not envy him his children, three daughters to say nothing of a son, because I have the six best children in the world. But I do envy him the necessity he had to make his way in the world. I have never known what that was."

Hoover Complains of Slow Collections.

Mr. Hoover in his speech said he simply was not getting the money for his "starving children in Europe." He contrasted America's food supply for eighteen months ahead and a harvest coming in nine months with the misery in Eastern and Central Europe. "We who possess a surplus which we cannot sell," he went on, "a surplus that has caused the vast amount of unemployment, sit here and use our supplies and do little or nothing.

"Something must be wrong if we can allow that situation to continue. Nor can we allow it to continue if we would preserve the foundations of civilization.

"We cannot hold to the situation we now have and expect to remain at peace. Until now the suffering people of Europe had the knowledge that the American

France May Seek $200,000,000 Loan Here: Matin Points to Our Government's Generosity

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 21.—The Matin learns that the French Government may seek a loan of $200,000,000 in America instead of the $100,000,000 which has been mentioned. A discussion of the financial situation in France being the order of the day the Matin publishes the following article to help clarify the situation:

"We are about to negotiate a new loan of $100,000,000 at 8 per cent. with the New York banks. Eight per cent. is not excessive if one bears in mind that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company which is the queen of American railroad companies, has just floated a loan at 7½ per cent. As for this $100,000,000, it represents at the current exchange 1,600,000,000 francs. And this leads us to consider what we owe America. This account in 1921 stands as follows:

"First, $2,500,000,000 due by France to the Treasury of the United States for loans contracted during the war.

"Second, $400,000,000 due by France to the Government of the United States for stocks and war material left in France.

"Third, $100,000,000 owed by France to the Morgan group for the loan contracted last year in connection with the payment of the Anglo-French loan.

"Fourth, $50,000,000 due by the City of Paris to the Morgan group for municipal bonds sold to the American public.

"Fifth, $50,000,000 due by the cities of Bordeaux, Lyons and Marseilles to different financial groups for bonds floated in America.

"Total due, $3,100,000,000, which at the rate of sixteen francs to the dollar represents in round figures 50,000,000,000 francs.

"But this picture calls for the immediate observation that it contains two categories of debts, absolutely different—debts to the American State and debts to American bankers. The debts to the American State are much the more important, totaling $2,000,000,000. The debts to the financial groups are about $200,000,000.

"This distribution is important, because while the American financiers cannot consent to any postponement of debts or any decrease in interest, the American State up to the present, on 46,000,000,000 francs which are due, has asked of France not one sou of capital or one centime of interest. That is one of the most rare examples of generosity which history has given."

Ford Co. Said to Seek Loan of $50,000,000 or More

Rumors that Henry Ford is attempting to arrange some sort of financing here persisted yesterday, and the gossips placed the amount the automobile manufacturer is seeking at anywhere from $50,000,000 to $75,000,000.

In spite of the silence of most bankers who have hitherto transacted Mr. Ford's business, it was learned that an issue of bonds or notes to take care of the company's maturing obligations such as Federal income and excess profits taxes and to provide liquid capital may be offered to the public soon. The Liberty National Bank, the New York Trust Company and the Corn Exchange Bank head a group of financial institutions which have undertaken to float the issue. The precise form it will take was represented last night as being still under negotiation.

Reports from Detroit yesterday said that Mr. Ford recently owed New York banks between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000 on the $80,000,000 loan he floated about two years ago to buy out the Dodge interest in his company and that he offered a few months ago to pay one-third of the amount and asked for an extension on the balance, but found Eastern financiers reluctant to advance large sums to the motor car industry in its present state. According to word which came from Detroit, Michigan banks advanced to the Ford Company the sum needed.

It was reported in Wall Street yesterday that the Ford Company had about $30,000,000 tied up in completed but unsold cars and that its tax bill, payable in quarterly installments, would exceed $40,000,000.

W. M. COLEMAN LEAPS TO DEATH IN CAPITAL

WAS THERE ON BUSINESS

Special to the New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—William M. Coleman of 30 Church Street and 1 West Eighty-ninth Street, Manhattan, general counsel for the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad, committed suicide this afternoon by leaping from the tenth story of the Powhatan Hotel, Eighteenth and Pennsylvania Avenue, not far from the White House. Death was instantaneous. Mr. Coleman left a note, in the form of a brief will, bequeathing everything to his wife.

The date of the will was Jan. 18, which leads the authorities here to believe that he had contemplated suicide for several days. Written on a Western Union telegraph blank, it reads:

I hereby assign and transfer and set over unto my wife, Lillian W. Coleman, all the property, real, personal and mixed, of which I am now possessed.

WILLIAM M. COLEMAN.

Mr. Coleman came here yesterday with F. H. Sellick, Controller of the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad, to look after some routine business for the road with the United States Railroad Administration, whose building is opposite the Powhatan Hotel. When they registered they were assigned to a suite on the tenth floor.

Complained of Not Feeling Well.

Mr. Sellick said tonight that Mr. Coleman had given no indication of intending to take his life. He had complained of not feeling well, but had not stated the nature of his illness.

Early this afternoon Mr. Coleman and Mr. Sellick went for a walk, going into Potomac Park as far as the Lincoln Memorial. They returned to the hotel about lunch time. Mr. Sellick suggested luncheon, but Mr. Coleman, declaring he did not feel like eating, went to his room.

About half an hour later Mr. Sellick noticed the crowd in front of the hotel, but paid no attention to it. He went up to Mr. Coleman's suite, found his hat and coat in the room and went back to investigate. He saw the dead body of Mr. Coleman on the sidewalk and identified it.

Coroner J. Ramsey Nevitt, after investigating the case and getting the police report, issued a certificate of death by suicide.

The body was badly crushed. The dead man evidently struck the sidewalk feet first, as the soles of his shoes were split from the terrific impact, and his legs were crushed into a shapeless mass. The body was also crushed to some extent. The face and head also had bruises.

The dead man's papers were all in perfect order. They were taken in charge by the police and will be held until tomorrow, when it is expected that they will be turned over to Mr. Sellick to be taken back to New York.

The body will be sent to New York tomorrow.

Family Thinks He Fell From Window.

Mr. Coleman's family and business associates here could ascribe no reason yesterday for his committing suicide. At the Coleman home, 1 West Eighty-ninth Street, members of his family were inclined to doubt that he had taken his own life. They said he had been suffering recently from the grip and was subject to dizzy spells. It was their theory that Mr. Coleman had fallen out of the window.

An official of the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad Company said that while Mr. Coleman's connection with the company had been comparatively recent he had made many friends there.

Mr. Coleman is survived by a widow, Mrs. Lillian W. Coleman, and two sons, William Jr. and Tolbert. Marshall Coleman, a brother, left last night for Washington to bring the body to this city.

EX-PASTOR ADMITS HE ROBBED MAIL

HE PROTECTS ACCOMPLICES

Free Thinker Who Led Methodist Flock Had $3,400 in Pockets When Arrested.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Guy Kyle, "Intellectual," and leading Free Thinker of Mount Vernon, Ill., was held under heavy guard in his home tonight, following the recovery of $185,000 of $212,000 in cash, stolen last Friday when four registered mail sacks were lifted from a truck at the rear of the Mount Vernon Post Office. Kyle, who uses the title "Reverend," was formerly pastor of the Mount Vernon Free Methodist Church.

An egg crate containing $100,000 in bills was discovered in the attic of Kyle's home. A box holding $75,000 in neatly wrapped packages rewarded a raid on the loft of one of Kyle's automobile repair shops. About $1,600 in currency was found in his second garage and $3,400 of the loot was taken from his pockets.

Late tonight Kyle led postal inspectors back to the garage and disclosed the hiding place of $5,300 in additional bank notes. He admitted complicity in the robbery, but refused to divulge the names of his companions.

Federal agents combed the town tonight for some trace of approximately $27,000 in non-negotiable securities which, they assert, may have been destroyed by Kyle and his accomplices after the robbery. No further arrests had been made at a late hour tonight, although the postal authorities do not believe the robbery could have been carried out by Kyle alone. While the net was sweeping Mount Vernon, Federal warrants were issued for John McFadden and William Conroy, arrested Thursday and charged with being implicated in the $500,000 mail theft at the Union Station recently. Three additional prisoners were taken by Detectives and Federal inspectors during the afternoon and held for examination.

Inspectors also examined the gold bonds, valued at $21,000, found Thursday by D. F. Crimmins in a hallway. They said the bonds could not be positively identified as part of the Union Station loot until the register numbers of the stolen packages were more thoroughly checked.

Five more men, suspected of being mail bandits, were rounded up during the day by Captain Charles Johnson, special agent for the Michigan Central in Niles, Mich. He led a posse which scoured the country near Lawton, Mich., after a station employe had discovered rails piled on the tracks ahead of early morning mail trains.

Kyle maintained a stoical silence through three hours of grilling tonight, following his first confession. Inspector Hitchcock, who, with Inspectors Gould and Rider, collected the hidden loot, said he had never seen so stubborn a prisoner.

"After we had shown him all our evidence in this case and taken him repeatedly to the scene of the robbery and to his garages, where much of the money was found, he did admit that he had been in on the mail job," said the Inspector. "We could get no more from him than the simple, 'I was on the job.' Then he took us to his main garage, went directly to an old desk in one corner, opened a lower drawer and handed out a small box containing $5,300."

MONTREAL JOBLESS RAID RESTAURANTS AND DEMAND FOOD

Many Are Fed, Though They Refuse Temporary Work Offered by City.

SOME ARE TO BE DEPORTED

City Officials Blame Disorder on Non-Resident Agitators, Who Must Go.

TOLEDO FEEDS WORKLESS

Detroit Provides $250,000 to Aid Unemployed—More Railroad Employes Laid Off.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Jan. 21.—The second demonstration by unemployed men seeking free food within eighteen hours was made here this morning, when between 150 and 200 men walked into Walton's uptown restaurant, at St. Catherine and Peel Streets. As was the case last night at Childs's downtown store, the management acquiesced and the men were fed.

At first, when they crowded to the counters and demanded that they be fed, the counter foreman told the men that he could give them nothing, as the manager was out. This seemingly angered the men, and threats were heard.

At this juncture A. Rouse, manager of the branch, arrived and ordered the countermen to supply a bowl of soup, two pieces of bread, tea or coffee and doughnuts to each man. The raiders formed in orderly lines at the counters and received their food.

At noon the management requested the police to clear the premises so that the regular lunch trade would not be interfered with, and Lieutenant Gregoire appealed to the men to leave, as otherwise the company would lose its regular customers. The men passed out onto St. Catherine Street. As each man left the door he was searched for weapons, but none was found, according to the police, and no arrest was made.

Prepared for Possible Trouble.

Civic officers admit that they expect trouble of a more serious nature later and are taking due steps to handle any emergency.

Managers of the raided restaurants took their trials calmly and good humoredly. They seemed to be thankful for small mercies, such as that the rush on their premises and their food supplies did not occur at the busiest hour, and that the hungry participants behaved comparatively well, there being practically no rowdyism or other serious disturbances.

Approximately fifty policemen, the majority of the city's reserves, were turned out at 1:45 this afternoon as a preventative measure when the third demonstration of the unemployed since last evening and the second today occurred in the vicinity of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel.

The men who had raided Walton's lunch room had returned to the headquarters of the Unemployed Ex-Service Men's Association on St. James Street when they found that Colonel Gaudet, Director of Public Safety, had persuaded some of their number to go to work on the snow in the vicinity of Mountain and Sherbrooke Streets West.

While the men were discussing whether they should work or not, loads of shovels and picks in automobiles and sleighs arrived from the city yards at Mountain and St. Antoine Streets. With these came Michael O'Toole, foreman of the yards, who offered work to all who would take it.

Some of the men promptly began shoveling, but others wandered along Sherbrooke Street to the vicinity of the Linton Apartments, where a large meeting was held in the street. Here again leaders urged the men not to accept work at the small wages offered of 32½ cents an hour.

Police Check Parade.

In front of the Ritz-Carlton another demonstration took place, and it was at the conclusion of this that police patrols loaded with men hurried up. The police formed at the corner of Drummond and Sherbrooke Streets, but the parade broke up.

Some of the men kept at work on the snow piles, but it was estimated that two-thirds of the unemployed paraders refused to work.

E. R. Decary, Chairman of the Administrative Commission, announced at noon today that the civic authorities were taking decisive action to check any disorders arising from unemployment. He declared most of the trouble was due to an undesirable element which had drifted into Montreal from other places, many with bolshevistic ideas. He had found, he said, that a source of mischief-making has been a place on St. James Street opened by the Unemployed Ex-Service Men's Association, and this would be closed by the police.

Supplementing this action, work will be provided for every man who wants it by application at the City Hall, and workers will be paid in cash at the end of each day. Those who will not work and are not Montreal residents will be deported without delay. The unemployed will apply to the foremen of the corporation yards.

To meet conditions which have given unemployed men the excuse to raid city restaurants, the Meurling Refuge will be kept open during the day hereafter and meals will be served at noon as well as in the morning and evening.

How Workless Are Relieved.

The process up to today in regard to relief for the unemployed has been as follows: The workless and hungry man registers as such, either at a police station, ex-service men's unemployment organization or a charitable society, and receives there a certificate, after investi-

Spanish Troops Kill Four Syndicalists Seeking Escape

MADRID, Jan. 21.—Reports received from Barcelona indicate a continuance of sanguinary encounters between the police and the syndicalists. The civil guards were escorting a syndicalist to prison this morning when the man attempted to escape. The escort fired, killing the man.

Later three other syndicalists were arrested on suspicion of complicity in the killing of Police Inspector Espejo. They attempted to escape while going to the station, and the guards fired a volley, killing all three of them.

DONATES $20,000 TO WHITMAN INQUIRY

Edward Hatch Jr. Sends Check for Use if City Withholds Funds.

WANTS THE WORK TO GO ON

Estimate Board Refers Request for Appropriation—Aldermen's Approval Required.

The Whitman investigation into alleged corruption in city departments was rendered independent of the Board of Estimate and Board of Aldermen yesterday by a check for $20,000 drawn by Edward Hatch Jr. in favor of ex-Governor Whitman.

Mr. Hatch wrote a letter offering the money and called on Mr. Whitman, after reading that the investigation was in danger of being stopped or impeded by lack of funds through delay or negative action by the Board of Estimate or Board of Aldermen, both of which must pass upon the application of District Attorney Swann for $20,000 to pay the expense of the inquiry.

Mr. Whitman accepted the check. It will be used if the appropriation is refused by the city. It will be returned to Mr. Hatch if the appropriation is made.

Mr. Hatch is Chairman of the Pollution and Sewerage Committee of the Merchants' Association. He has for years given much time to two kinds of public work; combating pollution of the river and harbor with sewage and an annual "Swat the fly" campaign. He lives at the Hotel Buckingham, but when an effort was made to find him there last night, it was said that he had suddenly "gone to the country."

The Board of Estimate yesterday referred the request for $20,000 to the Committee on Finance and Budget, which meets on Monday. Favorable action there must precede its return to the Board of Estimate. If it passes, it must be passed by the Board of Aldermen and then returned to the Board of Estimate and be passed again.

Rests With Tammany Majority.

This application confronts a Tammany majority, which can say "Yes" or "No" to the proposition, which is fundamentally a proposal for the Hylan administration to furnish funds for a sweeping investigation of the Hylan administration.

In appointing Mr. Whitman two weeks ago yesterday District Attorney Swann gambled on the willingness of Tammany to provide the cash for a drastic investigation of three years of Tammany stewardship. He had no money at his disposal, and could only rely on the good-will of the Tammany-controlled Board of Estimate to pay the expense.

The $20,000 was described yesterday as only "a drop in the bucket" for an investigation of such thoroughness as Mr. Whitman contemplated. To keep it going until all serious charges of corruption were exhausted would require repeated appeals to the city for funds.

"I and the men who have been working with me have been working for nothing so far and paying our own expenses," Mr. Whitman said. "It can't go on that way, of course, but this investigation is going on."

The letter of Mr. Hatch follows:

Jan. 21, 1921.

Hon. Chas. S. Whitman:

My Dear Governor—I am prepared to send you a check today for $20,000 to be used for your investigation of the Police Department, if the Board of Aldermen does not approve of and the city does not make the appropriation of $20,000 for the purpose. Yours very truly, EDWARD HATCH Jr.

Awaits Action of Aldermen.

"At 3 o'clock this afternoon," Mr. Whitman said, "Mr. Hatch gave me the check and I have accepted it. I have not cashed it, but placed it in a safety deposit vault pending the action of the Board of Aldermen."

When asked if it was legal to accept private funds for such an investigation, Mr. Whitman said:

"There is nothing in the law to prevent a private citizen from defraying the necessary incidental expenses. Of course, he cannot pay salaries. I could not use it for myself, but I could use it to pay the men I myself hire."

"Did anybody else offer money to aid the investigation?" was asked.

"I cannot answer that question."

From circumstances yesterday it appeared, however, that citizens are prepared to underwrite the expenses of the Whitman investigation and to furnish blank checks for the purpose, if necessary.

Although the investigation so far has resulted in the indictment of two Police Captains and in preparations to ask the indictment of others, the expenses have been small.

Other cases, however, are not so simple. The alleged private detective agency graft is the knottiest problem facing Mr. Whitman and is considered by him to be the greatest evil eating into the efficiency of the police. Get-

SCHWAB DENIES PAYING EXPENSES FROM SHIP FUNDS

"My Life Work Ruined," He Says on Unexpected Appearance Before Inquiry Board.

$260,000 VOUCHER DRAWN

But He Insists No Part of Government Money Was Used to Meet His Bills.

GRACE TO EXPLAIN DETAILS

Payne and Col. Abadie Disclose Opposition to Audit of Bethlehem Books.

Charles M. Schwab appeared unexpectedly yesterday before the Congressional Shipping Board Committee at the Hotel Pennsylvania, and denied statements made by Colonel Eugene H. Abadie, formerly General Controller of the Shipping Board, as a result of which Mr. Schwab said that he felt his "work of a lifetime had been wiped out." He told the committee that he defied any one to show on the records of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation any voucher, such as that for $260,000 described by Colonel Abadie, in which his personal expenses were charged against ship construction for the Government.

Mr. Schwab admitted that there was a voucher "for such expense," but insisted that it had not been charged to the Government. Eugene G. Grace, his principal assistant, admitted to reporters the existence of the voucher which he said would be explained at the proper time before the committee by himself.

The only additional information which Mr. Grace would give concerning the voucher was that the amount covered a longer period than October, 1918, mentioned in the testimony of Colonel Abadie.

When President Wilson invited him to assume charge of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, Mr. Schwab testified, he was reluctant to accept that post, because of his fear that his dual position, as head of that organization, and of shipbuilding interests engaged in work for the Government would invite "some irresponsible or sensational person to find fault." He said that he had taken every precaution to avoid doing anything in his official capacity that could be construed as for his own benefit.

"I gave my very life to this cause and its work," he said, "and it is a source of regret so deep as to be inexpressible that any form of criticism should arise. I feel it so deeply that I can hardly express myself to you about it."

Chairman Joseph Walsh asked Mr. Schwab if his appearance was not at his own request "and possibly at your own pretty strenuous insistence," and he replied:

"My demand, absolutely."

When Mr. Schwab finished his testimony, Colonel Abadie was recalled. He told the committee that there was nothing he could say which would make proper correction of a statement made to him about the Schwab voucher by auditors of the General Controller's department, who must have been aware of the significance of this information. He asserted that he had tried to avoid sensationalism in his testimony by purposely withholding the name of Mr. Schwab at the time he mentioned the finding of the voucher for $260,000, covering "personal expenses of an official of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation," of which $100,000 is alleged to have been charged to ship construction.

Apology Due If True.

"If all he has said is true," said Colonel Abadie, "I owe him the deepest of apologies."

Mr. Schwab arrived before the members of the committee. He found Martin J. Gillen, former Special Assistant to Chairman John Barton Payne, and Admiral William S. Benson, who for three days has been awaiting a chance to reply to statements by Colonel Abadie.

Mr. Schwab said that he was "almost stunned at the attack made on his reputation." Upon learning that he was not to be heard before the first of next week, he communicated with Paul D. Cravath, counsel for the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, and they met at the Hotel Pennsylvania. Mr. Schwab arrived about 8 o'clock, and found, in addition to Mr. Cravath, his business associate, Mr. Grace, President of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

Just before Mr. Schwab took the stand he had Colonel Abadie pointed out to him. He went over to where the Colonel was standing and was overheard to say:

"You are Colonel Abadie. I don't believe I know you and I don't recall having ever met you. You have ruined my reputation. You have done me an irreparable injury. Why did you do it?"

Colonel Abadie's reply could not be heard.

Mr. Schwab Takes Stand.

Mr. Schwab was called to the stand by Chairman Walsh, who asked:

Q.—What have you to say regarding Colonel Abadie's reference as to your personal expenses having been charged to the cost of United States Shipping Board ships? A.—It is absolutely, unmitigatedly and maliciously false. There is no charge for personal expenses of mine in any manner, shape or form against the Shipping Board for ship construction of the United States Government or the Emergency Fleet Corporation. Furthermore, no personal expenses of mine while I was Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, and they were heavy, was ever reimbursed to me by the United States Government, and I defy anyone to show on the records of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation any voucher charged against shipping for my personal expenses, and the statement is as false, as perniciously and as maliciously so, that I can scarcely find words with which to characterize it or harmful influence.

Q.—Do you mean to say that in your ac-

Watchman Cuts Sputtering Bomb Fuse; Saves Building but Is Badly Burned

In a gallant and successful effort to save the building he was guarding from being destroyed by a bomb, Tony Frankie of 191 Buffalo Avenue, Brooklyn, was burned badly about the hands and arms early this morning.

Frankie, who is 53 years old, is employed to watch the structure at 154 East Fifty-third Street, between Lexington and Third Avenue, which is being altered from a stable to a garage. Just before 2 o'clock this morning while prowling about the premises to make sure that all was well, he saw sparks in the basement entrance. At first he thought a fire was getting under way, but a second glance showed a sputtering fuse attached to what evidently was a bomb. The contrivance was big enough to destroy the building if it contained high explosive.

Kneeling over it, Frankie got out his knife, opened it hurriedly and began to saw at the fuse with a dull blade. It took him several seconds to sever the fuse, and while he worked the sparks inflicted painful injuries on his hands and arms. But an inch and a half of fuse protruded from the bomb when Frankie succeeded in cutting it. He grabbed the object and ran to the street where a patrolman took him to the East Fifty-first Street Station. There an ambulance surgeon from Flower Hospital treated his injuries. Inspector Callahan of the Bureau of Combustibles began an examination of the bomb, while detectives went out to try to determine the motive for placing it where it was found.

done of your personal expenses were charged against ship construction for ships which were being built for the United States? A.—Absolutely and unqualifiedly, no.

Q.—And if vouchers to that effect are found, was it done with your knowledge? A.—I think so. Mr. Grace, who is the active President and manager of the Bethlehem Corporation, will have all the data that may be necessary to make that perfectly clear, but of this statement you may be sure, that nothing connected with my personal expenses was charged against the ships or the shipping for the United States Government.

Cannot Recall Details.

Q.—Do I understand, Mr. Schwab, that if the certified public accountant who is making the audit, actually finds a voucher reading "Personal Expenses of Yourself" and actually finds it charged to ship construction, in such a case would that have been done with your knowledge? A.—No, it would not. Whatever my personal relations with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation may have been, I personally could not tell you the details. I personally do not remember, but you may be sure of one thing, above everything else, that I was particularly careful that insinuation should never be made honestly and truthfully, nor any money was ever reimbursed to me by the United States Government for any services I rendered them during my connection with them.

Q.—Are you the chief executive of the concern? A.—I am the Chairman of the Board and not the chief executive. Mr. Grace is the chief executive of the Bethlehem Steel Company.

Q.—Is he your superior officer? A.—No. I was the President and retired from the direct management of the company and its responsibilities and Mr. Grace assumed the responsibility of the company. He would have more definite knowledge of the details than I could possibly have.

Q.—I want to say for your information, Mr. Schwab, that this is the single exception the committee has made. [In permitting a witness to testify on his demand.] Inasmuch as you were Director General of the Fleet Corporation over an extended period, the committee thought they would give you an opportunity with the understanding that you would be willing to appear later. A.—When I was requested to go to Washington by the President and the Shipping Board to assume charge of the Emergency Fleet Corporation I objected most strenuously, on the ground of my large shipbuilding interests. I felt that, in the future, some irresponsible or sensational person might endeavor to find fault by reason of my position as Director General and Director of large shipbuilding interests for the Government and endeavor to connect the two matters in a manner that would not be agreeable to me, that the business between the two might be criticised. I went to the Shipping Board and the President of the United States and begged that they would not call me for this office on this account. I was exceedingly anxious to render any possible service to the United States that was within my power, but I was already loaded down with great responsibilities by reason of my own firm's important position in the war and in connection with the Government, and especially with our Allies. Notwithstanding my objections they felt that it was my duty to assume these responsibilities, and I said very well. When I assumed the duty I sent for the officers of the Emergency Fleet Corporation and of the Shipping Board and said to them that if there were any business transactions of any sort between the Bethlehem Steel Company and the Shipping Board I wanted to have no part in them, that they would have to be conducted by Mr. Piez, who conducted that part of our business, and left to the Shipping Board for their approval, and in no meeting did I take any part. I was very careful in my expenditures, and not a single penny of money ever expended by me while in this service for trips around the shipyards or in any single matter was ever reimbursed to me by the United States Government. No man can honestly say, I don't believe any man ever will say, that they ever saw any action upon my part which was ever made in any manner for my own benefit or interest. Now, I conducted vast things of a similar character for our allied governments, in France and abroad. I have never had anything but the highest commendation from any Government with which I had anything to do. I gave my very life to this cause and its work, and it is a source of regret so deep as to be inexpressible that after this support and after this service that any form of criticism should arise. I feel it so deeply that I can hardly express myself to you about it. I have stated the views I wanted to state and the denial of this awful insinuation, and I wanted to come before you at the earliest possible moment.

He Leaves the Stand.

Mr. Schwab was dismissed after saying that he did not collect even the $1 a year salary to which he was entitled. He was asked to refresh his memory about other points for testimony next week.

Colonel Abadie was recalled and asked by Chairman Walsh whether he wished to make a statement on matters about which Mr. Schwab had just testified.

The witness said that if a mistake had been made he was anxious to have it corrected, and cited his previous testimony as based on the statements of responsible officials.

Q.—You have no personal animus, bias or feeling against Mr. Schwab or his concern, have you? A.—None whatever. I had never met Mr. Schwab at the time that I caused this audit to be made. I had never met any of the officials of any one of his corporations, so far as I know, until after the audit had been stopped.

Q.—But, Colonel Abadie, you had seen, had you not, an audit made by this same accountant of the Fore River Yard, in which certain improper items were alleged to have been allocated and spread over ship construction? A.—Yes, sir; both paid for by the Standard Oil Company and the Luckenbach Steamship Company. I found therein items that our accounting staff had not disallowed.

Q.—The fact that you had seen that was in your mind, and did that fact in any way influence you in giving credit to what Mr. Perley Morse told you about this $260,000 voucher, including it in your statement as a matter of fact based upon what Mr. Morse told you? A.—Why, if I had not had that supporting evidence I would never have referred to it.

Never Saw the Voucher.

Q.—But you have never seen or had possession of this actual voucher? (The one involving Mr. Schwab.) A.—I have not, and I so stated.

Q.—Yes, I understand you did. And the man who has told you about it is Perley Morse himself. A.—Yes, sir, and Mr. Burgess. Both of them had discussed it with me.

Q.—The $260,000 voucher? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Did they tell you what they saw or what evidence they saw on which they based their statement that $100,000 of that was charged to ship construction? A.—It was on the voucher, so they stated to me, that $100,000 was charged to ship construction.

Q.—Now do you know that it was not charged to ships other than those constructed for the Government? A.—I do not know at this time, but I know from their statements that it was charged to ships of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, but not distributed to any particular hull of the Fleet Corporation's vessels.

Q.—Would not the fact that this voucher, if it were found without supporting papers, and with the simple statement that $100,000 was charged to ship construction, possibly indicate to you that by looking at the supporting papers the $100,000 charged to ship construction might apply to something other than Government work? A.—They would hardly have mentioned that voucher, it occurred to me, and I think that this is the case—if it had not been connected up by a charge on the books of the Bethlehem Company to the Emergency Fleet Corporation, and to support that charge in the books the voucher would have to be found and examined.

Q.—Did Mr. Morse or Mr. Burgess tell you that they found this item on the books charged to the Fleet Corporation. A.—Yes, sir, that is my understanding exactly.

Q.—Did either of them tell you that they found this $100,000 item charged on the books of the Bethlehem Corporation against or to the Fleet Corporation? A.—Yes, sir.

Audit Brought Up Again.

The subject of the Morse audit of the books of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation was again broached by Chairman Walsh at the afternoon session, when he asked Colonel Abadie whether there had been a conference between Shipping Board officials and officials of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation after Admiral Benson was appointed Chairman. Colonel [illegible] said that there had been such a conference, and Chairman Walsh asked if he had been present. Colonel Abadie requested that he be excused from answering.

"I prefer to discuss that matter in executive session," said the witness, "because I am afraid that a wrong interpretation might be placed upon my remarks by the public."

The committee adjourned for five minutes, after which Chairman Walsh informed the witness that he must answer the question.

"May I ask one more question?" parried Colonel Abadie. "What is the penalty if I refuse to answer?"

The Chairman informed him that he might be guilty of contempt both of the committee and the House of Representatives. Colonel Abadie then wanted to tell of the meeting without naming those present. He also asked for delay.

"Unless you are given this reasonable time," inquired Chairman Walsh, "then you will refuse to answer?"

Colonel Abadie made no direct reply, but asked for a half hour's recess in

Has Testimony Read.

When the committee reconvened Colonel Abadie asked that the original question and the testimony following it be read to him. The stenographer was directed to read this part of the testimony, then Chairman Walsh asked:

"Colonel Abadie, with whom did you have a conference after Admiral Benson became Chairman of the Shipping Board, with reference to the proposed or proceeding audit that was taking place at the plants of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation?"

Before answering that question Colonel Abadie said that he wished to advise the committee that he threw full responsibility upon it for the consequences of what he was about to say. The witness proceeded:

I was in conference with Mr. Dean, general counsel for the Shipping Board. I was called to Mr. Dean's office and he asked me to meet Admiral Benson, Mr. Schwab and Mr. Powell, Vice President of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, as I understood it, in the office of Admiral Benson. I was asked to bring with me the contract with Perley Morse & Co. and other papers, which I did.

Q.—Was Mr. Schwab there? A.—He was not there. Mr. Powell stepped out and went into Commissioner Stevens's office and brought Mr. Schwab in and introduced him. That was the first time I ever met Mr. Schwab, and I think the second time I had met Mr. Powell.

Q.—Was this conference regarding an audit that was going on or had been stopped?

The witness explained that the audit had been stopped, and that the conference had to do with the auditors.

Q.—Did Admiral Benson arrive during the conference. A.—He did not.

Asked what had transpired at the conference, Colonel Abadie explained that the contract, with its instructions to Perley Morse & Co., and the other papers which he had been requested to bring were examined by Mr. Schwab and Mr. Powell. They turned the leaves of these documents, which the witness said he did not permit to leave his hands.

Q.—As a result of this conference nothing occurred to change your relation with the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation or to change your contract with Perley Morse & Co.? A.—None whatever. That evening I went to Admiral Benson's apartment at the Wyoming and reported the results of the conference to him personally in full. I wanted him to know that the papers had been shown to Mr. Schwab and Mr. Powell because that is not the sort of thing I would have done ordinarily without specific instructions from him.

Tells of Schwab's Displeasure.

Q.—"At that time," inquired Representative Tom Connally of Texas, "Mr. Schwab was in no way connected with the Emergency Fleet Corporation?" A.—No, sir.

Q.—Was there anything sensational? A.—"Mr. Schwab was very much put out when the Chairman insisted on retaining the original auditors that I had selected," answered Colonel Abadie, "and he wanted me to reconsider my refusal to have them substituted. He expressed the belief that he could not get a fair audit from Perley Morse & Co. He said he did not believe they were in this for any purpose except sensationalism. I told him that Chairman Payne and I had investigated the Bethlehem charges against Perley Morse & Co. and that the accountants had been told to go ahead with the audit. Mr. Schwab said he would be glad to have me select any other auditors."

The witness said that when he explained the facts to Admiral Benson the Admiral told him that he was glad to hear of the action taken by the General Controller. He quoted the Admiral as saying:

"I am glad you reported that to me. I took the same position in my interview with Mr. Schwab. I told him that I could not change accountants. As the Admiral expressed it, he was glad that my opinion coincided with his."

"How long after that conference," asked Representative Israel M. Foster of Ohio, "was it that Mr. Gillen informed you your resignation would be accepted?"

"I don't know exactly how long, but the date of my resignation was April 1, 1920."

Colonel Abadie was excused, and Mr. Gillen, former assistant to Chairman Payne, was called. He said that he first came into contact with Perley Morse & Co. when Representative George Edwards of Philadelphia told the witness he had written evidence that a great deal of money was being wasted in the settlement of claims against the Emergency Fleet Corporation. Subsequently, the witness said, he was furnished a copy of papers purporting to be an analysis of contracts which the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation had entered into with the Luckenbach Steamship Company. This analysis indicated that some fifty-five items had been improperly charged and was turned over to Colonel Abadie.

Says Lawyer Objected.

A few days later, according to Mr. Gillen, he observed a group of men in front of Judge Payne's office, and one of them he recognized as Paul D. Cravath. As well as he could understand the conversation, Mr. Cravath was complaining about the retention of Perley Morse & Co.

Mr. Gillen said that he met Judge Payne the same night, and the latter told him that Colonel Abadie had shown him certain papers and informed him that millions of dollars were being lost by the Shipping Board because of a lack of a proper audit. He also said that Colonel Abadie had made a contract with Perley Morse & Co. on that same day. A meeting of the commission was called next day by Judge Payne, according to the witness, who said that it finally was concluded that the audit of the Bethlehem accounts should be made.

Representatives of the Bethlehem Corporation came repeatedly to Washington and tried to have the board set aside the Morse audit, and among them, according to Mr. Gillen, were Mr. Schwab and others. He said that the Bethlehem forces refused to admit the auditors, so that representatives of Morse besieged his office.

Mr. Gillen said that one of the representatives of Morse had told him that there was nothing improper about the voucher for $260,000.

Mr. Gillen was questioned about his relations with Colonel Abadie, and in explaining why he had tried to compel the General Controller to sign certification of claims of former owners of requisitioned vessels, which would have meant, according to Colonel Abadie, the loss of approximately $15,000,000 to the Shipping Board, the witness said that he wanted the certification of Colonel Abadie because it was the latter's department that furnished the figures on which these claims were based.

Mr. Gillen disclosed that in the controversy between the accountants and the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation that he was forced to threaten the corporation with commandeering its plants in order to bring about an agreement, so that the audit could proceed.

Mr. Gillen continued his testimony until almost 11 o'clock last night and explained his connection with Joseph Mercadante, President of Nafra Company, Inc., exporters; the Green Star Line, and the Imperial Steamship Company. The witness said that he was not an officer of any of these concerns, but financial adviser to their head. He also made this prediction:

"By the time President Harding appoints the new Shipping Board, all the pioneer ship purchasers will be in bankruptcy unless they find a way out of their present difficulties."

Following adjournment, Mr. Cullen almost came to blows with Captain Franklin Brooks, formerly connected with the Philadelphia office of the Shipping Board, whom Mr. Cullen accused of spreading base reports about him.

The committee went to Washington last night in order to hear the testimony of Charles E. Piez, former Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. They will return tomorrow and resume hearings on Monday.

Physicians Administer Opiates While Firemen Work to Free Them.

Walter Weigand, 5 years old, of 682 St. Ann's Avenue, and Francis Feehan, 7 years old, of 680 St. Ann's Avenue, yesterday afternoon were caught between a freight elevator and the ground floor of the plant of the Ebling Brewing Company, St. Ann's Avenue and 158th Street, the Bronx, and suffered injuries from which it was said later at Lincoln Hospital they probably would die.

The boys were wedged between the elevator and the wall for half an hour while firemen worked with axes to release them. They were conscious most of the time, and Drs. Skater and Pallias of Lincoln Hospital administered several injections of drugs to relieve their pain while the firemen worked to free them.

Says He Never Heard of International Mercantile Marine Agreement With British.

Washington Convention Urges Optimism on Sea Trade and Outlines Policies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—The controversy which was begun when Senator Wesley L. Jones of Washington charged that the International Mercantile Marine, an American corporation, had an agreement with British interests which protected British supremacy on the seas gained headway today and promises to end in an investigation aimed to unearth and make public all secret agreements that may stand in the way of the development of the American merchant marine.

Judge John Barton Payne, Secretary of the Interior and former Chairman of the United States Shipping Board, added an important contribution to the controversy, when he wrote to Senator Jones denying absolutely that while Chairman of the board he had approved the agreement to which Senator Jones objected. He said, further, that he had no knowledge of its existence.

This caused something of a stir, as P. A. S. Franklin, President of the International Mercantile Marine, in a statement yesterday before the National Merchant Marine Association, said that Judge Payne had approved the compact.

Payne's Letter of Denial.

In his letter to Senator Jones Judge Payne wrote:

"My attention has just been called to the statement of Mr. Franklin of the International Mercantile Marine that I approved an agreement between that company and the British Admiralty to the effect that the International Mercantile Marine was to conduct its business in the interest of the British Government and British trade.

"I cannot imagine what Mr. Franklin means by saying that I approved such an agreement. As a matter of fact, I never heard that such an agreement existed.

"General charges were made before us that the International Mercantile Marine was not strictly an American company. I brought these matters to the attention of Mr. Franklin and asked him to appear before the shipping board and make a showing as to the ownership of the International Mercantile Marine.

"He did so. As I remember, Commissioners Donald, Scott and myself were present, besides the Secretary and perhaps others. Mr. Franklin filed a printed document which he stated gave the stock ownership of the International Mercantile Marine; that this ownership was 100 per cent. American; that the only connection between the International Mercantile Marine and Great Britain was that it owned the controlling interest in some British companies which were named and discussed; but that the International Mercantile Marine was wholly American and was entirely independent of Great Britain."

Board Copy Not Discovered.

Admiral W. S. Benson, Chairman of the Shipping Board, was absent from Washington today. At the offices of the board it was stated that the copy of the agreement between the International Mercantile Marine and the British interests, which was said to be on file with the board, had not yet been found. It was admitted, however, that it might be packed away somewhere in the files.

Admiral Benson is determined to find out whether such a document is on file. He said yesterday that he had not heard of it until a few days ago and did not know whether it was among the records of the board. Judge Payne's statement today that he knew nothing about the existence of the agreement added to the mystery. He preceded Admiral Benson as Chairman of the board.

The upshot of the whole affair promises to be a searching investigation to determine who if anybody ever gave approval to the document on behalf of the board. If it is found in the files Admiral Benson is determined to ascertain how it got there.

It is possible that a meeting of the Commissioners of the Shipping Board will be held on Monday or some other day of next week to take up the whole question. Copies of the agreement, which was published in full in THE NEW YORK TIMES today, have now been made available.

Jones Waits on Inquiry.

Senator Jones said tonight that he was satisfied the Shipping Board would get very thoroughly at the facts, and that, pending the investigation promised by Admiral Benson, he would take no action.

"The agreement between the International Mercantile Marine and the British interests which I made public yesterday," he said, "speaks for itself. It is plain enough in its terms, and there can be no getting around it. I have not the slightest doubt that the Shipping Board will give the matter careful consideration and determine upon the policy which it feels is wisest."

The developments attracted no little interest at the capital today and it is almost certain that a Congressional investigation will be called for in the event that the Shipping Board fails to reach conclusions satisfactory to some of the Senators and Representatives in regard to its relations with the International Mercantile Marine should the agreement continue in force. Senator Jones was asked about his attitude in this connection and replied:

"I am not going to cross any bridges until I come to them. I feel certain that the Shipping Board will do what is proper in this matter."

Goodwin Repudiates Charge.

In his address to the National Merchant Marine Association Senator Jones said that among those who wittingly or unwittingly were aiding the British effort to control the seas and defeat the establishment of an effective American merchant marine was the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. Today Elliott H. Goodwin, Vice President of the chamber, appeared before the association.

"I wish in the strongest language at my command to repudiate and deny it," he said, referring to a statement by Senator Jones.

Senator Jones had intimated that articles in the magazine, The Nation's Business, had advocated principles which were in favor of the continuation of British trade supremacy. Mr. Goodwin said that, while The Nation's Business was the organ of the Chamber of Commerce and contained official statements, the opinions in signed articles could not be considered the views of the organization, which are ascertained only by a referendum.

Former Representative William E. Humphrey of Washington, asked if any of the writers paid for the insertion of the articles in The Nation's Business.

"In answering 'No,'" said Mr. Goodwin, "I wish to state that I consider the question as an insult."

The charges made by Senator Jones were referred to directly or indirectly in addresses before the association today. M. J. Saunders of New Orleans, President of the Leyland Steamship Line, deprecated the statement that Great Britain planned a campaign against American commerce, and declared that the two countries must co-operate in the development of foreign markets.

Frank C. Munson, President of the Munson steamship lines, said that commercial wars between the United States and foreign nations for the world's trade supremacy were unnecessary. He said that, on the contrary, the United Convention Outlines Policy.

The sessions of the Merchant Marine Association closed late today with the election of officers and the adoption of resolutions setting forth recommendations for the advancement of the American merchant marine. The resolutions read:

"1. Resolved, By the National Merchant Marine Association that, in order to establish the full practical value of the measure in the development of the new merchant shipping of the United States, we strongly urge the immediate and faithful enforcement of the Merchant Marine act of 1920.

"2. Resolved, That the personnel of the United States Shipping Board be put upon a basis of permanency, in order that a constructive administrative policy may be carried out in the application of the law.

"3. Resolved, That private American enterprise must be encouraged to engage in shipping through the means of national aid wherever found necessary by the shipping board to the end that American ships under the American flag may operate in competition with foreign ships in the same trades.

"4. Resolved, That in order that the farmers, manufacturers and other producers of this country shall be enabled to compete successfully in foreign markets, and in order that ultimately our merchant marine shall be privately owned by citizens of all sections, we urge that it should be decided what new mail, passenger and cargo routes are to be established and operated by the shipping board from our various ports, and that arrangements should be made accordingly for their present and future development, with a view to the purchase of routes and ships as soon as practicable by companies and individuals, selected wherever possible from their respective sections or ports.

"5. Resolved, That wherever reasonably adequate services are already being performed by privately owned ships or by Government owned ships in the hands of private operators the Shipping Board be urged to cease to allocate further tonnage to these particular routes, so that the concerns already in these trades may have a fair chance of development.

"6. Resolved, That it is evident that the high prices at which Shipping Board vessels have been sold to purchasers are providing an excessive burden on American operating companies in competition with the ships of foreign nations, and that we, therefore, urge that an equitable plan of relief be devised and applied in these cases by the Shipping Board.

"7. Resolved, That we heartily approve the present policy of enrolling in the naval reserve competent American officers and men of the merchant marine, and that we recommend that this policy be broadened and made permanent by the Navy Department and by Congress.

"8. Resolved, That in the interest of the navy and the merchant marine alike, in which so many young men of the Middle West are serving, we urge that the important naval training station on the Great Lakes be not abandoned by the Government.

"9. We deplore pessimism and destructive criticism and we respectfully urge upon Congress and upon the people of the United States a spirit of constructive co-operation, a spirit of optimism and a firm determination to achieve, in spite of all difficulties, our national purpose of developing and maintaining an American merchant marine for the national defense and for the proper growth of our foreign and domestic commerce."

PAYNE ORDERED AUDIT OF BETHLEHEM BOOKS

First Opposed Letting Work to Perley Morse & Co., but Then Approved the Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Judge John Barton Payne, Secretary of the Interior and former Chairman of the United States Shipping Board, made his contribution tonight to the controversy stirred up by evidence taken before the Congressional Committee which is investigating the activities of the Shipping Board.

Judge Payne discussed the circumstances under which the audit was authorized by the firm of Perley Morse & Co. of the Shipping Board's account and referred to the trouble with the Bethlehem interests.

"Colonel Abadie presented to me a written statement (probably in February, 1920) recommending that the books of the Bethlehem Steamship Company be audited," he said. "At that time Colonel Abadie was general controller in charge of the accounting for the Shipping Board and had approximately 5,000 men on his payroll. I immediately issued an order directing that the audit be made, assuming that Colonel Abadie would have the audit made by his own accountants.

"In a few days I was informed by the Treasurer that Colonel Abadie had made a contract with Perley Morse & Co. to do this audit and that the expense would likely be in the neighborhood of $500,000. I immediately telegraphed Perley Morse & Co. not to proceed and directed Colonel Abadie to make the audit with his own force. This resulted in an interview between Perley Morse and myself and with Colonel Abadie, and after giving consideration to the matter I decided that, notwithstanding the cost, it would be wise to permit Morse to proceed with the audit. Charges meantime were preferred against Morse by the Bethlehem people and a hearing was had. This was participated in by Commissioners Donald, Stevens, Scott and myself. The result was that we declined to interfere with Morse and directed him to proceed with the audit. The Bethlehem people then declined to permit Morse to have access to their books. When this came to my knowledge I notified the Bethlehem Company that they must submit their books to Morse for audit and that we would charge the company for all of the expense occasioned by their refusal. Morse and his men were meantime idle because of the refusal of the Bethlehem Company to permit the audit to proceed. It was this expense that I insisted should be charged against the Bethlehem Company. This was the status of the case when I left the Shipping Board.

"The voucher to which Colonel Abadie refers was not called to my attention and did not figure in any of the proceedings with reference to the audit. There was a general statement made that large sums had been included in the expense items which were not properly chargeable against ship construction."

PREDICT HYLAN CANDIDACY.

Report Follows Invitation to Business Men's League Meeting.

That Mayor Hylan intends to become a candidate for re-election was reported in political circles yesterday following the receipt of invitations to attend a political meeting sent out by the Business Men's League, the organization which put the Mayor forward as a candidate in the last campaign. According to the invitations the meeting is to be held next Monday night, Jan. 24, in the Imperial Restaurant, Fulton Street and Red Hook Lane, Brooklyn.

The invitations were signed by Charles I. Stengle, Secretary of the Civil Service Commission, a personal friend of the Mayor, and Henry A. Meyer, Deputy Dock Commissioner, also considered friendly to the Mayor. It is expected that fifty persons, many of whom were in the organization four years ago, will be present, and that plans for furthering the Mayor's candidacy will be discussed. The organization has no political connection with Tammany Hall, but it was said that Tammany would be willing to again indorse the Mayor.

AND LABOR LEADERS

$50,000,000 LOSS ALLEGED

Unions, Mill Owners and Contractors Charged With Causing $5,000,000 Increase in Rents in Year.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Forty-seven indictments against labor union chiefs, mill owners and carpenter contractors, charging violation of the anti-trust section of the Sherman law, were returned today by the Grand Jury before Federal Judge Carpenter.

In a special report the jury characterized building conditions in Chicago as deplorable and recommended a thorough investigation of the entire building trades industry. Government agents declared the alleged combination had driven $50,000,000 in outside business in mill work alone from Chicago in the last three years. This had caused increases of from $2,000,000 to $5,000,000 a year in rentals, they said.

An agreement entered into by the millmen, Carpenter Contractors' Association and members of the building trades in 1918 formed the basis for the Grand Jury action. This provided that only union-made materials could be used on jobs done by union labor.

The Grand Jury charged that "the defendants manufacture practically all of the building material manufactured in Chicago and in order to monopolize the business of supplying builders and building contractors in Chicago with such building materials, and to secure excessive prices for their building material, they engaged in a conspiracy among themselves and with the union and contractors.

"That, as a direct result of the conspiracy, many manufacturers of building materials outside of Illinois were excluded from this market in which they sold materials for years prior to the Spring of 1918."

Leading the list of indicted labor leaders is William F. Brims, President of the Carpenters' District Council, and F. C. Bromley, business agent of the Carpenters' Union. Others in the labor list were: Stanley Muszalski, B. J. G. Wittman, Anton Sommers, James Smith, Joseph B. Fox, Joseph Dusek, John Loris, Thomas F. Flynn, W. G. Schardt, William C. White, Daniel J. Ryan, Joseph Veltman, Charles Wright and Thomas Church.

The contractors indicted were: D. H. Doyle, A. C. Wehrwein, Frank E. Doherty, William J. Scown, Frank M. Spressenetter and T. J. McGimsie.

The manufacturers indicted include Andrews Lumber and Mill Company, R. W. Bartelmann Company, Bock Coal and Lumber Company, Harvey, Ill.; California Manufacturing Company, Chicago and Riverdale Company, Commercial Sash and Door Company, A. Unions Defend Wage Stand.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21 (Associated Press).—In a statement issued today by the Chicago Building Trades Council, reasons are set forth why the thirty-two affiliated unions voted not to accept any reductions in their present wage scales within the next three years. It was decided to insist on continuation of the present $1.25 an hour wage for union building workers at a meeting of their business agents yesterday.

President Thomas S. Kearney of the council said that prior to the war 80,000 workmen in Chicago were members of unions affiliated with the council. This number had been reduced to 50,000, only 40 per cent. of them being employed, and a large number having entered more remunerative work.

"If committees appointed to rectify housing conditions would lay off hanging crepe," Mr. Kearney added, "the building industry would boom and within six or eight months there would be plenty of homes for everyone. At present people are confused by the reports made by these committees and refuse to build. Some say they intend to wait until the cost of material is reduced. Instead of decreasing, the price of material will increase.

"It is contended by some that in the readjustment labor should participate by offering its services at a lower wage in order to bring about production; that labor should suffer with all lines of business. Labor has suffered and is suffering now because wages have not kept pace with the increased cost of living.

"A full, honest day's work should be furnished by labor. We all know there have been abuses on the part of tradesmen, manufacturers and financial people who have taken advantage of conditions. The building trades have thrashed out this subject and agreed that any workman who does not do a full, honest day's work will be disciplined by his organization."

Deported 'Envoy,' on Eve of Departure, Denies Russia Is Planning Attacks.

QUOTES TCHITCHERIN CABLE

In Farewell Interview Says "Economic Situation" Points to Resumption of Trade With America.

On the eve of his departure for Moscow in accordance with the deportation order of the Government, Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, "unrecognized Ambassador" from Soviet Russia to the United States, gave a farewell interview to THE TIMES yesterday, in which he disclosed his views on military, economic and political questions affecting his country. In answer to a question as to how much gold Soviet Russia had sent abroad for commercial purposes, Mr. Martens replied that he did not know exactly, although he recalled specific amounts running into the millions in several instances.

"What are the prospects of amicable relations between the Russian Soviet Government and the American Government after the Harding administration comes in?" he was asked.

"Every day the American people are realizing more clearly the urgent importance of resuming normal relations with Russia," was the only reply Mr. Martens would give to this question.

"What is the outlook for early trade relations between Russia and the United States, and what are the methods by which trade could be re-established?"

"America's need for foreign markets, every phase of the present economic and industrial situation, point to the resumption of trade with Russia. The way to resume is to resume."

Regarding the outlook for agreements with Great Britain and France, Mr. Martens said that a trade agreement was in process of negotiation with Britain, while France remained the chief support of counter-revolution and invasion against Russia.

"In what directions have improvements of conditions in Russia been most marked in the last year?"

"The defeat of counter-revolution and invasion, the restoration of transport, the fight against disease, the care of children and the education of the masses," Mr. Martens said.

"What are the Russian Government's intentions as to agreements with other nations, political and economic?" he was asked.

"The Russian Government desires peaceful political and economic agreements with all nations who will leave her unmolested."

"What is the Soviet Government's attitude toward war debts?"

"That is a subject for negotiation," he replied. "If Soviet Russia has a bill to pay, Soviet Russia also has a bill to collect."

"Will you say anything about rumors of proposed military offensives and alleged plans to extend Soviet Government to new areas?"

"Such news is false," he declared. "Let me read you a cable dated Jan. 12 from Tchitcherin, Commissar for Foreign Affairs, which says: 'Emphatically deny rumors in the American press alleging mobilization against Rumania, Poland or any other country. We want peace and chance to work.'"

Asked to tell what was the opinion of Soviet leaders on the prospect of spreading their economic principles over the world, Mr. Martens replied:

"The spread of communism depends upon the social and economic conditions in any given counry. Revolutions are not made by agitators, but by industrial collapse and social discontent. In a sense, communism cannot be 'spread'; it grows only when the soil is fertile, and then it grows rapidly and spontaneously."

Mr. Martens said the anti-Soviet elements in Russia had no status since Wrangel's collapse. Wrangel's effort was the last organized movement on the soil of Russia against the Soviet Government, and it was organized in Paris, which was the reason it failed, he added.

"Who are the former war celebrities now serving in the Soviet army?"

"Several million Russian soldiers and a few Generals," was the answer.

"In making a commercial agreement with the United States would Russia insist on the exemption from attachment of goods formerly the property of private owners, but now nationalized, which might be sent to America for barter?"

"Your question is not quite clear, but it is obvious that satisfactory trade relations cannot be arranged if gold or goods of Russian origin are subject to attachment. The Czar was the 'private owner' of much of the products of the soil and forest which Russia has to sell. Will foreign courts insist on his inalienable title to those goods?"

In answer to another question Mr. Martens said that the Soviet Government contemplated the return to Rumania of the Rumanian gold reserve "as soon as Rumania is ready to negotiate the outstanding matters at issue between Russia and Rumania."

"Would Russia prefer to conclude individual trade agreements with England, America and other countries or a general conference looking to trade agreements with all nations?" was asked.

"The method is not important," Mr. Martens replied. "The sincerity of the Government entering into the agreements would be the test."

"What is your opinion on international among individuals without recognition?"

"The foreign trade of Russia is nationalized," Mr. Martens concluded. "Foreign trading with individual Russians is impossible. If a method of trading with the Soviet Government can be arranged without formal recognition, we shall not insist upon all the diplomatic etiquette. We have never made formal recognition a prerequisite to trade."

There was great activity at the local office of the Soviet Government Bureau, 110 West Fortieth Street, yesterday, preparatory to the exodus of Martens and his associates who will accompany him back to Moscow.

NO BREAD IN WARSAW; NATION'S OUTLOOK DARK

Geneva Gets Report of Serious Situation Existing in Poland.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Jan. 21.—News has just reached Geneva from Warsaw that the city is without bread. Of its seven bakeries only one gets flour, and in December the Municipal Foods Supply Office received only one-tenth of the quantity of flour necessary. Food Minister Sliwinsky resigned in desperation. The city is expecting 100 truckloads of flour from Danzig, which, however, is barely enough for one week.

Since Sliwinsky's resignation the food supply organization has collapsed, but what is more serious is that the fields are mostly lying fallow because the farmers have neither laborers, agricultural machinery nor manures, and nothing is being done to insure a harvest next Summer.

Fully half a million able-bodied men are under arms and therefore consuming food which they do not produce and in which the civilian population ought to share. It is asserted that 170,000 Polish soldiers are being kept ready to march into Upper Silesia should the plebiscite shortly to be held there be against this province belonging to Poland. The Polish military party in Cracow and Lemberg has made preparations accordingly.

The Upper Silesians themselves are, generally speaking, neither Poles nor Germans, and feel themselves between the hammer and the anvil. Should the Poles attempt a coup d'état, as in the case of Vilna, there are no military forces in, or even near, Upper Silesia to hold them up.

Save for her army, Poland is not now in a better position than Austria as regards either finance, trade, food supply or organization and order generally.

GERMANS SEND BOOKS TO MANY SWISS HOMES

BERNE, Jan. 21.—Revival of German propaganda has been for some time past noticeable in Switzerland. The latest form of this is to send by post books, especially Ludendorff's and Hindenburg's recollections of the war, Bethmann Hollweg's reflections upon the war and Hamman's book about the ex-Kaiser and similar publications to thousands of leading Swiss personages. These parcels of books neither bear nor contain any indication of the sender. To buy these books now in Switzerland would cost from $3 to $4 each.

It is stated that money for this costly form of propaganda comes from American citizens of German origin.

Even the Berne newspaper Der Bund, which, during the war, was the main supporter in Switzerland of the German General Staff, is greatly shocked at this resumption of German propaganda efforts and publishes a leading article protesting against it. The German Legation in Berne denies all knowledge of this propaganda.

It is estimated that fully 100,000 copies of Bethmann Hollweg's book and of Hamman's volume have reached Swiss households as gifts from unknown donors.

HELD FOR WORCESTER FIRE.

Father and Son Accused of Starting Blaze in Store.

WORCESTER, Mass., Jan. 21.—Oscar F. Willgrodt, 65 years old, proprietor of Will & Co.'s store at 336 Main Street, on the ground floor of the ten-story State Mutual Building, and his son Hugo, 26 years old, were arrested this afternoon by State police officers on capiases issued by the Superior Court, charged with setting fire to the store on Wednesday night. The arrests followed secret indictments returned by the Grand Jury today.

The Willgrodts were arraigned before Judge Thayer in Superior Criminal Court, where they pleaded not guilty and were held in $4,000 bonds each for appearance in the criminal session which will open next Monday.

The police charge that the fire, which was nipped in the bud, was a culmination of a series of other bad fires set in three different parts of the store, partly burned candles and charred remnants of accounts of the store being found in an investigation made yesterday.

TRADE WITH RUSSIA

HAS DOUBTS EXPORTS EXIST

London Negotiations a "Tragi-Comedy"—American Pathfinders Likely to Be Disappointed.

BERLIN, Jan. 21 (Associated Press).—In a lengthy statement read before the Reichstag this afternoon Dr. Walter Simons, the Foreign Secretary, explained the Government's position with respect to resumption of diplomatic and trade relations with Soviet Russia.

The official declaration came in response to an interpellation presented by the Independent Socialists, who demanded to know what steps the Government purposed to take to establish relations with Germany's eastern neighbor, "which are equally profitable and necessary for both countries."

In supporting the interpellation Arthur Crispien, the Independent Socialist leader, who was one of the four delegates his party sent to the Third Internationale at Moscow, compared Russia to the United States, Canada and Argentina in respect to its character as an export nation. Russia, he said, would find Germany a ready market for more than half its exports of food and fodder.

"If exploitation of these vast natural resources hitherto has been impossible, this is accounted for in the hatred which the bourgeoisie classes bear against Bolshevism and socialism in general," said Herr Crispien.

The speaker told the members of the Reichstag that the Russian peasants were holding unthreshed wheat which represented a yield of five harvests. Europe, he said, now was under the economic domination of the victorious nations, led by the United States. Herr Crispien said he believed a resumption of trade relations would have to be established on a barter basis, even if the Russian gold supply was now greater than in peace times, owing to the fact that the former Emperor's private fortune and jewels were in the possession of the Government.

Foreign Minister's Reply.

Answering the interpellation, Dr. Simons said:

"The German Government has not been able to alter the conditions which have complicated political and trade intercourse with Russia throughout the whole world. The reason for this is found primarily in the complete evolution of Russia from her former economic system, her artificial isolation from the sea, her inaccessibility by land and the total collapse of the Russian transportation facilities. The final obstacle is found in the Soviet Government's principles governing international trade and its attitude with respect to revolutionary propaganda."

The reasons why Germany had not yet resumed relations with Soviet Russia, Dr. Simons added, were explained by the Moscow Government's failure to make due amends for the murder of Count von Mirbach, the German Ambassador to Russia, and also the persistency with which the Soviet régime had attempted to carry on political agitation in Germany. The Foreign Minister accused M. Zinovieff (former Bolshevist Governor of Petrograd) and M. Losowsky (one of the Bolshevist leaders who was expelled from Germany) with flagrant breaches of German hospitality.

Dr. Simons charged that despite repeated assurances which had been given the Berlin Government the Mirbach incident had not yet received serious attention from the Moscow Government.

Reverting to attempted resumption of trade relations through unofficial sources, Dr. Simons stated that progress in this direction could not be expected until the Russian Government and people were able to produce tangible evidence that they were in possession of export commodities, that the Russian transportation system had received needed improvement and that the East had ceased to be a theatre of war.

The Russian methods of negotiating also were keeping other nations aloof, said Dr. Simons, in answer to an inquiry of the Independent Socialists why the German Government had failed to enter into official negotiations with the Soviet.

"Tragi-Comedy" in London Negotiations.

"I would remind you of the tragi-comedy of the Anglo-Russian negotiations, which constantly are being resumed and equally as often being broken off just when they are about to be concluded," said Dr. Simons.

Referring to alleged concessions obtained by Americans in Siberia, Dr. Simons observed that optimistic reports brought back by American "commercial pathfinders" probably would not be realized in their entirety. He said he believed none of the nations now carrying on negotiations with Russia would be able to carry out their trade plans without the aid of Germany, and that none of them would be able to dispense with German labor in connection with their Russian aspirations.

"It is not our business either to overthrow or to support the Soviet Government," said Dr. Simons. "Instead, we must concern ourselves with the problem how the Russian people, together with ourselves, can extricate themselves from their present economic misery."

In the debate which followed, a speaker for the Majority Socialists said: "Violent anti-Bolshevism is the best support for Bolshevism. Bolshevism can be overthrown only after Russia has resumed relations with the rest of the world."

A National People's Party Deputy issued a warning against doing business with Russia on faith and confidence, inasmuch, he said, as all guarantees of security are lacking.

gation. He then proceeds to the provincial unemployment bureau, where after due examination he receives a further certificate to the effect that no work can be found for him.

The next stage is the municipal assistance office, where the genuineness of his need is further investigated and certified, the latter certificate entitling its holder to free breakfast and supper for a week, unless employment is found for him in the meantime. At the end of this period the process of registration and investigation must be repeated.

TOLEDO GIVES FREE MEALS.

Detroit Appropriates $250,000 to Help the Unemployed.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Jan. 21.—The first free meals to be served to unemployed men of Toledo were taken advantage of today by more than 1,200 applicants, it was announced at the Social Service Federation, which is giving out 1,500 tickets. The meals were served in a public market place. Tickets also were issued for 1,000 pounds of fish and 100 pecks of potatoes for the men to take to their families.

John R. Cowell, city Emergency Labor Commissioner, reiterated a statement that "at least 10,000 people in Toledo are mighty close to the starving line."

Nearly 200 more were added to the list of unemployed today when a reduction in forces of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company went into effect. Twenty-five per cent. of the freight crews of the Pennsylvania Lines over the Toledo & Mansfield Division were laid off, and clerks in the Toledo freight office were put on a five-day-week basis.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union, through Mrs. Lulu T. Gleason, volunteered today to enlist the 1,200 women of the organization to feed hungry men, women and children.

Work at odd jobs was provided for about 200 men today, Mr. Cowell announced.

DETROIT, Jan. 21.—A slight improvement in the unemployment situation in the Detroit area was reported today by the Employers' Association, which includes seventy-nine of the larger factories. About 3,600 men were put to work by members of the association and smaller firms during the week, it was estimated. This shows a decrease of approximately 5,000 in the unemployed here as compared with two weeks ago, when the number was placed at 100,000.

Along with the employers' report came announcement that the City Council had appropriated $250,000 for relief of the jobless. The fund is to be administered by the City Welfare Commission.

The Maxwell-Chalmers Corporation announced today that 450 additional workers had been hired during the week and that a substantial number would be added next week. This was the only direct statement issued by any of the larger factories, although it was unofficially said several departments of the Cadillac plant would reopen Monday.

MORE RAIL MEN LAID OFF.

Reading and Pennsylvania Lines Continue Cutting Down Forces.

READING, Pa., Jan. 21.—During the last week 301 more trackmen have been dropped on the Reading Railway system. This does not include those previously suspended. All of the track laborers are now on five eight-hour days a week.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Jan. 21.—Retrenchment figures on the Williamsport Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, announced today, show 1,300 men have been dropped in the last few days. This represents a cut of 24 per cent. since November.

ALTOONA, Pa., Jan. 21.—Seven hundred additional Pennsylvania Railroad employes will be paid off here, according to a letter received today from G. L. Peck, Vice President in charge of personnel. Some of the men already have received the customary five days' notice. With those laid off last Fall, the latest retrenchment order brings the total dismissed here up to 2,050.

CUTS TIME FOR WORKERS.

Pennsylvania Road Drops Technical Men One Day a Week.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 21.—Officials of the central region of the Pennsylvania Railroad announced here tonight that about 1,500 technical men would be given a holiday of one day each week during the freight and passenger depression.

The total number of employes in the central region of the Pennsylvania Railroad was 88,000 when retrenchment orders were first put into operation.

Under a previous order of the road 20 per cent. of the 88,000 workers are being laid off during the period of depression. The great majority of those affected under this order are in the operating and maintenance departments.

"The great American associations had spun the golden web of charity toward the starving children of Europe months ago. Today we have a charge upon us of 3,500,000 people. We are asking the American people for this sum. But when we ask, we have to beg, and we have to ask not only once but twice and thrice. We seem to have lost our national perspective. Many do not realize this call. There is nothing that so maddens men as to see their children perishing about them.

"Peace itself is not made by documents. Peace is made by good will among men.

"We are asking for $33,000,000, that we may at least keep the foundations of peace in Europe. We have not succeeded—and we have been begging a month. Of this great mass of children some will perish and some will survive. Those who survive will fill our jails or the jails of Europe twenty years hence.

"If we place this issue on its very lowest plane, this is the cheapest protection that America ever bought. The call of hungry children—that is a call which needs no picturing to the American heart."

Raymond B. Fosdick pleaded not for "the" League of Nations but "a" League of Nations. "Europe as we know it is completely disorganized," said Mr. Fosdick.

"It seems to me the best thing to do is to sit around a table and discuss a settlement. We hoped that the lion and the lamb were going to lie down together, but they have not done so.

"I believe we are facing a crossroads as far as our relationship to the nations of the world is concerned. If there is anything that will prevent the recurrence of such a horror as the war we have just been through, for God's sake let's get busy."

Anthony J. Drexel Biddle said there were 4,000,000 men who were coming back into the Bible classes.

"It used to be when I went so wild over the work fourteen years ago," he said, "that I would almost pay an athlete to come to my Bible class just to show the 'boys' that it was a man's job."

Carl W. Hamilton told a story of his rise from a childhood of poverty and said his mother washed for the family's living. He related his struggles to get an education, but said he had made his way through Harvard. He announced he was going to China to do missionary work.

Letters From Harding and Coolidge.

Mr. Rockefeller read letters of regret from President-elect Warren G. Harding and Vice President-elect Calvin Coolidge and General Pershing. Senator Harding said in part:

"I have before me your letter of Dec. 4 in which you convey to me an invitation to address the Young Men's Bible Class of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church at a convenient date between Jan. 12 and Jan. 30. The invitation is very appealing, not only because of my interest in all Baptist organizations, but because I have heard of this very notable class and of some of its memorable meetings. If circumstances would only justify it, I should be happy to say I would attend the annual banquet. I am obliged to say that such a pleasure does not seem to be possible.

"I have committed myself to a program in which I think the public is very much interested in having me make good. I am facing all the tremendous tasks which come of contemplated acceptance of great responsibilities, and I have reached the reluctant conclusion that I must forego all speechmaking in order to concentrate my attention on the work which it is necessary to do.

"I would like to say to the members of the class that I greatly appreciate this invitation and that I am going to entertain the hope that on some future occasion, when other matters are not so urgent, I may have that pleasure."

Germany Would Be Asked to Pay 3,000,000,000 Gold Marks a Year Under His Plan.

READY TO MEET BRITISH

"A Fool's Bargain," He Says, to Settle Germany's Account at Her Lowest Strength.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 21.—At the close of the debate tonight Premier Briand received a vote of confidence in the French Chamber of Deputies of 475 to 68, one of the strongest confidence votes ever given to a French Government. Thus he will enter the interallied negotiations next week with the full backing of Parliament.

Leaders of the parties made it plain, however, that they would not hesitate to overthrow Briand if he failed to get results in the reparation negotiations.

Replying to an interpellation in the Chamber, Premier Briand late today let it be known that at the interallied conference next week he would continue the fight of France to delay beyond May 1 the fixing of the total German indemnity. This marks an important change of attitude on his part which may or may not mean a play for position in facing Lloyd George on Monday.

The reason given by M. Briand was the same so often voiced by French statesmen, namely, that with Germany at low ebb it was no time to estimate what she could pay. While indefinite in his statements, he indicated that he would favor fixing what Germany owed theoretically, and later fixing what she could pay, insisting for the present on five annuities of 3,000,000,000 gold marks each.

In his declaration yesterday M. Briand was very indefinite about the German indemnity. Some Deputies, notably Lougeot, demanded specific statements on what Briand intended to do. It was in reply that the Premier said today:

"From a business point of view it is the worst possible moment to estimate Germany's ability to pay, because she is now at her lowest. To make a definite settlement now would be a fool's bargain. Germany has faculties of production, she is working hard, she will recover. We must agree on how to obtain the maximum payment. Germany having attacked us and sentenced us to misery, to let her rebuild her fortune while we perish is a result we cannot admit.

"It is said abroad that because France does not fix her bill she is imperialist. Before all the world I say that is false. France is patient, but her patience must not be construed as weakness."

M. Briand then went on to say that it would be a scandal if Germany escaped payment of the indemnity due France; however, he cautioned moderation, saying, "For a country which has suffered as France has, it is foolish to wish to use force before the exhausting of all other methods."

M. Briand said that some Deputies seemed skeptical of the results he would obtain. He bade them wait and throw down the Government if they were disappointed. He repeated his plea for solidarity with England, declaring, "During the war it was the dispersion of allied effort which made Germany strong. If we had not had the united command we would have lost the war. We must have the same unity of action upon the front of peace. The advantage of this union is that once the indemnity is fixed sanctions will be agreed on in full accord and Germany then cannot escape payment."

"Such a statement is untrue," he added, "and France today, more than at any other time, is entitled to the confidence of the rest of the world. She fought, suffered, was burned, pillaged and drenched in blood, and yet she accepts in spite of her lack of strength the many impossibilities imposed on her."

Referring to the policy toward Germany, Premier Briand said the Government would exhaust all resources before it used force, and then only in accord with her allies, against the former enemy. He believed the Allies should immediately establish the financial possibilities of Germany and then set up a forfeit which would bind the Allies in future.

Although the German treasury was empty, M. Briand declared that many private persons in Germany had enriched themselves and that contact must be established between these and the German Government to permit the latter to pay the indemnity.

After dealing with France's internal questions, he said he would support the project for resumption of relations with the Vatican.

Briand Promises "Realities."

PARIS, Jan. 21 (Associated Press).—At the outset of his speech tonight M. Briand told the Chamber that it must give the new Government a clean-cut vote of confidence "at this critical time when the policies of France probably will be pledged for the next two years."

M. Briand asserted that the French people had come to the point where they wanted realities and not words.

"We have had formulas of truth for two years, but no indemnities," he declared. "It would be the greatest travesty of justice if the attackers of civilization were to be let off without payment for their crimes."

Denial was made by the Premier of the charge that France had not stated the extent of her claims so that she might "extort brutal payment from Germany by force."

PLOT TO TAKE LIFE OF LLOYD GEORGE

plications and the uproar in England that an attempt to assassinate Lloyd George in Paris would cause, there is a side of the question that concerns Ireland alone. At the present moment a large number of Sinn Fein adherents are eager to come to terms with the British. We needn't discuss why, but it is so. The extremists, on the other hand, are opposed to all compromise. We know they are desperate men who will stick at nothing. Now, what would be the first effects of an attack on Lloyd George? Obviously, renewed severity on the part of the British in Ireland. The event would have the double effect of smashing the peace negotiations and of driving waverers, as a result of the persecution, back into the extremist fold. That is what the British are afraid of. Every one who knows Lloyd George is aware that he is devoid of personal fear. But so much depends upon his life that no precautions should be neglected."

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 21.—Shir Singh, 27 years old, an Indian student, was murdered last night at his residence in Charlottenburg in circumstances pointing to political motives.

Singh came to Berlin in 1915 from the United States, and immediately began to participate in vigorous agitation against England. His conduct caused suspicion and he was interned for some time. Later his friends succeeded in convincing the German secret police of his sincerity, and he was then employed in various ways by the German authorities, working even for the Foreign Office.

About a year ago Singh married the daughter of a Berlin master carpenter, but this marriage is said not to have been very happy. A few days ago he became ill and was removed to a separate room on the ground floor of his father-in-law's house.

This morning his mother-in-law found him dead in his bed, which was soaked with blood flowing from a wound in the back of his head, while a cord around his neck proved that an attempt had been made to strangle him. Several leather trunks containing documents in the English, German and Hindu languages had been cut open and the room was strewn with papers. Evidently the criminals had entered the room by a window leading to a courtyard, which was still open, and left by the same way.

It was stated today that Singh, who was a native of Sialkot, India, passed here under various names, and, while ostensibly studying dentistry, was known to others as a manufacturer of chocolate. His principal occupation seems to have been political agitation against England. Singh was an extreme believer in Indian independence, and belonged to an Indian organization which was suspected of close connection with certain anti-English organizations in America. He often went on secret voyages and seemed to have plenty of money.

Formerly a Propagandist Here.

Shir Singh, who claimed to be a younger brother of Kunwar, Maharaj Singh, second son and heir of the Rajah of Kapurthala, was well known in the offices of the larger American newspapers from 1913 through the first few months of the war. He was an active and persuasive propagandist to discredit British rule in India.

Whenever an article appeared in a paper or magazine giving an exposition of British rule favorable to the Indian Office or the Government at Delhi, Shir Singh would appear and offer to write an article "telling the truth." Although then only 20 or 21 years of age, he wore a full black beard. His visiting card bore the words, "Always on the Wing," which he said was the translation of his name.

ITALIAN COMMUNISTS SPLIT FROM SOCIALISTS

LEGHORN, Italy, Jan. 21 (Associated Press).—The communist actfion of the Italian Socialist Party, defeated in its attempt to secure endorsement by the party of the Third Internationale of Moscow, bolted the Socialist convention here this morning.

The communists on quitting the convention formed the Italian Communist Party, which advocates violence if necessary to attain its ends.

The vote on the question of joining the Moscow Internationale, taken yesterday, was officially announced this forenoon. The figures, representing the number of party members for whom the delegates cast their votes, were as follows:

Socialists (against adherence), 112,241.

Communists (for adherence), 58,900.

After the announcement had been made Amadeo Bordiga, leader of the communists, mounted the platform and said:

"The communists are not going to check up the votes, but they know there were irregularities in the voting."

Since the opening of the congress last Saturday a break in the ranks of the organization has been expected, and Deputy Bombacci, it was announced early this week, made arrangements to lease a theatre, in which the new Italian Communist Party would be organized.

"We who are in the minority," Bordiga continued, "are not going to accept this vote. We further declare that the attitude of the majority places them outside the Third Internationale. We prefer to adhere to the Third Internationale and to remain and fight the battle of the proletariat. Therefore, we announce that the Communists will leave this hall and congregate in St. Mark's Theatre, where a new Italian Communist party will be formed. Hurrah for the Communists!"

The Communists heartily applauded the remarks of Signor Bordiga and then rose and sang loudly the "Internationale," and filed out of the hall. The Socialists, meantime, remained quiet and gave no offense.

The Socialists then set to work to wind up the business of their congress, going over the routine reports, electing an executive committee and carrying out other details. The Communists began their meeting at St. Mark's Theatre by organizing their party. Both conventions were hurrying today to finish up routine work. Large numbers of the delegates were leaving the city.

The Socialist organization will retain its newspaper, the treasury and co-operative enterprises. The leaders of the new party will be Signor Bordiga and Deputies Bombacci and Graziadei. Graziadei is a professor, Bordiga is a young engineer and Bombacci a school teacher.

The Communists later elected an Executive Committee, which included Bombaci, Bordiga, Terracini and Graziadei. After listening to greetings from Communists of Bulgaria, England, Norway and Switzerland, the Communists adjourned to meet in Milan, which will be their headquarters, within three months.

The Socialists continued their session and elected an Executive Committee, consisting of Turati, Serrati, Baratono, Bacci and Passigli. They then set about to complete the details of their organization.

RULES ON DRESS IN OTTAWA.

Police Chief Says Women Can Appear in Tights if Bodies Are Covered

OTTAWA, Jan. 21.—Women may walk down the streets of Ottawa in tights. As long as their bodies are covered there is no law to prevent them. So ruled Inspector McLaughlin of the Police Morality Squad today, following complaint that a woman who was "old enough to know better" had been seen on the main streets with a daringly short skirt.

"The police cannot interfere as long as the body is covered," the Inspector repeated.

Drive Rebels Out After Hard Fighting — Additional Government Troops Sent to City.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, Jan. 21.—A revolutionary attempt to overthrow the Fiume Provisional Government was made yesterday evening, consisting principally of ex-legionaries under the leadership of Riccardo Zanella. The rebel band was quickly joined by the dockers and a battalion of the local garrison. Dividing their forces, they proceeded to seize the Diaz barracks and a big power magazine in the Scurigne Valley. Others disarmed the civic guards and, ascending to the roofs of houses in the main thoroughfares, began firing on passers by.

At 3 o'clock this morning the Government mustered a militia force, which recaptured the barracks after desperate resistance with rifles and bombs. All but fifteen of the rebels succeeded in making good their escape. The number of casualties is not given, but a brief telegram tonight states that at the request of the Government 1,000 Italian Royal Carabineers have entered Fiume city.

Several contradictory reports are rife respecting d'Annunzio's whereabouts. It is, however, generally believed he is sheltered in the Barbarigo Palace in Venice to await the result of the general election, which is to take place at Fiume on Feb. 18.

For a week past the streets of Turin have not been swept, for all municipal services are stopped through strikes, and the interested parties are obliged to do their own public billsticking. At the Royal Opera House the Wagner season was interrupted in the middle of a full house owing to the suspension of the electric plants. Large areas of the Piedmontese capital are plunged in absolute darkness at nightfall.

ARCH-CRIMINALS WIN BERLINERS' SYMPATHY

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 21.—With the white shoulder straps on their prison clothes designating persons accused of murder, two tall, slender men, aged 32 and 25, respectively, appeared today in the Berlin Criminal Court, where they were released from their handcuffs, while simultaneously heavy chains were fixed around their ankles to prevent their escape. They were Berlin's most-talked-of burglars, Emil and Erich Strauss.

Both have very intelligent faces, which, though of prison pallor, give no indication of a life of crime. Their criminal record, however, is long and astonishingly varied, ranging from picking pockets to repeated murders. Only a short while ago the two brothers killed a police Sergeant and wounded another who tried to rearrest them after they had broken jail.

Emil, the elder brother, appeared to be too proud to deny any accusations and would not plead for mercy. When asked by the presiding Judge to tell the story of his life, he astonished everybody present by eloquence, cleverness and complacency far above his education. He never permitted the Judge to interrupt him, but went on unabashed with his story.

He told of his mother, who, he said, drove him out when he was 7 years old, unbefitted for school on cold Winter mornings before school to carry newspapers for a drunken father, who compelled him to commit all kinds of crime when he was hardly 10. Later his foster mother, appointed by law, made him assist young girls to escape from asylums that she might sell them to houses of vice. So this boy grew old in crime before his years.

If of his 32 years he has spent only fourteen years in prison, it has been because no prison could hold him. He nearly always escaped.

"Now, your Honor," Emil concluded, "who is to blame more, those who created the circumstances in which I grew up, or myself personally?"

The audience, which crowded the courtroom to suffocation, sided noisily with the prisoner and cared little for the Judge's threat to clear the hall. Indeed, at one time it seemed that the strong guard of soldiers would have hard work to keep the tremendous crowd outside from rushing the Court House.

In the audience were numerous members of a burglars' club called the Roland. Some crowded between the spectacled judges from other courts and fashionable women from Kurfurstendam, who applauded poetry by Emil Strauss as read by his counsel. At a given signal the members of the Roland Club disappeared, fearing arrest.

The case continues.

CAPTURED SATCHEL TOLD VON KLUCK'S PLAN

French Learned Whole German Scheme in Time to Foil Paris Drive, Says Staff Officer.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The story of the lucky capture of a German officer's satchel which revealed von Kluck's plans to the French staff at the crisis of the first German rush on Paris was told by Lieut. Col. Fagalde, one of the French military attachés here, while lecturing before the Institute Française du Royaume Uni.

During the great retreat the Lieutenant Colonel was at Jonchery on Sept. 1, when there was brought to him a large satchel, which had been taken from the body of a German officer, killed in his automobile by a French patrol. It contained, in addition to food and clothing, blood-stained documents, which showed that he had been to von Kluck's headquarters for instructions and was on his way back.

Tucked away under the food and clothing was a map on which were traced all the movements to be undertaken after Sept. 1 by von Kluck's army. The position of every column was plainly marked, with their heads and rear guards, and the hours of departure and arrival at their destinations.

It was then discovered that von Kluck's plan, already known to the French staff, of marching into the Valley of the Meuse, had been changed into a direct march on Paris, to begin on the morning of Sept. 2.

Lieut. Col. Fagalde at once telephoned this information to General Headquarters and forwarded the map and documents by motor to the same destination. Apparently there is little doubt that to this discovery was mainly due the success of Gallieni's attack on von Kluck's flank, which led up to the victory of the Marne.

Shopkeepers and Farmers Suffer for Attack Near Dublin—Ambush Party Captured.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Jan. 21.—During Thursday night and the hours of yesterday morning some half dozen police barracks were attacked by men in different parts of Tipperary. In each case the attackers, the official reports state, were beaten off without casualties being sustained by the police.

The scenes of the attacks were Golding's Cross, Templemore district, attacked with rifle fire and bombs; Ballinaire and Killenaule, where between 200 and 150 men took part; Dovea, Holy Cross and Sherry, Thurles district, where each garrison was relieved.

A party of ambushers was surprised by auxiliaries on the outskirts of Dublin this morning. After an exchange of shots and a chase over fields five were arrested, one being badly wounded. The official report states:

"At 11:20 o'clock a military lorry of the R. I. C. was ambushed on Drumcondra Road in the vicinity of the bridge over the River Tolka. A party of auxiliaries immediately arrived on the scene and captured five ambushers, all of whom were in possession of arms and bombs. One of the ambushers was badly wounded. The Crown forces suffered no casualties."

This account is supplemented by other information which has come to hand. When the R. I. C. lorry was proceeding at a fast pace from Gormanstown, bombs were thrown. It was subsequently found that a wall near the Petty Sessions House had been loopholed, and it is stated that a store of bombs was found. Two cars of auxiliaries came on the scene to be supported later by an armored car. Men were seen running across some neighboring allotments, and as one section of auxiliaries had taken up positions on the road nearly parallel to the spot ambushed, the fugitives seem to have run into the arms of their captors. It is alleged that the captured revolvers were loaded with dumdum bullets.

Fox Hunters Fired On.

CORK, Jan. 21.—Six men armed with revolvers yesterday attempted to prevent the meet of the United Hunt in the Mallow district of Cork. Major Watt, hunt master, ignored the demand of the raiders to withdraw his hounds from the cover which was being drawn and galloped away followed by members of the hunt, including many women. Shots were fired, but the fox was drawn and the angry revolver men were left standing as the hunt swept off in pursuit.

F. Sharman-Crawford, Justice of the Peace and a well-known Cork brewer, was arrested on Thursday by the military in consequence of some ammunition being found in the safe in his office. He has since been released. L. E. Fluffey, accountant at the brewery, who was found to be in possession of a loaded revolver, is still detained. Both are well-known Unionists and the report of their arrest was at first received with incredulity in Cork.

Sergeant Bloxham was killed and Head Constable Larken was wounded in an ambush near Waterfall, five miles from Cork, this morning. As the two police officers were cycling along Waterfall Road they were fired at from behind a fence. Sergeant Bloxham must have been killed instantly. Though wounded Larken rode on and succeeded in getting to Ballincollin barracks. No trace of the assailants has been discovered.

Reprisals Carried Out Near Dublin.

DUBLIN, Jan. 21 (Associated Press).—After the ambuscade at Glenwood (near Dublin) on Thursday, armed forces invaded the village of Six Mile Bridge, the 400 inhabitants of which were lying awake, fearing reprisals. Four homes of leading shopkeepers were burned or demolished. Likewise great destruction was wrought on some farms in the neighborhood.

CORK, Jan. 21.—An Englishman named Humphries, who with his wife and eight children lived over a shop destroyed by the military yesterday, said today that he was not allowed to remove anything, not even wearing apparel, before the building was blown up. He declared this was in contradiction to the statement made by the officials that time would be given for removal of effects.

Humphries stated that his wife joined him in a plea for time to save a piano, which was a gift to his daughter, but they were ignored. The owner of the shop said he appealed vainly to the officer in charge in behalf of Humphries, explaining he was a conductor and not connected with Irish politics.

BELFAST, Jan. 21.—The clerk of the Tubbercurry Board of Guardians and all the members of the board who could be found today have been placed in the Sligo jail. The charge against them was not disclosed, but it is reported that the board in making up its budget recently provided for the upkeep of the Irish volunteer police.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—"During the first fifteen days of this year," says a bulletin issued by the Sinn Fein, "the armed forces of the English Government have achieved the following successes: Fourteen civilians murdered, including four prisoners, two children and one woman; thirty-two wounded, including seven women; six towns shot up, forty houses and eleven shops wholly or partially destroyed, seven men tortured or flogged, and one creamery, one factory and two public halls destroyed."

DE VALERA URGES IRISH TO STAND BY REPUBLIC

Issues an Address to His Followers on Anniversary of Irish Parliament.

DUBLIN, Jan. 21.—Eamon de Valera, "President of the Irish Republic," in a message to the Irish people, appeals to them to remain steadfast in the republican cause.

"Nobody can be base enough to barter away that for which our noblest have given their lives," he says in the course of the message. "So, though the moment be dark and the world unheeding, confident of final success, let us face the new year of the republic ready to endure whatever may be necessary to win for those coming after us the priceless boon of permanent peace and secure liberty in their native land."

The text of De Valera's message, given out on the occasion of the second anniversary of the assembling of the Dail Eireann, begins:

"I am glad to be with you and to greet and congratulate you on this the second anniversary of the formal confirmation of our nation's undying desire for ancient independence, the foundling of our State on the ascertained will of the people and the giving of practical effect in our own regard to those rational principles universally accepted during the war as the only basis for a lasting peace between the nations.

"The faithfulness with which through two terrible years you have stood firm in the face of ruthless oppression will make the nation shine out as long as human records endure as a glorious exception in this bad period of the abandonment of ideals and conscienceless betrayal.

French Scientist Says That by Cultivating Them in Bile They Lose Power of Infection.

HOPES TO PERFECT VACCINE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 21.—For the last year the Pasteur Institute has been making important experiments toward the perfection of a vaccine against tuberculosis. Professor Calmette of the institute reviewed today for THE NEW YORK TIMES the results of the work up to the present.

"It must not be supposed that we already have a means of shielding humanity against tuberculosis," he said. "We have not got that far. Long and laborious experiments are still necessary. Those I have been able to make so far have been neither numerous enough nor carried on long enough. At present here is what I can say:

"It is possible by cultivating the Koch bacillus in certain nutritive media to modify its character and virulence. This bacillus cultivated in successive series on glycerine media containing bile, although it goes on living and is capable of reproduction, loses the property of infecting man or beast with tuberculosis.

"Inoculation of cultures of these bacili into organs is harmless. It realises bacillifacy infection, but does not produce tuberculosis. Thus tuberculosis infection, nonvirulent and harmless, develops in the organism a particular state of resistance to subsequent virulent infection, whether due to artificial inoculation or prolonged association with tuberculous animals.

"In other words in our test on animals, more particularly in young bovines, virulent tuberculous bacilli are tolerated or thrown out without producing tubercular lesions.

"This bacillus cultivated on a bile medium behaves then like a true vaccine. A single inoculation is sufficient to give immunity for one year at least.

"That is where the matter stands today.

"It is easy to understand these facts, already most interesting, and that they mark a very important progress along the road to anti-tubercular vaccination."

In order that new progress leading to human vaccination may be realized Professor Calmette thinks it indispensable to undertake experiments on big anthropoid apes, such as chimpanzees, whose extreme susceptibility to tuberculosis is well known. But these experiments can only be carried out in the native country of these apes in a climate which allows them to be kept a long time in semi-liberty. He thinks of creating a special laboratory in French Guinea. The Governor General of French West Africa has offered the Pasteur Institute a subvention, but full resources have not yet been realized to organize and maintain permanent scientific missions which will have to conduct experiments on the spot.

IRISH WOMEN HEARD ON HOME TROUBLES

Charges of Fostering Intolerance and Destroying Industry Made Against British.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—The British Government is fostering religious intolerance and suppressing industry in Ireland in an effort to prevent self-determination, Miss Louie Bennett, a Protestant woman from Dublin, today told the unofficial commission investigating conditions in Ireland. Miss Bennett said attacks were made by the British military on Catholic churches and on nuns and priests with the intention of reviving the spirit of religious intolerance as between Catholic and Protestant with the view of preventing Irish opinion from uniting.

In discussing her charges of the suppression of industry, which, she asserted, involved the question of the satisfactory solution of internal problems, the witness described the destruction of creameries and other co-operative industries. It was "a ridiculously foolish policy," she said, "which permitted the destruction of an industry that could sell butter cheaply to the English people who now are forced to pay exorbitant prices."

Testimony in support of Miss Bennett's charges was also given by Miss Caroline M. Townshend. Both are members of the Irish Women's International League, and they presented letters and documents in support of their charges. Some of the letters, Miss Bennett said, were from business men of Belfast, and she added that their lives would be in danger should their names be published in this connection.

Miss Bennett told of two recent alleged forcible entrances into Dublin nunneries, one of which was of an ex-cloistered Catholic order which excluded even relatives of the nuns from visiting the building, allowing communication only through iron-barred doors.

Miss Townshend testified regarding the withdrawal of local grants. These grants, from taxes paid by the Irish, she said, had been "doled-out by England" to support hospitals, asylums and similar institutions, but now are being used to pay members of British armed forces for injury or damage suffered as result of "malicious injury" done by Irish people.

"Policemen have been solemnly awarded hundreds of pounds of this money held back from our hospitals and asylums," Miss Bennett said, also in discussing the subject, "because of kicks in the shins received or alleged to have been received, while arresting a drunken man."

Miss Bennett submitted a report of an inquiry made under Darrell Figgis, Irish author, on the agricultural and industrial resources by authority of the Irish Parliament. The inquiry, she said, was entirely non-political, and many witnesses who furnished information were Unionists."

In spite of this, Miss Bennett said, hearings were constantly interfered with by British military and police. Figgis once was about to be hanged by the soldiers, she said, but he was rescued and the inquiry completed "on the run."

DEMAND SOCIALIZED COAL.

German Trade Union Board Threatens the Government.

BERLIN, Jan. 21.—The Executive Board of the Federation of Trade Unions, which is in session here, has adopted a resolution condemning the Government's attitude toward the problem of nationalizing the coal fields.

The resolution demands that the Government make good its pledge to the workingmen immediately, despite the expert opinion submitted by the Imperial Economic Parliament, which threatened to complicate the carrying out of the whole scheme of socialization. The Federation resolution indicates precisely the method it desires to see followed in transferring the coal fields to the nation. The preamble says:

"All the earth's mineral wealth belongs to the nation, and its exploitation shall be for the common good."

The resolution declares that prices shall be determined according to the interest of consumers and that private participation in the industry shall be wholly eliminated. It concludes with a plain-spoken warning that "the Federation is determined to force the socialization of the coal fields along the lines indicated and expresses its hope that the Government will do all in its power to avoid the grave conflict which would be likely to result from further delay."

NATIONAL UNITY

In Message to South He Says He Wants Policies That Aid Every Section.

CAREFREE DAY ON TRAIN

He Walks a Rail at Tennessee Stop and Issues Statement at Atlanta.

Special to The New York Times.

ON BOARD PRESIDENT-ELECT HARDING'S TRAIN, Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 21.—In response to the request of Clark Howell, editor of The Atlanta Constitution, President-elect Harding gave out this message to the South on the arrival of his train tonight on the way to Florida:

"Of course, I have no message to the people of the South that I would not gladly utter to all the United States.

"Perhaps the South would be interested to know, however, of one ambition which I cherish. I want to be the instrumentality in establishing that complete concord of union which I hold to be essential to the American fulfillment. I realize how the political solidarity of the South followed the unfortunate days of the Civil War. I know how that solidarity has been encouraged on the one hand, and I think I understand the desire to break it on the other hand.

"It is not specifically a Republican ambition. It is rather to be accredited to a desire to establish complete mutuality of purpose and oneness of ambition in America.

"There is little left of the old-time hostility, and there is not any occasion for any section of America to pin its aspirations to the fortunes of one party. I think it is fair to assume that all political parties mean to be best for our common country.

"As a Republican, I believe that many of the Republican policies are calculated to best serve all of America. For instance, I believe there is a great significance in the coming tariff congress to be held in Atlanta.

"I believe most cordially in prospering America first. I do not see how we can retain our home markets, upon which American good fortune must be founded, and at the same time maintain American standards of production and American standards of living unless we make other peoples with lower standards pay for the privilege of trading in the American markets. Ours is the best market in the world, because we are largest in consumption and the ablest to buy.

Wants South to Develope.

"The application lies in a perfectly justifiable ambition to make the Southland as industrially eminent as the States of the North and East. There ought to be the flame of industry here in exceptional significance, because of your vast natural resources. Your people want precisely the same things which are found in the natural ambitions of the North and West.

"There isn't the slightest excuse for a sectional line in America. We are one people, with one flag, and it is folly to allow long-time prejudices to stand in the way of the fullness of understanding and the utmost cordiality of relationship.

"The people of the South are just as much interested as any other geographical location in the development of an American merchant marine. Out of our abundant resources, out of our greater ability to produce, and out of our boasted American efficiency ought to come American eminence in world-wide trade. We ought to send our cargoes from Southland ports just as numerously as we do from Northern and Western ports.

"Of course, as a general rule, we cannot sell where we do not buy, but with a national economic policy, safeguarded in protective tariffs, we can buy the things the production of which is not essential to our own good fortune, and expand our trade with those of whom we buy to supply our own needs which cannot be supplied here at home.

"I am sure the incoming Administration wishes to see, figuratively speaking, every Southern port whitened by the sails of commerce and know that our carriers are taking messages of good will and amity along with our cargoes to all the marts of the earth.

"I should like the people of the South to believe the incoming Administration is highly sympathetic with all its aspirations. I should like your people to believe that as Chief Executive I want to be understood as I myself wish to understand the people of the Southland. In understanding is the avenue to complete accord and concord. Therein we shall find the way to that higher achievement which shall be the fulfillment of our highest aspirations."

Spends Day Free From Care.

For the first time on his travels since the beginning of his campaign last Summer, Mr. Harding spent a day free from rear platform speeches. Passing through Kentucky and Eastern Tennessee this forenoon the President-elect was unrecognized. No crowds gathered at station stops and even passengers on the regular train to which the President-elect's private car and a special car for newspaper correspondents was attached, appeared unaware of Mr. Harding's presence.

The only break in the morning was when a delegation of women, traveling on a special car to Florida, attempted to see Mr. Harding. They were turned away by Secret Service men before the President-elect heard of their call.

At Chattanooga, however, Mr. Harding found a large crowd gazing at his car through the station gate and he stepped out on the platform to show himself.

Mr. Harding arose early and soon called for a stenographer. For virtually the whole morning he dictated replies to correspondents, his last opportunity before he boards Senator Frelinghuysen's houseboat Victoria at St. Augustine tomorrow.

When his train stopped at Oakdale, Tenn., this noon, the President-elect left his car for a turn along the railroad tracks near the station while locomotives were being changed. He was in high spirits, walked a rail without difficulty for thirty or forty feet and spoke of the change from the Wintry atmosphere of Marion.

"Do you think that you could make eighteen holes in bogey?" he asked, sniffing the mild air with his fingers gripped around an imaginary golf stick. Golf and fishing have already taken hold of the President-elect's interest rather than the problems of Cabinet making.

Hopes for Virtual Isolation.

ON BOARD PRESIDENT-ELECT HARDING'S TRAIN, Jan. 21 (Associated Press).—Arriving at St. Augustine shortly before noon tomorrow, Mr. Harding expects to get into vacation clothes at once, and, after a game of golf, to go aboard the houseboat for the fishing expedition that will occupy his first two weeks in the South.

In his talks with newspaper correspondents and other members of his party today he re-emphasized his desire to cut himself off during this period from all thought of the subjects he has had under consideration in his Marion conferences. It is his hope to be completely isolated from observation during the period.

The association of nations, tax reforms, the choice of a Cabinet and all the other topics that have been keeping long hours with him during the last six weeks in Marion are to be put as far away from his mind as possible until he has had a good rest.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 21.—President-elect Harding is to be welcomed to Florida as a private citizen in deference to statements that he seeks rest and not ovations. Plans for demonstrations in his honor at cities along his route have been called off.

Jas. Brown Scott Says American Opposition to the Plan Was a World Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—James Brown Scott of Washington, former counselor of the State Department and technical advisor on international law at the Peace Conference, in an address tonight before the Philadelphia Public Ledger Forum on the Peace Conference, declared that the American commission to negotiate peace rendered a service to the world at large in standing as a rock against the trial of the ex-Kaiser for a legal offense, and that Holland has made the world her debtor by refusing to surrender him for the commission of an offense admittedly political.

Mr. Scott discussed "The Trial of the former Emperor of Germany for a Supreme Political Offense, and the Trial of German Subjects for Breaches of the Laws and Customs of War." Recalling the demands made upon Holland to deliver the ex-Kaiser, he said:

"Holland did not want the fugitive, but the rules of hospitality required that he should not be handed over. Holland knew that at least two of the principal powers—the United States and Japan—were opposed to the whole miserable business. It refused to surrender the Kaiser, and he is likely to stay there, where he is well off, especially as no country, not even his own, seems to want him."

Comparing the flight of the ex-Kaiser with the abdication and subsequent delivering himself up to his enemies by Napoleon, the speaker said:

"How much better it would have been for the world if royal fugitives had always escaped, and had not been so stupid as to fall into the hands of their enemies. It may be said that the best way to restore a dynasty seems to be to decapitate its ruler. Mary, Queen of Scots, is a heroine, and her son became not merely King of Scotland, but of England as well, succeeding that very Elizabeth who had her tried and caused her death.

"Even the exile Napoleon Bonaparte seated his nephew upon the throne of France. Stranger things could happen than the restoration of the House of Hohenzollern in the person of the Kaiser's grandson."

Mr. Scott read a resolution, said never to have been published, which was drawn up by former Secretary of State Lansing, and contained a sweeping indictment of the Kaiser. It was presented to the Committee on Responsibilities, the Speaker said, and received "with good-will" until it was discovered that it contained no provision for a spectacular trial. It then died in committee.

KILLS SISTER-IN-LAW, THEN COMMITS SUICIDE

Thomas Tunney, a chauffeur, shot and killed his sister-in-law, Gabrielle Maridel, in front of 57 East Eighty-seventh Street, about 6 o'clock last evening. As the woman fell to the sidewalk he fired a shot through his brain and fell dead beside her.

Miss Maridel lived at 55 East Eighty-seventh Street with her father Jules and a young niece, Marcelle Brochet. She was 29 years old and Tunney 38. The latter lived with his wife and three children at 193 East Seventy-sixth Street. Miss Brochet said that for several years Tunney had been trying to force his attentions on her aunt. He became so persistent that Miss Maridel about five years ago, had him arrested and committed to the psycopathic ward of Bellevue Hospital. He was held there for eight week.

RECIPROCITY NOT WANTED.

Ottawa Paper Suggests Proffer From Here Would Not Succeed.

OTTAWA, Ontario, Jan. 21. — Under the caption of "reviving reciprocity," The Ottawa Citizen says tonight:

"While Premier Meighen avers that Canada is ready to fight the United States in a tariff war, there are indications that the launching of such a campaign across the line is advocated only by a small but aggressive element within the Republican Party.

"There has developed a new idea in the councils of the Republican Party within the last few days, and this comprises no less a suggestion than the employment, not of the tariff, but of reciprocity, as the best means of promoting trade.

"In circles closest to the Government it is admitted that reciprocity, such as was proposed in 1911 and turned down so decisively by Canadians, would have no chance of carrying.

"Business men all over Canada are watching Washington and are hoping that the Fordney bill and other legislation will not hurt Canadian interests. At the same time the general feeling is that if Washington, by putting on prohibitive tariffs, shuts out Canadian business, merchants here will deal with British firms instead.

72, QUITS SING SING IN HOPE.

Going to Get New Start, Says Life-Term Man, Pardoned.

OSSINING, N. Y., Jan. 21.—"Old as I am I will get a new start in life," said Willett J. Springsteel, aged 72, as he was leaving Sing Sing today after seventeen years behind its gray walls. Two other "lifers," who got executive clemency, also went home. He had a record as a model prisoner, against which there was not one mark.

"I am pleased to get out," said Springsteel to Warden Lewis E. Lawes, who induced Governor Smith to let the old man go home. "I'll never trouble anybody again," he said. Seventeen years ago Springsteel was sentenced in Westchester County for life for killing his brother, when intoxicated.

SFORZA TO JOIN IN PARLEYS.

Giolitti May Go Later to Attend the Allied Conference.

ROME, Jan. 20.—Count Sforza, the Foreign Minister, will leave Rome tomorrow for Paris to participate in the Inter-Allied Conference there early next week.

Premier Giolitti may go to Paris later to participate in some of the sittings and to discuss several questions pending with the new French Premier, M. Briand. One of the important problems for Italy is the regulation of exchange rates.

CALL TO LEAGUE COUNCIL.

Will Meet in Geneva Feb. 21—Commissions to Be Named.

GENEVA, Jan. 21.—The next session of the Council of the League of Nations will be held in this city on Feb. 21, it was announced officially today.

The Council will have before it a number of important international questions, including those not solved by the first Assembly of the League in November and December last. Several commissions will be appointed by the Council to report at the Assembly in September next.

BAKU, Transcaucasia, Jan. 20.—An Armenian uprising against wheat requisitions at Delijan, fifty-six miles east of Alexandropol, has been suppressed by Bolshevist troops with much bloodshed, according to advices from the affected region today.

ONTRACTION MONDAY

Legislature Expects Demand for Investigation of Situation in New York City.

NEW COMMISSION PREDICTED

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 21.—The tangled traction situation in New York City will be put before the Legislature when that body reassembles next week and a special message from Governor Miller on that subject will be read in both branches on Monday night.

It also became known today that the introduction of the "service at cost" bills being prepared for Assemblyman Edmund B. Jenks may not be introduced for some time to come, possibly not at all. These would provide for a short cut to higher fares by vesting power to raise rates in the Public Service Commission where municipalities and local traction lines have failed to reach an agreement on a "service at cost" basis after six months of negotiations.

It is surmised that the Governor's message will urge a thorough reorganization of the New York City agencies for the supervision of the construction of new subway lines, as well as for the regulation of lines already in operation by again uniting under one commission those functions which were divorced under a plan created by Governor Smith. Whether this will be a single-headed commission, as was at first proposed, or a commission made up of three or more Commissioners is not known, but the majority opinion at the Capitol is that the Governor will recommend a three-headed commission.

May Have Fare-Raising Powers.

That Mr. Delaney, Transit Construction Commissioner, and Mr. Barrett, Public Service Commissioner of the First District, both Democrats, appointed by Governor Smith, will lose their jobs is taken for granted. Governor Miller yesterday held a conference with James Blaine Walker, Secretary of the Public Service Commission for the First (New York City) District, on whom would devolve the task of welding together again the machinery of the two commissions which two years ago he helped to separate.

It is predicted here that a new commission, if proposed, will have broader powers than any similar body in recent years—that in fact it will have authority akin to that vested in the late rapid transit commission with relation to New York City. It has been suggested, but it is not known, whether the suggestion has been accepted by the Governor and incorporated in his message, that the New York City administration, as a vitally interested party, should have power to name one member of the proposed commission, subject to approval by the Governor and ratification by the Senate. In any event, it is regarded as likely that the Governor will recommend that the powers of the proposed commission be broad enough to grant temporary fare increases with proper safeguards and possibly under a rebate system, similar to that adopted in the case of the gas and electric light companies at the time the 80-cent gas law became operative, pending court decisions to establish the constitutionality of the new rates, which such a course is deemed necessary to maintain operation of lines.

Whether the message will deal with the New York City situation alone or make recommendations for the entire State is not known, but it is presumed that it will deal exclusively with the problem in the big city. In all up-State cities, with the exception of Syracuse and Troy, higher fares have been granted to the local traction companies, in some instances subject to revokement on the return of normal conditions in the labor and material markets.

With municipal elections this Fall in a majority of the up-State cities, the Republican leaders in them are just as anxious as are the Republican leaders in New York City that nothing be done at the Capitol which might lead to the injection of a transit issue to complicate their campaigns, and under the circumstances any plan suggested might encounter opposition by up-State lawmakers that would militate against its adoption by the Legislature.

Up-State Lines Lose Plea.

Hopes of up-State traction companies for increased fares received a severe setback today when the up-State Public Service Commission denied a 10-cent flat rate to the United Traction Company, which serves Albany, Troy, Rensselaer and nearby cities. The denial was based mainly on the ground that the future trend of wages and other traction expenses "will be downward."

The United Traction Company, however, was not entirely a loser. An increase from seven to eight cents was ordered in Albany, but company lines serving other localities suffered. The commission refused to increase the six-cent rate in Troy, reduced the fare from point to point in Rensselaer from six to five cents and permitted a charge of only six cents from points in Rensselaer to the Plaza in Albany.

WILL HASTEN 5-CENT FARE.

Governor Small Promises to Keep Pledge to Chicago Passengers.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—"I will give to Chicago a five-cent fare as rapidly as is possible within the law," said Governor Small tonight, following a conference in which the entire legislative program of the city and State administrations was considered. "That was my pledge to the people. It will be carried out as quickly as is within reason."

Governor Small did not say so, but it was said by his down-State advisers that he probably would name a Public Utilities Commission which would place the surface fare in Chicago at 5 cents and leave it to the legal forces, representing either the city or the traction companies, to fight out the rest of the issue in the courts.

After Governor Small's statement, the understanding now is that he will not await a prolonged legislative contest over the merits of Mayor Thompson's traction plan.

GEORGIA REPUBLICAN ROW.

State Committee Tells Chairman and Vice Chairman to Quit at Once.

ATLANTA, Jan. 21.—The resignations of C. P. Corse and M. H. Karnes, Chairman and Vice Chairman, respectively, of the Central Republican State Committee, were requested by the committee at a meeting today when charges were made of attempts to "trade" Federal patronage for campaign contributions, violations of instructions of the committee, and efforts to elect a "hybrid Democratic ticket."

C. W. McClure, a wealthy Atlanta merchant, former Progressive committeeman from Georgia, came in for denunciation in a speech made by Henry Lincoln Johnson, negro, and present Republican Committeeman from the State. McClure offered to contribute $10,000 to the campaign, provided he could have a guarantee of all patronage in the State, Johnson asserted.

Johnson also attacked the Ku Klux Klan, and said that after March 5 he would appeal to the Postmaster General to bar the organization's literature from the mails. He asserted the President-elect Harding was pledged to the enactment of an anti-lynching law and that he (Johnson) would stay in Washington until such a law were passed.

Civil and Military Authorities Fail to Settle Differences at Pemberton.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 21.—In an effort to iron out the trouble between the civil authorities of Pemberton and the military officials at Camp Dix, Supreme Court Justice Kalisch conferred today with Assistant United States District Attorney Acton, Prosecutor Jonathan Kelsey of Burlington County and Lieut. Col. Dennis P. Quinlan representing Major Gen. Summerall, commander at Dix.

It was intimated that the friction antedates the recent action of the Pemberton Board of Education in barring children of officers and enlisted men at Camp Dix from the local schools.

The conference also brought out that the continuation of Camp Dix depends in a large measure upon settlement of the trouble.

PEMBERTON, N. J., Jan. 21.—The controversy between County Prosecutor Jonathan Kelsey, backed by the town officials, and Major General Summerall, commander of Camp Dix, broke out anew when Mr. Kelsey returned here tonight. He expressed resentment at remarks he said Colonel Quinlan, Judge Advocate at Camp Dix, had made at a conference in Trenton today, and said he had left the meeting.

"The Colonel's attitude was typical of militarism," Mr. Kelsey said. "He told me that if I kept sober there would be no trouble between the town and camp."

Armed military guards still patrolled the streets of Pemberton tonight and were posted at the two railroad stations with orders to turn back soldiers who had no passes to enter the town.

DEMOCRATIC WOMEN DIVIDE OVER LEADER

Miss Marbury's Friends Opposed to Meeting Called by Mrs. Morse.

A meeting of the New York State Women's Democratic Committee, which has been called for next Wednesday at the Hotel McAlpin to elect officers, has split the Democratic women leaders into two parties, one headed by Miss Elisabeth Marbury, National Committeewoman for the State, and the other by Mrs. Mary E. Morse, Vice Chairman of the Erie County Committee.

Miss Marbury's supporters say the meeting is aimed directly at her, and that they think it is "a shame" in view of the good work she did in the last election. Some of the county leaders, among whom is Mrs. Elizabeth Colbert of Albany, have announced that they will not attend the meeting. Others will go out of curiosity to see what is done toward supplanting Miss Marbury, who they assert is still in control of the State organization.

The fight against Miss Marbury dates back to the national convention at San Francisco. Mrs. John Sherwin Crosby, who had been appointed by W. W. Farley, New York State Chairman, to head the New York women's committee, resigned, and Miss Marbury was elected National Committeeman despite strong opposition from many leading women in the State. They have never been reconciled to her leadership.

During the campaign an organization committee was appointed by Miss Marbury, consisting of the women leaders in each county, but after the election, Miss Marbury holds, they ceased to have any legal function. The call for the meeting of the State Committee was, however, sent to these women by Mrs. L. R. Reese, Secretary of the committee. Mrs. Morse was Chairman of the organization committee.

Miss Marbury did not seem at all perturbed yesterday when she was asked about the McAlpin meeting. So far as she is concerned, she says, it has no official standing.

"I'm not going," she said. "I'm a business woman just at present. I gave up six years to patriotic and political activities, and now that there is a lull I have gone back to my desk producing plays." She said she had notified women up-State that she had not called the meeting.

Mrs. Morse said last night that the meeting was not in any way aimed at Miss Marbury, that the State Committeemen wished to co-operate with Miss Marbury in every way, but that as National Committeeman Miss Marbury had nothing to do with the formation of the State Committee.

"We have no criticism to make of any one," said Mrs. Morse. "We are merely going ahead with plans to name a State woman leader of our own choosing."

HEAR GUARANTY TRUST WILL HELP CUBAN BANK

Proposed Moratorium Law Again Under Discussion by Crowder and Menocal.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Jan. 21.—There is an authentic report here tonight that the Guaranty Trust Company of New York is expected to solve the predicament of the Banco Nacional de Cuba, which has a branch in Wall Street.

The terms have not been disclosed. It is known that the President of the bank, William A. Merchant, who has been recently in conference with General Crowder and President Menocal, has been in close touch with the New York interests. From sources close to the institution it is said, that against the $70,000,000 owing there is in round figures an existing valuation of deposits of $47,000,000. Considering capital and other values, it is said that the New York interests would be required to come forward with considerably less than the $23,000,000 apparently needed.

There has been a belief here for several weeks that the Guaranty Trust Company would prove to be an important factor in the solution of the Cuban financial crisis.

The proposed Torriente law was said to have been the subject of serious discussion today at the Palace. The conferees there included President Menocal, General Crowder, American Minister Long, Dr. Torriente, the author of the law, and Secretary of State Desvernine. This proposed law, which has the approval of the Senate, provides for an extension of the moratorium upon an instalment payment basis.

It has never been disclosed what attitude General Crowder takes upon this. The liberal press professes to have information that it does not meet his approval. President Menocal has said that he does not agree with its details, but that it is in the main acceptable.

Release Capt. Harrison—Believed Innocent.

The release of Captain Ramon B. Harrison following the court-martial at Governors Island yesterday is believed to indicate that he was found not guilty. Captain Harrison, who was in the Army Transport Service at Hoboken, was charged with selling the steam tug Grover Cleveland for $2,500 when it was alleged that the City of Newark made an offer of $10,000. Captain Harrison returned to Fort Jay Prison, where he was later released. The findings of the court will be announced from Washington.

Tells State Bar Association That Government Problem Is to Restore Equilibrium.

MUST LIMIT AID TO CITIZEN

Cites City's School Funds Action as Attempt to Place Local Burden on State.

Governor Nathan L. Miller, in a speech before the New York State Bar Association, of which he is President, declared that the great problem of government today was "to restore the proper relations and the proper equilibrium between local administration, State administration and Federal administration, and to restore the true relationship which ought to exist between the administration and its government."

Governor Miller asserted that the constantly growing tendency of the Federal Government to take over functions of the State Government, and of the tendency of the State Government to do what should more properly be done by local governments added greatly to the cost of government because the further the seat of authority was removed from the place it was exercised the more expensive it became. He said there had been too much Federal and State usurpation of power.

Warns of Too Much State Aid.

Governor Miller said that another cause of the increase in the cost of government came from a humanitarian desire to look after the welfare of its citizens, which, he said, had led to the creation of great State departments which are undertaking to supervise and to direct the talk and affairs of the citizen.

"I am not saying, and I do not wish to be misunderstood," he said, "that much of the effort in this direction is not justified; but I do want to say that if the State undertakes to put crutches under the arms of its citizens, it will have a population of cripples; that, if it undertakes to place a nursing bottle in the mouth of our people from infancy to the grave, we will have a race of children.

"And in these tendencies, it is always important after you have gone a certain distance to stop and take stock, to stop and see whether the tendency has not gone too far, and whether, after all, the great thing for the State to do is to discharge its true governmental function, expecting that virile citizenship must result from the struggle which every citizen should have to make in order to take care of himself."

The Governor's declaration, which was taken to indicate his opposition to the extreme type of social welfare legislation, was received with applause.

In discussing the mounting cost of government and the way to meet it, Governor Miller said the principal cause, aside from the influence of the war, had been due to extravagance and the disposition to indulge in luxuries, both public and private.

Discusses City School Fund.

Governor Miller took the recent failure of the Board of Estimate to appropriate all the money necessary to carry on the New York City public schools for the next year as an illustration of the tendency of a local government to try to relieve itself of a burden of expense by passing it on to the State Government, regardless of the fact that the expense is greater to the individual taxpayers of the locality.

"In this city recently," he said, "the Board of Estimate eliminated from its budget an item of $27,000,000 for the schools and appropriated only enough to run the schools until Summer on the theory that somehow or other the schools would run because they would have to run, and apparently hoping that if the locality did not attend to it the State would; and thus undertaking to shift to the State the responsibility of the locality, and not realizing that if the rule were to be adopted and if the State were to undertake the maintenance of our educational system—and it has started in to a large extent to do so—the result would be so far as the City of New York is concerned that it would not only pay for the maintenance of its own schools but would help in large measure in addition to that to maintain the other schools of the State, due to the centralization of wealth and property in this community.

At the business meeting which followed the Governor's speech the association by a small majority adopted a resolution presented by the Committee on Law Reform urging the enactment of legislation to permit foreign lawyers to establish offices for giving advice on foreign law and to permit lawyers from other States to give advice concerning the laws of their respective States.

A controversy developed over the report of the Committee on Legal Education. The association voted down a proposal to require a longer course for students of night law schools than students of day schools. The association passed a recommendation to require all applicants for admission to the bar to serve one year of clerkship, whether graduates of law schools or not, with the proviso that the year of service need not be continuous. The meeting will be continued today.

George Sutherland of Washington, D. C., former United States Senator from Utah, delivered the annual address to the New York Bar Association at a meeting at the Hotel Astor last night. His subject was "Principle or Expedient."

He sought to indicate how far statutes may be effective for good, and when they become mischievous or merely idle, as against great natural forces.

AUSTRIANS THREATEN TO HANG PROFITEERS

Labor Ultimatum to Government —Tyrol Considers Vote on Union With Germany.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Jan. 20.—The Technical Union, comprising all the railway, telegraph and telephone workers of Austria, has made a peremptory demand that the Government take measures to effect a material reduction in the cost of living within a fortnight or the union would take the law into its own hands and proceed against profiteers by hanging them.

The union further demands immediate negotiations with the Entente concerning union with Germay which, it is declared, must take place March 1.

BERNE, Jan. 21.—Independent action by the Tyrolean Landtag on the question of union with Germany is in prospect, according to Austrian dispatches.

The Landtag, the advices state, decided yesterday to hold a plebiscite on this question if the Austrian Government does not act on it by next month.

PARIS, Jan. 21.—The Franco-Austrian arbitration tribunal, established for the purpose of working out certain problems presented by the Treaty of St. Germain, held its first meeting today in Paris, with Francisco de la Barra, former Provisional President of Mexico, in the chair.

The opening ceremony was followed by a preliminary discussion of the problems to be met. The meeting was attended by French Government officials and by Herr Eichoff, the Austrian Minister to Paris.

FAVORS FIVE-POWER AGREEMENT ON ARMS

But Henry White Thinks Navy Cut Should Be Limited to Britain, Japan and Us.

SAYS PEOPLES WANT RELIEF

Harding Should Call Conference Here, He Tells the House Naval Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—General disarmament by the five great powers, but with only the United States, Great Britain and Japan reducing their navies, was the plan recommended to the House Naval Affairs Committee today by Henry White, former Ambassador to France and a member of the peace commission at Paris. He urged that a conference in Washington be called by President Harding soon after he takes office.

He said that he did not believe the United States should halt its naval program and that he would like to see this nation "at the top" when the discussion on disarmament began.

He suggested that France might object to disarmament by land because of the fear of Bolshevism. He added:

"The keeping of Germany in a state of chaos over reparations is opening the way to Bolshevism more than any other factor right now, in my opinion. The present condition of Germany makes Bolshevism a menace."

"The whole world is crying out for reduction of their taxation, which can be brought about largely by disarmament," said the former Ambassador near the beginning of his talk. "I imagine they are looking to us to take the lead. Whilen I am in favor of disarmament, I am certainly not in favor of our nation being the only one to do this."

Asked if the great powers would favor such a movement, Mr. White answered:

"My impression is that the people would compel them to disarm. They are all suffering from taxation. Public opinion would bring the Governments to the point of increasing disarmament."

He thought it would bring about "general chaos" to invite the whole world to a conference. He did not believe that a call for a conference, if issued by President Wilson, would be effective, because of his speedy retirement. He would have the conference called by the new administration as soon after March 4 as possible.

All Nations Feeling Pressure.

"We are feeling the pressure in America," said Chairman Butler. "Do you think the same condition exists abroad?"

"Certainly," was the reply of Mr. White, who added that he believed Great Britain would be willing, and that France would advocate disarmament as far as consistent.

"What was your observation as to England's attitude against allowing discussion of the supremacy of the seas at the peace conference?" asked Mr. Butler.

"I have never heard of it," answered Mr. White.

The meeting should be held in the United States, he thought, for the reason that the foreign countries could then learn conditions here. Getting them "around the table" was the chief thing, after all, he argued.

"Any arrangement that gets people together will be a great boon," Mr. White said. "If we have another war, it would annihilate whole nations and whole cities. It would be infinitely worse than the last war."

"If the agreement is reached and is not kept, how will you maintain it?" he was asked.

"That is a risk we have to run," Mr. White replied. "If any agreement was entered, I assume it would be kept."

Mr. White said that he could not see any harm in a short naval holiday.

"I should like to see the United States equal to any nation in sea power when the reduction started," he continued, "but questions might be raised at the conference that would show the right of some nation to a larger navy than the others. Great Britain, for instance. I should think the question of relative size would be one for the conference to decide."

Building Programs Abroad.

"There seems to be a disposition abroad to charge the United States with being responsible for the competition in big navies," said Chairman Butler. "But Japan has large ships now building, eight battleships and eight battle cruisers. Three more battle cruisers are now being built in England, and no one knows who they are for. I learn on good authority that many of the Japanese people do not know their ships are being built, and I think we and they and the world should know whom these ships in England are being built for."

"We ought to have open covenants openly arrived at," suggested Representative Hicks of New York.

"Of course," said Mr. White, "that statement was rather exaggerated. You can't build a house without some preliminary negotiations."

He added that, having always believed in the theory that "war knows no law," he had never been able to put faith in The Hague conferences.

General Pershing's views on disarmament will be heard on Tuesday.

Senator France's Proposal.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (Associated Press).—While hearings were in progress before the House committee, Senator France of Maryland presented to the Senate a proposal that the United States, Great Britain, and Japan agree to a reduction by 1935 of one-fourth of their relative naval strength on July 1.

Senator France embodied his proposal in an amendment to the pending resolution of Senator Borah, directing the President to call a conference of three principal powers for reduction of their naval building programs.

The Maryland Senator's resolution would create a commission of naval experts of the three powers to arrange gradual reductions between now and 1935.

TAFT HOPEFUL OF ACTION.

Tells Bermuda Interviewer Armament Burden Must Be Lifted.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 7.—Ex-President Taft, who is spending a month here, said in an interview today:

"The enormous burden of debt of every country makes it almost indispensable that the necessity for armament be removed. You can only do that by joint action and joint agreements and by promises of settling all differences without fighting.

"They are already discussing seriously in the United States an agreement for disarmament or the limiting of armament and strangely enough this comes in part at least from men who have been vigorously opposed to any league at all.

"I am very hopeful that under Mr. Harding we shall reach a conclusion with other leading nations for an association or league which shall mark the advance brought about by the war toward reasonable machinery for the avoidance of future conflicts. This will involve the sitting around the council table of all important nations and will imply the taking of joint measures to compose differences and to restrain a resort to the unsatisfactory and bloody arbitrament of war.

"Lately I have often been questioned as to the attitude of the United States toward Great Britain. Of course the United States consists of some 110,000,000 people with many different currents of thought permeating the mass. Many different groupings, too, will be found and there are some of these groups, more vocal than representative of real public opinion, who manifest bitter feeling against Britain. But when an important question arises, when a real issue comes before us, then the sober public opinion of the United States asserts itself.

"I never have had the slightest concern over the relations of the two countries. We form the strongest union for peace between nations that exists in the world today. We have got into the habit of settling all our differences by means of negotiation and arbitration. The great body of the people in the United States cannot conceive of a war between the two countries because they are confident that any matters in dispute can and will be settled either by negotiation or by the judgment of a court as with people in any domestic jurisdiction where law and order prevail."

SAY COAL CONTROL WOULD RUIN TRADE

Dealers Tell Senators Their Industry Could Not Survive Under the Calder Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Representatives of the coal industry who appeared today before the Senate Committee on Manufactures, to which was referred the Calder bill for the regulation of the coal industry, protested against the measure, which, they asserted, would be disastrous to their business. The principal witness was Ralph Crews, attorney for the Consolidated Coal Company of New York, who said that because such a measure as the Calder bill is now pending before the Senate his company had held up a foreign coal contract that involved the export of about 750,000 tons of bituminous coal.

"This bill," said Mr. Crews, "would be disastrous to the future of the American coal export trade. It would be playing into the hands of the British export coal trade, which England has released from all restrictions, and to which she is giving every possible encouragement, not only for the benefit of the industry itself, but also because it is an important factor in the restoration of the pre-war trade supremacy of Great Britain.

Senator Kenyon told Mr. Crews that the restrictions proposed by the bill could be called into action only in case of an emergency, whether or not an emergency existed being left to the decision of the President and the Federal Trade Commission. Mr. Crews said he was not prepared to express an opinion as to what in the opinion of the members of the Trade Commission was an emergency.

"Let us be unhesitating in our confidence," continued Mr. Crews, "that if left alone there will be no need of regulation, that we will develop our foreign trade, and that we will do our part in the development of other foreign trade to which we and other American industries are entitled. We see no reason for this discrimination against us."

Senator Walsh of Massachusetts read into the record a score of reports from different parts of New England which showed on their face that in July last New England industries had to pay prices ranging from $10 to $15 per ton for bituminous coal at the mines.

George T. Cushing of the American Wholesale Coal Association also appeared in opposition to the bill. He asked for a delay of three weeks to give members of the association time to study the Calder bill. He was informed that the committee expected to close the hearing in the next day or two in order to make possible the consideration of the bill before the end of the present session of Congress.

SENATE MAY ACCEPT A FEW WILSON MEN

Republicans Decide to Pick Out Non-Political Nominations for Possible Confirmation.

Special to the New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—At a conference of Republican members of the Senate this morning the disposition of the more than 10,000 nominations sent to the Senate for confirmation by President Wilson came up for discussion. It was decided to refer the nominations to the proper committees, where the lists would be carefully gone over and such nominations as are found to be non-political may be reported for confirmation.

The general understanding is that very few of the nominations will be so recommended. Among tho few expected to receive favorable consideration is that of Norman H. Davis, Under Secretary of State, who now is acting head of the department.

The number of nominations which probably will not be acted upon is approximately 5,000, including army and navy officers, members of the Shipping Board and more than 3,500 Postmasters. The Senate voted a few days ago to confirm 5,534 army officers recently commissioned from civil life under the provisions of the Army Reorganization act. Army nominations that will not be confirmed include all officers appointed to the grade of General, of whom eleven were nominated to be Major Generals and twenty-two to be Brigadiers.

It was said today that, in addition to Mr. Davis, several nominations for positions in the Patent Office and in the Treasury Department which are considered necessary for the proper conduct of those departments probably will be confirmed.

ATTACK MEAT REGULATION.

Senators Sherman and Fernald Want Packing Industry Let Alone.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Proposed Government regulation of the meat packers and allied industries drew fire in the Senate today from two Senators—Sherman of Illinois and Fernald of Maine, both Republicans. They opposed the pending Gronna regulatory bill as an unwarranted interference with a particular private industry, a principle which, they said, might be extended injuriously to other lines of business.

Opposition of both Senators to the measure, which will be voted on next Monday, also included attacks on the Federal Trade Commission, which has supported the legislation. Senator Sherman, charging that the commission's criticisms of the "big five" packers had injured their export trade, declared that a copy of one of the commission's reports got into the hands of the British Board of Trade months before it was made public in this country.

A substitute for the Gronna bill was introduced by Senator Sterling, Republican, of South Dakota, proposing transfer of Government regulation of the meat industry to the Federal Trade Commission instead of the new Live-stock Commission provided in the Gronna bill. It provided for less Federal supervision than the Gronna bill and for publicity of meat packing affairs.

FOR PAN-PACIFIC MEETING.

Secretary Davis Issues Call for August Conference at Honolulu.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—A formal call for a Pan-Pacific Educational Conference in Honolulu next August is being prepared by Acting Secretary of State Davis, and will be sent to all countries bordering the Pacific early next week, according to an announcement today.

The conference will be the second of a series held in Hawaii by the Pan-Pacific Union and, it is expected, will be attended by more than seventy-five delegates from Japan, China, Australia, Canada, the United States and many Latin-American republics. Plans of United States participation are being prepared by Dr. P. P. Claxton, Commissioner of Education.

AMERICA NOT ALONE IN CABRERA PARLEYS

REPLY TO MOSES CHARGES

Wilson Transmits Davis Report Denying Cruelty to Deposed President.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan 21.—In a message to the Senate, President Wilson this afternoon transmitted to that body the State Department's version of the facts and incidents that led up to and followed the deposition in April of last year of President Estrada Cabrera of Guatemala.

The data were submitted in response to the resolution offered by Senator Moses, which inquired as to the terms of the Cabrera capitulation, by which terms it was stipulated that Cabrera should be imprisoned in the Naval Academy; whether this agreement was violated by sending Cabrera to a common jail, and whether he is being maltreated.

The report submitted to the Senate by the President was written by Under Secretary of State Norman H. Davis, who is at present acting head of the State Department.

Washington Proposed Reforms.

"Early in March," says the report, "it had become evident that the Unionist movement was gaining such momentum that it would lead to a conflict if President Cabrera did not yield, either by resigning or by granting reforms in his administration that would satisfy the popular demands. With the hope that the granting of the reforms desired would quiet the existing agitation, the department on March 17, instructed Mr. McMillin, the American Minister to Guatemala, to inform President Estrada Cabrera that in the opinion of the Government of the United States it was highly desirable:

"1. That he should recognize all rights guaranteed by the Constitution; 2. That he should make no attempt to repress the normal political activities of the people. 3. That no further arrests be made for political reasons. 4. That in no circumstances and under no condition should prisoners be subjected to torture or even flogging."

The communication from Mr. Davis states that Mr. McMillin offered, in return for the promulgation of the first three instructions cited above, that he would issue a statement "to the effect that this Government had faith in the President's promises and would deplore any attempt to overthrow the Constitutional authorities."

President Cabrera did not issue the proclamation suggested until April 5, when he issued a lengthy agreement which had been formulated on March 27 by Cabrera and leaders of the Unionist Party.

Other Embassies Participated.

In discussing the charge made by Senator Moses, that the negotiations had been carried on under pressure in the American legation, Mr. Davis says that several of the embassies, including those of Spain, Mexico and Great Britain, were used in addition to the United States Legation for this purpose.

Transferred to Jail in City.

The explanation of the Guatemalan Government for Cabrera's removal from the Military Academy in violation of the agreement as transmitted by Mr. Davis was

"The Guatemalan Government later informed the American Minister that they had removed Señor Estrada Cabrera to a prison, within the city itself, that was easy to defend and where he would be safe from attack."

TO FIGHT SENIORITY RULE.

Young Republicans In Next House Want Larger Steering Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—With the Republican majority in the next House exceeding 180—the largest in recent history—troubles incident to an unwieldly control are looming up on the political horizon. The chief matter which the younger Republicans intend to revive when the House reorganizes for the special session is the contention for a breaking down of seniority rule in the appointment of committee Chairmen and an enlarged steering Committee.

In addition to this there will be a demand, evidence of which already has appeared in debate in the House, to destroy the Budget Committee. This fight will come when Representative James W. Good, the present Chairman, retires. Mr. Good has received an offer to join a large Western law firm and intends to accept it. He will not leave the House until after it reorganizes, he said today.

The contest begun two years ago by the younger Republicans for an enlargement of the House Steering Committee from five to nine members will be renewed.

There seems to be no formidable opposition to the re-election of Speaker Gillett or Floor Leader Mondell.

WIVES GET ALIEN PROPERTY.

$117,000,000 Worth Seized in War Returned to American-Born Women.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Approximately $117,000,000 worth of property taken over by the Alien Property Custodian during the war has been returned to American-born wives of Germans, Austrians and others, it was said today at the Custodian's office.

The returns were made under a recent act of Congress which permitted women who married before the war subjects of enemy countries and citizens of countries since separated from Austria-Hungary, such as Czechoslovakia, to file claims for their property in this country seized by the Government under the Trading with the Enemy act.

Claims are coming in at the rate of forty or fifty a week, and officials said they had not yet been able to determine the total of seized property affected by the act.

The total value of enemy property taken over is placed at $534,000,000, exclusive of the interned German merchant ships seized in American ports and transferred to the Shipping Board. The bulk of this property belonged to Germans and included many industries.

AWAITS WORD ON ARMENIA.

President Wilson Sends Another Note to League Council.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—President Wilson has sent another communication regarding mediation in Armenia to President Hymans of the Council of the League of Nations. The note may be made public tomorrow and meantime official comment on it is withheld.

When the President accepted the invitation of the League to act as a mediator he requested the Council to indicate some course of procedure, but no reply has been made and it has been suggested that because of the chaotic condition in Armenia the League may deem further attempts at mediation at this time inexpedient.

Henry Morgenthau, former Ambassador to Turkey, who has been named by the President as his representative, still is in the United States awaiting instructions.

UNTERMYER'S CHARGE ABSURD, SAYS PALMER

Attorney General Defends His Course in Anti-Trust Cases.

Special to the New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Attorney General Palmer issued a statement tonight in which he characterized as "lurid" and "absurd" the charges made by Samuel Untermyer.

"I have seen Samuel Untermyer's interview, published this morning," said Mr. Palmer. "His denial does not change the facts, which are as I stated them to be. His activities on behalf of friends and clients while I was acting as Alien Property Custodian were well known by many in that organization. If he represented none, why did he visit the Alien Property Custodian's office in Washington? Certainly he will not claim that his purpose was to help the Government in its work of taking enemy property, which he plainly disapproved.

"The character of his entire interview is established by his absurd suggestion that the Attorney General ought to be removed from office on his confession alone that he suspended the enforcement of the anti-trust laws during the war. What I said was that as to anti-trust cases, everybody knows that during the war they were suspended, which is quite a different thing from suspending the law.

"That was done long before I became Attorney General, for I did not take office until four months after the armistice. During my administration, all the anti-trust cases in the Supreme Court have been argued and substantial progress made toward reaching a conclusion in such cases pending in all the courts. The absurdly false character of this statement is so apparent that nobody is apt to give much credence to any of his lurid charges."

HECKLED A PRINCESS.

Brooklyn Man Asks Why Princess Cantacuzene Pleads for Russia's Starving.

The Princess Cantacuzène, a granddaughter of General Grant, lectured before a large audience at the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon on "Russia Today." Near the end of her address, the Princess was interrupted by a man who said:

"Have you been requesting sympathy for the starving of Russia as a result of the blockade, or for the people you saw fit to marry into after leaving this country?"

There was silence for a moment, then hisses for the heckler from every part of the hall. In the ripple of excitement the man departed before those in charge could learn his identity.

Chairman Jager Stansbury, a lawyer, refused to put the question to the Princess, adding:

"The speaker is our guest and entitled to every courtesy. The question is insulting, and I want to apologize for the irresponsible interruption."

MORE PIGS, LESS PORK.

Young Porkers Substituted for Old in Boston Piggery.

BOSTON, Jan. 21.—Acceptance of the tradition that "pigs is pigs" has cost the city many pounds of pork and those in charge of the municipal piggery on Deer Island have a new watchword, "Swineherd, Know Thy Pigs." Mr. O'Brien, Commissioner of Penal Institutions, announced today the discovery of a scheme by which young pigs were brought down the harbor in boats, landed secretly at Deer Island and substituted for full-grown meat-carrying porkers which were taken to market.

The guards, in counting the noses of their porcine charges, daily checked pigs as pigs without distinction. The number of noses tallied, but the poundage of the porkers fell off tremendously. Young pigs succeeded old pigs and officials thought the inmates of the piggery had found the secret of eternal youth until the pig-running plan was discovered and the substitution stopped.

WILL END EFFORTS FOR MEXICAN TREATY

JUDGED BY SPEECH TO PRESS

Washington Believes He Hopes to Avoid Guarantees in Negotiations With Harding.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—It was learned definitely today that the United States, during the remainder of President Wilson's term, will make no further effort toward inducing Mexico to negotiate a treaty which would enable the United States to recognize the Obregon Administration.

This situation is the result of the failure of the Mexican Government to head the suggestion of the United States that Commissioners be appointed by both countries to draft such a treaty, and the belief, following declarations made yesterday by President Obregon in an interview with foreign correspondents, that he has no intention of taking such a step.

President Obregon declared to the correspondents in Mexico City that "we do not need treaties to force us to meet our moral debts," and also declared against entering into the treaties which the United States Government wants negotiated as a condition precedent to recognition of the new Mexican Government.

What the United States desires definitely established before recognition is that Article 27 of the Mexican Constitution, which covers the situation respecting American oil and other investments in Mexico, will not be construed as confiscatory or retroactive by the Mexican Government. Verbal assurances to this effect have been given to American officials by Mexican officials in the past, but mere words are not considered satisfactory unless accompanied by a guarantee that Mexico does not propose to confiscate vested American rights, legally acquired.

In the last exchange of notes between Secretary Colby and Robert Pesquiera, confidential agent of the Mexican Government during Acting President Huerta's régime, Mr. Colby suggested that if the Mexican Government would be willing to appoint commissioners to draft a treaty which would put certain guarantees into writing, the United States would be willing to appoint commissioners to take up outstanding issues with Mexico. Pesquiera returned to Mexico City just before the expiration of President Huerta's term. Neither his administration nor that of President Obregon has pursued the subject further and the files of the State Department contain no indication that General Obregon is now desirous of negotiating the kind of a treaty which Secretary Colby suggested.

Although it was not so emphasized in dispatches from Mexico City, from the official American point of view the vital feature of General Obregon's statement to the correspondents was his rejection of the American suggestion for commissioners to negotiate an agreement in which definite guarantees would be written that Article 27 would not be construed by Mexico in any confiscatory or retroactive way in relation to American investments.

The interpretation put on this part of the Obregon statement here is that he contemplates effecting recognition by some other means not disclosed. There is speculation as to whether he thinks that perhaps he can obtain recognition from the Harding Administration without negotiating such a treaty. The best opinion here is that there will be no departure by the Harding Administration from Secretary Colby's stand, which has the support of the Senate committee, headed by Senator Albert B. Fall of New Mexico, which investigated conditions along the Mexican border.

STATE SENATOR FAILS TO GET B. R. T. DATA

Efforts yesterday by Senator William T. Simpson to get an interview with Lindley M. Garrison, receiver of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, failed because Mr. Garrison could not be found. Senator Simpson sought an official statement concerning the financial condition of the bankrupt company to carry back to Albany on Monday for submission to the other legislators from Kings who are seeking the reason for the suspension of so many surface lines.

Failing to reach Mr. Garrison, the Senator tried to get a talk with William S. Menden, Vice President and General Manager of the B. R. T. system. He finally announced that he was hopeful of having a talk with Mr. Menden today.

BOTH SEEK DIVORCE.

Papers in Suits of Mr. and Mrs. Gomes Served on Same Day.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Jan. 21.—Mrs. Mary Conover Vanburen Gomes of Oak Grove Avenue, Sound Beach, was served with papers yesterday in a divorce action brought by Antonio Montiero Gomes, former Portuguese army officer, whom she married on April 10, 1919. The complaint alleges misconduct with a person unknown to the husband between Jan. 9 and 11, 1920.

Mr. Gomes was also served with papers in a divorce action brought by his wife, who alleges intolerable cruelty from the date of the marriage. The service was made in New York, where the husband is now living. The complaints were served almost simultaneously in Greenwich and New York. The husband's complaint is dated Jan. 14 and the wife's Jan. 18.

It is understood that Mr. Gomes returned to the Sound Beach house late on the night of Jan. 19 with some friends, and that evidence on which the proceedings are brought was found at the time. About a month ago Mr. Gomes put an advertisement in a Stamford paper stating that he would not be responsible for debts contracted by his wife or her mother. The couple had lived apart then for two weeks.

On Jan. 5 Mrs. Gomes was served with a complaint in an action to determine the ownership of the house in Sound Beach.

ANTI-CHURCH RIOTS AGITATE ITALIANS

BATTLE OVER WORSHIP FUND

Three More Priests Arrested on Murder Charges—Threats to Lynch Two.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, Jan. 21.—Disastrous anti-religious rioting is reported in various parts of the country.

A horde of unemployed peasantry stormed the Tuscania Cathedral in the Roman Province in a fury of iconoclasm. The invaders smashed up altars, crucifixes, pictures and statuary. They soaked in petroleum the gorgeous raiment bedecking a celebrated image of the Madonna and afterward set it afire.

Beyond the material destruction, estimated at over $20,000, almost the whole of the rich treasury of votive offerings, engraved gold and silver, representing the gifts of many generations of pilgrims, was ruthlessly pillaged.

Sanguinary disorders occurred at Castellamare di Stabia, on the Gulf of Naples, over the action of the Socialist Town Council in misappropriating the bulk of the public worship budget for the upkeep of the local Chamber of Labor. During fighting around the Town Hall the Marshal of Carabinieri and the Chief Commissioner of Police together with two sailors, three civilians and a young woman were shot dead. Fifteen of the demonstrators were grievously wounded.

A hundred councillors and municipal employes fired on the crowd from the windows and balconies of municipal buildings. When they had exhausted their reserve of ammunition they retired to the Council Hall, where they barricaded themselves. They were subsequently dislodged by the soldiery and held under arrest. The upshot is the proclamation of a general strike which has extended to Morre Annunziata.

Fierce political strife between Socialists and Clericals in Central Italy has resulted in the arrest of three more priests on murder charges.

Don Silvio Abrescino, the parish priest of Poggiodomo, in the Province of Perugia, was taking a motor-car ride when he encountered the Mayor of the place, Achille Lauresti, with whom he has been engaged in a bitter controversy about the municipal administration. Angry words were exchanged, and his companion threw a stone in contempt, whereupon the priest is said to have turned in his saddle and shot the Mayor through the ribs with a sporting gun. That evening the Mayor died. The priest, who had fled from the town and for whose capture a warrant had been issued, gave himself up to justice today.

At Spoleto another case concerns Don Luigi Lippi, the parish priest of Tassignano, near Lucca, and his brother, Father Francesco Lippi, a Chaplain in the same village. Both clergymen had been sorely provoked by the insolent behavior of a man termed a proletarian pothouse orator, Fatolo Bartolucci, whose corpse was subsequently discovered riddled with revolver shots in the little square fronting the presbytery. It was evident that the body had been reverently rearranged after the tragedy, and at the police inquiry the priests, housekeeper and other witnesses indicated the two brothers as the assassins.

A crowd of indignant peasants from Capannori, the murdered man's native village, marched on Tassignano and surrounded the Presbytery with the intention of inflicting lynch law, but the timely arrival of military reinforcements enabled the priests to be taken safely to the Lucca prison, where they were formally accused of conspiracy to kill.

DIES OF SLEEPING SICKNESS.

Announcement was made at Bellevue Hospital yesterday that Philip Suska, 35 years old, of 217 East Fourth Street, had died there on Thursday from sleeping sickness. He was taken to the hospital on Jan. 4. Suska came to this country from Russia fourteen years ago.

One other victim of sleeping sickness in the hospital, Cyril Johnson, 26 years old, a negro, of 2,470 Seventh Avenue, was taken there on Jan. 18. He is still alive but his condition is serious.

GIBBONS HAS MOTOR TRIP.

Cardinal on His First Outing Since He Became Ill.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 21.—Cardinal Gibbons enjoyed an automobile ride of about an hour's duration today, accompanied by his physician and a member of his household. It was his first outing since his return about three weeks ago from Western Maryland, where he became seriously ill.

While the Cardinal is said to be slowly regaining strength, he is still very weak and is not yet permitted to see visitors.

WILD MAN CAPTURED IN MISSISSIPPI JUNGLE

Aged 70, He Lived in Wilderness With Wife and Child.

Special to The New York Times.

LAUREL, Miss., Jan. 21.—Driven from his haunts in the jungles of Leaf River, near Luxby, by the recent high water, Albert Parsons, an alleged wild man, was captured today and brought to Laurel. With him is a woman who claims to be his wife and a 2-year-old child. Parsons is more than 70 years of age, with a long white beard and tangled hair.

The woman wore a single garment torn to tatters. The man wore even less. The child was naked. They slept on a pile of old sacks in a tumble-down cabin which is said to have been a retreat of bush-whackers in the civil war, and subsisted on wild fruits, roots, herbs and such animals and fish as they could trap.

The old man asserts he caught his wife in a steel trap many years ago. She has only one eye, having lost the other in a fight with a wildcat.

DAVIS'S PLANS INDEFINITE.

But London Hears He Won't Leave England Until Late Next Month.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The plans of John W. Davis, the American Ambassador, concerning his return to the United States are indefinite, but it was stated on good authority today that he does not contemplate leaving England until late in February.

Published reports that the Ambassador was submitting his resignation earlier because he was not received by President Wilson on his recent visit to Washington or on account of departmental differences, were characterized in these quarters as absurd.

In view of the several matters pressing for the attention of Great Britain and the United States, it is understood, Ambassador Davis believes every facility should be available in order to assist these exchanges.

$1,010,946 Judgment Against Zinc Company.

A default judgment for $1,010,946 was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday against the National Zinc Company by the International Minerals and Metals Corporation in a suit to recover a balance due for ore sold the defendant in 1919 and 1920. The papers were served on George J. Corbett, Treasurer of the corporation, but no answer was filed.

BLASTS START BOMB SCARE.

Army Engineers at Work on Barge and Tug Sink.

The capsizing of a tug and sand barge near Robbins Reef Lighthouse yesterday afternoon, forty-five minutes after the echoes of a succession of sharp blasts somewhere in the upper harbor had startled lower Manhattan, gave rise to rumors of an explosion on a boat laden with dynamite, a new bomb outrage and an earthquake. Investigation by the shore police in Manhattan, Jersey City and Hoboken, the harbor police and soldiers on Governors Island disclosed, however, that the upsetting of the tug and barge and the detonation had no relation to each other. The blasts, it developed, were due to the activities of army engineers at Governors Island, and the sinking of the boats to a tank, causing the shudden shifting of the sand with which the barge was laden. All of the members of the crew were saved.

About 1,500 passengers on the Staten Island ferryboat Manhattan and hundreds of others on the waterfront and aboard harbor craft saw the overturning of the barge and tug. A sudden shift of the sand caused the barge to list sharply, and before the tug could be got clear the barge pulled the tug to a sharp slant, from which she turned keel upward. The tugboat Terrier, which was near by, went to the assistance of the crew struggling in the water.

The tug, which was the Phoenix 30 of the Goodwin-Gallagher Sand and Gravel Company, in command of Captain Wilson, had launched her lifeboat before she turned turtle, and all but three of the nine members of the crew were safely in it. The Terrier picked up the other three men.

Two navy airplanes sailed over the spot where the two boats sank, apparently for the purpose of aiding in the rescue work.

Find $24,000 Radium Needles in Rubbish.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—Two radium needles, valued at $24,000, were found today in rubbish at the Medical Arts Building here. They had been missing since Wednesday, when they were inadvertently swept from a table in an operating room. The office force joined the building's porters in an all-day search before they were found. The needles are three-quarters of an inch long and one-sixteenth of an inch in diameter. They have a slender aperture at one end into which the precious element is poured.

cord with those of the Secretary of State. The preference for Root is due partly to the feeling that even holding views on the League of Nations that are out of harmony with those of a majority of the Republican members of the Senate, he would not be so objectionable as Hughes, and would show a spirit of conciliation when his views differed from those of the President.

Hoover's name has also come in for much discussion in connection with the new Cabinet, and it is expected that the advisability of appointing him will be discussed by the President-elect with Fall, Frelinghuysen and Daugherty. Mr. Hoover is unpopular with many Republican Senators. Some object to him because of his endorsement of Wilson's appeal to the electorate in 1918 to elect a Democratic Congress. Some assert that he has criticised Harding, and it is said that the President-elect has been told of these alleged unkind remarks.

For a time there was a strong desire on Harding's part to have Hoover in his Cabinet. That desire is not now so apparent and some think that Hoover's name has been erased from the Cabinet list, not because of alleged criticism charged to the latter, but for other reasons.

There is every evidence, however, that the President-elect will be advised by some Republican Senators that it would be well to invite Hoover to join his official family. These Senators feel that the great majority of citizens would approve this choice and give Harding credit for trying to surround himself with men of administrative ability.

The same argument applies in the case of Root. It is said in Republican circles that with Root and Hoover as advisers Mr. Harding would be able to assert that he had fulfilled the expectation that he intended to have a "big" Cabinet.

Harding Feeling Pressure for Root.

ON BOARD PRESIDENT-ELECT HARDING'S TRAIN (Associated Press). President-elect Harding put his cares out of mind tonight as he neared Florida and told his companions on his vacation jaunt that he purposed to forget entirely for the next two weeks the important decisions that are ahead of him.

Despite his efforts to get away from worries, however, speculation about the cabinet situation increased rather than diminished among those about him on his trip South.

At the same time, indications multiplied that the whole problem was still in a state of flux and that final decisions on every one of the ten Cabinet places must be reached during Mr. Harding's stay in Florida.

It was said authoritatively that such tenders of Cabinet places as the President-elect has made were conditional, and that many elements of the situation remained to be harmonized before there could be actual selections.

The latest suggestion heard among those close to Mr. Harding is that Charles E. Hughes, generally regarded as a leading possibility for Secretary of State, might receive an offer of the Attorney Generalship instead, and that the State portfolio might be given to Elihu Root, whose friends are understood to be bringing strong pressure to bear in his behalf.

In the same quarters it has been proposed that Charles G. Dawes of Chicago, urged prominently for Secretary of the Treasury, be made Governor of the Federal Reserve board, leaving the Treasury post for A. W. Mellon of Pittsburgh.

Mr. Harding is maintaining silence and putting the whole question over for decision after he returns to St. Augustine from his fishing trip

Express Elevators to Revised Prices

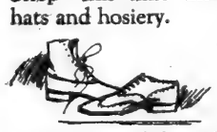
Manufacturers willing to make sacrifices to finish up a disturbed season's business naturally have sought an outlet where the sacrifice in price may prove a prestige-making investment.

Several such instances have occurred among those who regularly turn out things offered in The Man's Shop—this time including makers of shoes, shirts, hats and hosiery.

SHOES



Three fine offerings at $8.75—carrying you back to pre-war values, as compared with the high-price peak happily left behind.

One, a dark brown brogue Oxford shoe for Summer or Winter, of splendidly selected stock—a shoe of distinction for town or country; another, a brown cordovan high shoe with brown calf top, on English last; and a third, a cordovan brown high shoe of calf. All three are of latest style and luxuriously easy fitting.

SHIRTS

Two selections—one at $2.95 and the other at $3.95—both recently selling at very much higher prices. Tailored to meet The Man's Shop standard—five buttons, and with soft French cuffs of correct dimensions — extremely well finished. At $2.95, of all-woven madras and madras cords of fine foreign and domestic manufacture. At $3.95, of imported all-woven madras, seen in the better custom shirt lines.

Both assortments of carefully picked stripes and colorings, from the most conservative to the limit of accepted usage.

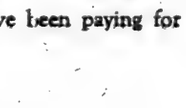
At $4.75—your choice of the season's best productions—averaging much less than original wholesale prices; in some instances one-half.

Fine black stiff hats and soft hats of newest American and English blocks, in seal brown, French brown, Italian green, Oxford, French gray and mixtures. All sizes. The retail prices of all these hats were consistent with the highest grades in this country.

HOSIERY



Full-fashioned Lisle half-hose at 75 cents a pair! Mercerized Lisle—reinforced soles and heels—in black, white, cordovan, navy, suede and tan. You know what you have been paying for full-fashioned Lisle hosiery.

A Story About A School Teacher

Citizens of Cranford, New Jersey, lost a good teacher in their High School when Miss Helen Bradbeer felt that she could not afford to continue to work for less than $25 a week, which was her average salary for the 208 weeks she taught.

A graduate of Barnard College, exceptionally talented, she decided on a business career, after failing to get ahead as a teacher. In four years she had been able to lay by less than $100. There are always demands on teachers that eat up pretty rapidly their small salaries. What a pity it is that we pay our teachers so little!

Miss Bradbeer obtained an important position in the Consolidated Budget Division of Henry L. Doherty & Company, 60 Wall Street. This, by the way, is a very important department of the Doherty business. Receipts and disbursements are budgeted many months in advance for all of the Doherty enterprises by Louis F. Musil and his able assistant, David W. Harris, who is in direct charge of this department. It is "Safety" to look and to plan ahead!

There are three big words in the Doherty organization: WORK, SERVICE, SAFETY.

The exceptional talent of Miss Bradbeer won her a place in this department where she earns in salary and "perquisites" enough to enable her to lay aside about $1,000 a year, which she invests in safe securities and lets interest and special dividends pile up.

In another five years Miss Bradbeer expects to materially increase her holdings of safe securities, because she has developed as a good saleswoman after a course in Dr. L. F. Fuld's School for Security Salesmen, which is operated by the Doherty organization. She was graduated from her class, consisting of over one hundred men and women, with highest honors. She had an average of 95.8 per cent, which college girls, as well as college men and children in public schools, know is "stepping along some."

Dr. Fuld conducts his classes from 8 to 9 in the morning, so as not to interfere with the regular business day. On Saturdays "he has school" after business hours.

On January 12 Miss Bradbeer addressed, by request, the Wednesday Morning Woman's Club, of Cranford, N. J., outlining very clearly the fundamentals of finance, which most women do not know very much about, but seem very anxious to understand.

At social functions and on vacation trips her friends "josh" her a good deal about her "financial mind," but she takes it good-naturedly, "talks right out in meeting" to them, and generally winds up by selling them some securities. Her small commissions on sales run up during a year to a very snug sum.

The Employes' Ball Last Night.

Miss Bradbeer acted as chairman of the committtee which had in charge the details of the ball held last night on the Waldorf Roof, which was attended by 500 employes of the New York office of Henry L. Doherty & Company and their guests.

This was a "thrifty" affair. Each employe chippped in $1.65, which paid $300 for rent of the Roof, $150 for the orchestra and the balance for refreshments.

This would not have been possible if it were not a real "get-together" affair. There was no doubt of the good time enjoyed by all.

Do you want to be thrifty? Do you want to invest the proceeds of your thrift? I think it will pay you to write to Henry L. Doherty & Company, 60 Wall Street, or to call there and get information that will start you on the road to prosperity and happiness.

GET $12,000 LOOT AND SIX PRISONERS

Three Men and Three Women Held in Paterson Jewelry Store Hold-Up.

TRACED BY AUTO LICENSE

Mt. Vernon Woman Lured Away by False Message While Home Is Plundered.

Three men and three women were arrested by detectives of the East 104th Street Station early this morning in connection with the hold-up of the jewelry store of R. A. Caplan & Son, 33 Main Street, Paterson, N. J., yesterday morning. Two of the men and the three women were arrested in an apartment at 507 West 139th Street, where the detectives found thirty-eight rings, valued at $12,000, which were declared by the detectives to be part of the $20,000 worth of jewelry taken by two of the bandits from the store after they had forced Harry Rosenberg, a salesman, into a rear room and bound and gagged him.

The arrests were obtained by tracing the automobile in which the bandits escaped after the robbery. A witness gave Lieutenant Joseph Mosely, head of the Paterson detective force, the license number of the car, which proved to be owned by Julius Damio, 35 years old, a hackman, living at 166 East 105th Street in this city.

Several Paterson detectives hurried here and assisted New York detectives in arresting Damio in West Thirty-sixth Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues, late yesterday afternoon. Damio was taken to the East 104th Street Station, where he was questioned for several hours by Detective Sergeant William Quaine, head of the detectives of that district.

Finally half a dozen New York and Paterson detectives went to the apartment in West 139th Street, where they arrested John Elwood, 25 years old, a chauffeur, of 56 Paterson Street, Paterson; William Payton, 24 years old, of 56 Hamburg Avenue, Paterson; Julia Herman, 35 years old, who admitted she was the occupant of the apartment; Annie Schler, 22 years old, of 69 North First Street, Paterson, and Sylvia Oesterle, 22 years old, of 254 Third Avenue, this city. They denied any knowledge of the hold-up, but the detectives began a systematic search of the apartment and behind a radiator in one of the bedrooms found a paper bag containing the thirty-eight rings. They were identified at the station house by Rosenberg as part of the loot taken by the two bandits who held him up.

It was admitted by the detectives that four other men were being sought by the police in connection with the hold-up. Elwood was charged with being one of the bandits, and Damio, the owner of the automobile in which the men fled, and Payton were charged with being accessories. Detective Sergeant Quaine declared at 2 o'clock this morning he was hopeful of recovering the remainder of the jewelry.

Mrs. William F. Borsdorff, wife of a New York broker, received a telephone call at her home, 652 Lafayette Avenue, Mount Vernon, yesterday morning from a man who said he was a physician and that Mr. Borsdorff had become suddenly ill on the street and had been taken to the "physician's" office at 176 West Seventy-sixth Street.

"Don't excite yourself, madam," advised the man in a well modulated voice. "While Mr. Borsdorff is in no immediate danger, I suggest that you hurry to my office to see him."

Mr. Borsdorff had started for his office about an hour before the telephone message was received, and the news of his illness made Mrs. Borsdorff so nervous that she failed to ask the "physician's" name. Turning to her maid, Anna Knohus, Mrs. Borsdorff said: "Anna, Mr. Borsdorff is ill in New York. I'll hurry down to see him, and you take care of William [the couple's five-year-old son] until I return."

Mrs. Borsdorff reached the West Seventy-sixth Street address about an hour later, found that it was a church, and that nobody there knew anything about her husband's illness. She attempted to telephone to her home to make certain of the address, but could get no response.

Convinced that something was wrong, Mrs. Borsdorff returned to her home to find that the maid and her son were missing. She found the house in disorder and that $1,500 worth of her jewelry, including three diamond rings, several scarf pins and a necklace, besides several checks, had been stolen.

Search of the maid's room showed that her clothing had not been removed from the closet, and Mrs. Borsdorff concluded that robbers had done away with the maid and her child when they entered the house. She ran to a nearby house to ask for aid when the surprised neighbor said: "Why, Anna brought William to my house soon after you left, and asked me to take care of him until she returned from an errand." The overjoyed mother then clasped her son in her arms.

Detectives made an investigation, but could not trace the thieves.

On Thursday night thieves forced an entrance into the Roman Catholic Church of the Nativity at Classon Avenue and Madison Street, Brooklyn, and after taking fro the altar ornaments valued at several thousands of dollars ripped crucifixes from the side altars and wantonly scratched the marble panels of the tabernacle and all three altars.

The robbery was discovered early yesterday morning when the Rev. John L. Belford, pastor of the church, was preparing for first mass.

Coincident with the report of this robbery it was learned that on the night of Jan. 6 thieves forced the safe in the rectory of the Church of St. Francis Xavier, at Sixth Avenue and Carroll Street, Brooklyn, and escaped with $300 in cash and $5,000 in securities, including some Liberty bonds belonging to the priests. On the same night the rectory of St. Joseph's Church, in Pacific Street, near Vanderbilt Avenue, was robbed of a considerable sum of money, some watches and several valuable crucifixes.

Refuses to End Capital Punishment.

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 21. — The Nebraska State Senate, by a vote of 20 to 7, refused today to abolish capital punishment "at this time because of the present national crime wave."

MUSHROOMS BLOOM IN BREWERY NOW

Adolph G. Hupfel Jr., President of the New York Brewers' Board of Trade, returned to New York last night after a session with the Ways and Means Committee of the House in Washington, hopeful that new tariff legislation would embody protection for a struggling infant industry fostered by prohibition. Mr. Hupfel is President of A. Hupfel's Sons, who once had a big brewery at 161st Street and Third Avenue in the Bronx. This year the great plant, stripped of the last suspicion of the teasing fragrance of hops and the bracing tang of alcohol, is expected to produce 200,000 pounds of cultivated mushrooms.

It is because this country produces but 400,000 pounds a year of its annual consumption of 9,000,000 pounds that Mr. Hupfel asked for a duty of 50 cents a pound on the imported canned article, whether whole or dried. He said he found both Republican and Democratic lawmakers keenly sympathetic with his attempt to turn his plant into a new and useful line of production, and believed from their attitude they would grant the industry needed protection.

Waldorf Wine Cellars a Gymnasium.

The new Waldorf-Astoria gymnasium, in the famous old wine cellars of the hotel, two floors underground, was formally opened yesterday, when Roy Carruthers, the managing director, and Oscar Tschirky, the chef, acted as referees and judges of the wrestling, boxing, tug-of-war and sprints among the 200 employes, who comprised the first "class."

'FEMALE PONZI'S' FIANCE CALLS HER SWINDLER

Prisoner Calls on Jersey Man for Aid and He Swears Out Warrant.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—Remembered by gullible residents of Newfield, N. J., as one who separated them from many thousands of dollars and whose operations, the police believe will total nearly $75,000, Mildred M. Boniface of Everett, whom they call a female "Ponzi," was found today by detectives living in lavishly furnished apartments in Broad Street. Her arrest followed a telegram received from Oscar B. Redow, prosecutor of Woodbury, N. J.

The woman has a criminal record, the police say. At a hearing before Magistrate Mecleary she was held to await requisition papers from New Jersey. Robert Mountford, a motor truck dealer of Haddon Heights, N. J., says he was "virtually engaged" to the prisoner. She summoned him to her aid by telephone, but his ardor cooled suddenly and he swore out a warrant charging her with obtaining $5,000 and upwards from him by false pretenses. Mrs. Hannah Mountford of Haddon Heights, his mother, he said, had been defrauded of $7,000 by the woman. She is expected to swear out a warrant today.

According to Mountford, the woman who ended her life by leaping from a ferryboat between this city and Camden last night answers the description of his wife Mary, missing for more than a week. He had been separated from his wife more than a year, and believes his infatuation for the woman under arrest had a bearing on his wife's act.

The specific charge on which the prisoner is held is for obtaining $2,500 from Everett Marshall of Newfield by false pretenses.

Mountford said the woman gave his mother a note for the $7,000 and promised to give his parent $20,000 when the Hanjes estate was settled. He said the prisoner had asserted she was a granddaughter of the former member of the J. P. Morgan firm.

To others, the police say, she claimed to be a niece of the late John G. Johnson, a lawyer, and in another story said she was the daughter of Charles Boniface of Atlantic City.

GIRL'S DRUGGING MYSTERY.

Chicago Authorities Baffled by Case of Ruth O'Shea.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Chemists, medical men and police confessed themselves baffled today over the story told by Ruth O'Shea, a young girl, who says she was rendered senseless and robbed of $80 by a mysterious woman who invited her to smell a handkerchief, saturated with perfume.

Medical men style the girl's story impossible in the face of the known effects of drugs that produce anaesthesia. "I know of no drug that could produce a condition of this kind," said Dr. John Dill Robertson, Health Commissioner.

"There is no drug or perfume in existence which would have this effect," said Dr. H. A. McGuigan, Professor of Toxicology at the University of Illinois Medical School.

Even Dr. David O'Shea, the girl's father, agrees that no known drug could render a person unconscious by a few breaths in the open air. The girl was comatose for sixteen hours.

"There are only two theories," said a detective. "One is that Miss O'Shea was slugged by a man in a woman's clothes. The other is that the robber possessed some drug more powerful than any known to medical science."

FOUR FIRES IN YORKVILLE.

Suspicious Blazes Start Search for Pyromaniac.

Four fires of suspicious origin early yesterday morning within a radius of half a mile in the Yorkville district caused detectives of the East Eighty-eighth Street Station and Assistant Fire Marshal James A. Tierney to institute a search for a pyromaniac.

Shortly after 2 o'clock a tenant in the five-story tenement at 1,540 First Avenue smelled smoke and aroused the four families in the building. The firemen traced the blaze to a pile of rubbish in the cellar. While the firemen were returning to their quarters an alarm was turned in for a fire in the basement of a tenement house at 1,628 First Avenue, occupied by twenty-two families. A heap of burning rubbish was found in the basement.

The third blaze was in the rear of a tailor shop on the ground floor of 1,292 Lexington Avenue. The fourth alarm came half an hour later for a fire in the basement of the five-story tenement at 219 East Eighty-fifth Street. Eighteen families were driven to the street by the smoke. Little damage was done in any of the fires.

TO SEE DYING FATHER.

Magistrate Releases Prisoner on Receipt of Message From Home.

Harold J. Oliver, who served with the A. E. F. in France, a taxicab owner-driver, was sentenced ten days ago by Magistrate Fish in the Brooklyn Traffic Court for driving his automobile while intoxicated.

Yesterday morning in Raymond Street Jail, as he was waiting for his term to end at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, he received a telegram saying his father was dying. Magistrate Fish ordered his release at once. Later the Magistrate received a telegram from Oliver telling him he was exceedingly grateful.

TWO LANDLORDS FINED $200.

No Heat or Hot Water—Jailed 60 Days for Coal Fraud.

Convicted of failing to provide heat and hot water, Frieda Mooney, 182 Albany Avenue, and Louis Argornizza, 82 Kingston Avenue, were fined $200 each in Special Sessions, Brooklyn, yesterday. The alternative was thirty days in jail. Both paid the fines.

John Avito of 353 Dumont Avenue was found guilty of selling 1,800 pounds of coal as a full ton and was sentenced to sixty days in jail.

City Club for Daylight Saving.

In a letter sent yesterday to State Senator Mortimer X. Ferris, Chairman of the Committee on Agriculture, the City Club came out in favor of the daylight saving law. It was pointed out that daylight saving was more than an agricultural matter. "The present law benefits the health, happiness and economical productivity of the citizens throughout the State," continued the letter. "Its advantages are almost too obvious to need argument."

LINKS AUTO THIEVES WITH POLICE HERE

DEPUTY SHERIFF INDICTED

Authorities in Nassau County believe they have uncovered evidence that organized automoblie thieves disposing of their plunder in that county paid protection to certain members of the New York City police force. Coincident with the indictment of Aubrey Pettit, Deputy Sheriff of Nassau, and Superintendent of county buildings in Mineola, on two counts of receiing stolen automobiles, it was announced that District Attorney Weeks would turn over the evidence gathered thus far to ex-Governor Charles S. Whitman, who is investigating the Police Department for District Attorney Swann.

The Mineola investigation, it is said, which has resulted in the indictment of Pettit and of Carman Plant, recently dismissed as county detective, has not reached its final stage, and Mr. Weeks declined to reveal the precise nature of the discoveries in which he believed Mr. Whitman would be interested.

One of the charges against Pettit concerns a coupé he is alleged to have purchased and sold to Thomas Powell of Freeport, L. I. The other covers a coupé which, it is charged, Pettit kept for himself. One of the cars is alleged to have been sold to him by Matthew O'Neil, now serving seven years in Sing Sing for criminally receiving stolen automobiles. The other he is said to have bought from William Hoffman, also under indictment for criminally receiving stolen goods. Both offenses are said to have been committed in February, 1919. The two cars have been seized by the authorities.

Members of Mr. Weeks's staff refused to say where the two cars are alleged to have been stolen, but it was learned at least one is said to have been the property of a New York City man. The motor number of the car Pettit sold was changed, and that on the car he retained was erased. Detective Luse, acting for the New York Underwriters Protective League, traced both cars through their secret factory numbers.

Pettit, a brother of Stephen P. Pettit, former Sheriff of Nassau County, once was Chief of Police of Long Beach, and is a Past Exalted Ruler of the Freeport Lodge of Elks. He waived immunity, and appeared before the Grand Jury. He is said to have admitted buying the cars, asserting he obtained them from a man named Clayton in a garage in Roebling Street, Brooklyn. The prosecution will contend no such man was connected with the garage.

It is expected that Pettit will be arraigned for pleading today. At the same time Plant will be placed on trial. The indictments charge Plant with criminally receiving a stolen automobile, with conspiracy, and with failure to perform his duty as a public official.

COL. PORTER PROPOSED FOR ENRIGHT'S POST

Tammany Said to Back Internal Revenue Supervisor, Who Has Conferred With Hylan.

Colonel Daniel L. Porter, Supervising Internal Revenue Agent for the New York district, has been suggested to Mayor Hylan for appointment as Police Commissioner in the event of the retirement of Commissioner Richard E. Enright, it was learned yesterday. Colonel Porter went to the City Hall on Tuesday to see Mayor Hylan by appointment, it was said, and discussed the police situation with him. No definite offer of the Police Commissionership is believed to have been made by the Mayor and the question of Colonel Porter's appointment was said to depend entirely upon whether or not Commissioner Enright resigns.

Confirmation of the report that Colonel Porter had been suggested was obtained at his office in the Custom House.

Colonel Porter was reported to have the backing of certain influential Tammany leaders, whose friendship he has gained during the two years he has been the Supervising Internal Revenue Agent here. Tammany is afraid of the police issue in the city campaign, and some of the leaders of that organization were said to have urged upon Mayor Hylan the desirability of appointing a new Police Commissioner before the campaign begins.

REFUSES TO TAKE $1,000,000

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 21. — A "love gift" in the form of a voluntary release from and cancellation of judgment for $1,000,000 against L. B. Reakirt was placed on record in Hamilton County Common Pleas Court here late today by his son, Robert H. Reakirt, aged 24 years, who, it is stated, is married and lives in Philadelphia.

The judgment was awarded to the son in 1906, when his mother, Mrs. Anna Howard Reakirt, an Eastern society leader, secured a divorce from L. B. Reakirt, and was to be payable when the boy became of age or when the father died. The attorney said that the only consideration for the release from the judgment was the son's affection for his father.

Lieberman Conviction Reversed.

The conviction of Leon Lieberman, one of the election officers prosecuted for making fraudulent returns of the Mitchel-Bennett Mayoralty primary in 1917, was reversed by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court yesterday and a new trial was ordered. Lieberman was Chairman of the board in the Seventh Election District of the Seventeenth Assembly District, where the count was wrong by eight votes. Lieberman's sole act was to certify that the count given him by another official was correct. The Appellate Division ruled that it should be shown at the trial whether Lieberman certified the false vote intentionally.

ting the specific proof that the police received graft for throwing business to the agencies is a matter expected to require high-grade detective work and to involve expense.

Other Departments Under Fire.

Mr. Whitman has made considerable headway in investigating at least two city departments besides the police. Some of the police cases under investigation lead into other departments.

Mr. Whitman and his assistants yesterday questioned sixteen members of the Police Automobile Squad following an investigation of the complaints of citizens that they had been forced to pay liberal rewards before they could recover their stolen automobiles.

Automobiles are stolen in New York City at the average rate of seven a day and the total has reached 304 in a month. The large increase in automobile thefts has been a notable feature of Enright's administration.

Mr. Whitman probably will ask on Monday for indictments in connection with automobile thefts and demands for gratuities in connection with recovering them.

Mr. Whitman's assistants have been comparing the police records of automobile thefts with the complaints of owners who have been compelled to pay large sums for the return of their stolen cars. The question of illegal gratuities is not the only one involved, as charges have been made that certain policemen have acted in concert with automobile thieves and that cars have been stolen, not to be resold, but to be turned back to the owner for the reward.

District Attorney Swann, who had been worrying over the prospect of making good his promise to furnish Mr. Whitman with all the help required, expressed much pleasure over the offer of Mr. Hatch.

"Splendid," he said. "This is very characteristic of Ed Hatch's generous impulses. He is a very brave man. Few people appreciate the personal danger he has undergone in his effort to stop the pollution of the waters of New York City."

Eugene F. McGee argued before Judge Crain in General Sessions yesterday in favor of an immediate trial for Captain William A. Bailey, who is accused of extorting a "gratuity" from fur manufacturers. Assistant District Attorney Frederic Sullivan told the court that the immediate trial of Captain Bailey would not be in the interest of justice.

"The District Attorney," he said, "does not wish to show his hand at present. If Captain Bailey were put on trial, it might necessitate the disclosure of a certain line of investigation which is being pursued and which he does not desire to disclose at this time."

Judge Crain reserved decision.

WASHINGTON BIBLE SELLS FOR $3,700

CONTAINS FAMILY RECORDS

First Edition of "Paradise Lost" Brings $2,500—Total for Smith Sale Now $163,478.

The sale of the third part of the collection of books and autographs of the estate of George D. Smith was closed last evening at the Anderson Galleries. The highest price was $3,700, paid by Ernest Dressel North for Martha Washington's family Bible. It was printed at the Clarendon Press, Oxford, England, in 1783, and has her autograph in three distinct places in the volume. The fly leaves at the front of the book contain the manuscript record of Lawrence Lewis, George Washington's nephew, and his wife, Eleanor Parke Custis, Washington's adopted daughter, and the birth of their eight children.

Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach gave $2,500 for the first edition of John Milton's "Paradise Lost" with the first title page and in the original binding; $2,460 for a unique edition of Coverdale's New Testament dated 1546; $700 for the "Life of Sir John Old Castle," second edition of one of the pseudo plays of Shakespeare, London, 1600; $1,010 for "Henry the Fifth," Shakespeare, London, 1608, third edition of one of the rarest of the quartos; $1,200 for the earliest issues of the first edition of Edmund Spenser's "Faerie Queene," $485 for a manuscript of a portion of an unpublished play by William M. Thackeray, and $1,400 for George Washington's copy, with his autograph and book plate, of John Trunbull's "McFingal."

"The acts of the General Assembly of New Jersey," printed by William Bradford at Perth Amboy in 1723, was bought on order for $1,175. Gabriel Wells gave $420 for "The Two Noble Kinsmen," London, 1634, sole edition in quarto of this pseudo Shakespearean play. Charles Sessler of Philadelphia paid $1,600 for a first edition of Isaac Walton's "Compleat Angler" in the original binding.

The session brought a total of $27,678. The grand total for Parts 1, 2 and 3 is $163,478.

The record effort to be confined in Sing Sing prison was made before Judge Crain in General Sessions yesterday by a prisoner who offered to plead guilty to a greater crime so that he could go to Sing Sing for a longer term rather than be sent to the penitentiary for a short term. He was James Liston, who said he lived at 397 Pulaski Street, Brooklyn. He pleaded guilty to assault in the third degree and was sentenced to six months to three years in the penitentiary.

"Your Honor, don't send me there," protested Liston. "I don't want to go to the penitentiary. I want to be sent to Sing Sing. You get $10 and a suit of clothes when you get out of Sing Sing. You get nothing when you leave the 'pen.'"

The Court explained that assault in the third degree was a misdemeanor, a penitentiary offense, but not one on which a State prison sentence could be given. Liston then said he desired to change his plea to assault in the second degree, a felony and a crime carrying a prison sentence. He was permitted to make the change, whereupon the Court, to the apparent satisfaction of the defendant, sentenced him to five years in Sing Sing.

Liston beat Annie Davis with a piece of lead pipe in her room at 2,179 Eighth Avenue on Jan. 6. She had him convicted in 1919 on a charge of robbery and he attacked her in revenge. In 1908 Liston was sentenced to ten years for arson in Brooklyn.

BOSTON BANKER'S WIFE MISSING IN NEW YORK

Police Asked to Hunt for Mrs. Margaret Stedman—Had $10,000 in Money and Jewelry.

Headquarters detectives and police of the West Thirtieth Street Station made a tour of hospitals last night in a search for Mrs. Margaret Stedman, wife of a Boston banker, who is said to have arrived here late yesterday afternoon from Hartford, Conn. She was last seen in Fifth Avenue, just north of Twenty-third Street, about 5 o'clock.

It was said that relatives who accompanied Mrs. Stedman here reported to the police early in the night that she was missing and that she was accustomed to call at hospitals for treatment without revealing her identity. She is about fifty years old, well dressed, and is said to have had $10,000 in jewelry and money on her person when she disappeared. She wore a diamond ring worth $5,000, the police were told.

At 11 o'clock the detectives had visited the New York, Roosevelt and Bellevue Hospitals without finding a clue to her whereabouts.

CABLE SUIT ARGUED.

Decision Reserved on Government's Application for an Injunction.

Argument on the application of the Government for a preliminary injunction restraining the Western Union Telegraph Company from attempting to land a cable at Miami Beach, Fla., was heard yesterday by Federal Judge A. N. Hand.

The suit of the Government was instituted to prevent the linking of cables between this country and Brazil, via Barbados. The point is to prevent the Western Telegraph Company, a British concern, from benefiting through a cable connection with this country, whose citizens are debarred from similar privileges in Brazil because of the monopoly held there by the British company. The latter was not named as a defendant because of lack of jurisdiction.

Decision was reserved.

BOY BANDIT KILLS HIMSELF.

Kansas High School Senior Had Confessed to Hold-Up and Other Crimes.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Jan. 21.—Wallace Ringle, a senior in the Pittsburg High School and business manager of the high school paper, killed himself this morning. Ringle was arrested yesterday, charged with holding up a Pittsburg store clerk Wednesday night, and was said to have confessed to the charge as well as to several other crimes. He had been at liberty on bond.

Ringle swallowed poison.

With Ringle were arrested two other youths, who also confessed to recent robberies. A note sent by Ringle to one of the other boys in school yesterday boasting of a robbery the night before, reached the police and caused Ringle's arrest.

Sweden Names New Minister Here.

Mr. Wallenberg is a brother of the former Foreign Minister, K. A. Wallenberg. He has been prominent as a business man. He is President of the Swedish Lawn Tennis Association.

THE SCREEN

Charlie Chaplin is himself again—at his best, in some ways better than his previous best, and also, it is to be regretted, at his worst, only not with so much of his worst as has spoiled some of his earlier pictures. His return to the screen after more than a year's absence is in "The Kid," which was shown last night at Carnegie Hall as the feature of an entertainment for the benefit of the Children's Fund of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures. In the near future the picture will come to the Strand Theatre for its regular Broadway run.

"The Kid" is not only the longest comedy in which Chaplin has appeared since becoming the best-known figure of the film world, but it is real comedy. That is, it has something of a plot, its people are characters, and the fun of it is balanced with sadness. And Chaplin is more of a comedian than a clown. It is the comedy that has been foreshadowed by the former shorter Chaplin works.

Also, although the screen's unequaled comedian is in no danger of losing his laurels to any one, haste must be made to mention a new individual in his company, as much of an individual as Chaplin himself, and a source of immense delight. This person is a wonderful youngster by the name of Jack Coogan, surely not more than 6 or 7 years old, and as finished, even if unconscious, an actor as the whole screen aggregation of players is likely to show. He is The Kid, and he will be remembered in the same image with Chaplin. They have many scenes together, and every one of them belongs to both of them. Come on, Jack Coogan, there must be more of you.

The blemish on "The Kid" is the same that has marred many of Chaplin's other pictures—vulgarity, or coarseness. There is only a little of it in the present work, just two scenes that will be found particularly offensive by some. They are funny. That cannot be denied. One laughs at them, but many try not to, and are provoked with themselves and Chaplin for their laughing. This is not good. The laugh that offends good taste doesn't win. And these scenes would never be missed from "The Kid." It has plenty of unadulterated fun to go far and long without them. Why can't Chaplin leave out such stuff? Why don't the exhibitors delete it?

There is less pure horse-play in "The Kid" than in the other Chaplins. The comedian depends chiefly upon his inimitable pantomime, and it scores every time. He also gets many laughs from the ludicrous situations which he concocts. There's nothing clumsy about the picture's continuity. Its "comedy relief" actually comes as a well-timed relief.

The story is simply about a curious derelict who has an abandoned baby thrust upon him. His life with the child fills most of the six reels, and comes to happy issue after a dream of heaven, which for burlesque stands alone.

The competent cast also includes Edna Purviance and Tom Wilson, Chaplin's reliable leading woman and favorite policeman.

Also on the program was the German picture "Passion," with Pola Negri, which rang as true as ever, especially for those who delight in the purity of its acting.

Between the pictures Michio Itow danced, and was well received.

ACTORS' FUND GETS $22,000.

A Fine Program at Annual Benefit at Century Theatre.

The annual benefit of the Actors' Fund of America packed the Century Theatre yesterday afternoon from cellar to roof, and by the time the program girls had begun to turn in their takings it was reported that the receipts would reach somewhere in the neighborhood of $22,000. All the acts that had been promised were actually given, and, what is more, were given pretty much in the order announced in the program. With this spectacular achievement to his credit, Daniel Frohman is said to be seriously considering the institution of the custom of having the various numbers and sketches as fully rehearsed as they would be for an ordinary vaudeville bill.

Fred Stone with his lariat, the Six Musical Browns with their saxophones, Savoy and Brennan with their manner, Nora Bayes with her voice—that was the nature of the entertainment. The brightest spot in the bill was the production of "Sabotage," that celebrated one-act play which deals with a man calling a strike in the power works of a French city, all unconscious that at that very moment the light is needed in his own home for a critical emergency operation on his own son. Holbrook Blinn, Dorothy Donnelly and Bruce McRae were in the cast, but the play belonged to Margaret Anglin, who played the mother. Then there were scenes from "Enter Madame," "The First Year," "The Hawk," "The Champion" and "The Meanest Man in the World."

Julia Arthur appeared briefly in an intermittently audible recitation composed by Charles Hanson Towne. Its apparent intention was mildly facetious, but the laughter came too soon and with unexpected violence, when, just as Miss Arthur, as Tragedy, was proclaiming that she was not wanted on so joyous an occasion, a mutinous curtain escaped from its moorings and struggled earnestly to banish her then and there.

POLICEMEN HURT IN CRASH.

Two Injured When Side-Car Motorcycle Collides With Auto.

Detective George Raeburn and Policeman John Redmond of the Far Rockaway Station received serious injuries yesterday when a side-car motorcycle in which they were riding dashed into the rear of an automobile operated by Thomas Nolan of Far Rockaway. A few minutes before the two policemen had taken five men to the Far Rockaway Station on suspicion of the theft of a motor truck from Benjamin Lantz, a flour merchant, of 251 East Thirty-third Street.

The intersection of Mott and Hollywood Avenues was dark when the motorcycle turned out of Mott Avenue, and Policeman Redmond, who was operating it, did not see Nolan's car in time to avoid dashing into the rear of it.

MAINE PAPER DISCONTINUES.

Eastern Argus Will Be Succeeded by The Portland Herald.

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 21.—The Daily Eastern Argus, established in 1803 and the oldest newspaper in Maine published continuously without change of name, will discontinue publication Monday morning. It will be succeeded by The Portland Herald on Tuesday morning. Announcement to this effect was made today by the Independent Publishing Company, which has taken over The Argus.

While the paper has been Democratic in politics since the birth of the Democratic Party, The Herald will be independent. Those financially interested in the old company, including Ernest C. Bowler, the business manager, and Don Seitz of New York, have been reinforced by a number of Portland business men.

Grace George's first performance in "The New Morality" will take place at the Playhouse a week from tomorrow night. Thereafter there will be matinees on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays.

THE OPERA

By Richard Aldrich

"Eugene Onegin."

Tschaikovsky's opera of "Eugene Onegin" was restored to the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House last evening with the same cast as appeared in it last year at its first production here. There had been some changes from the cast originally announced for last evening, on account of the indisposition of Miss Jeanne Gordon. She was expected to sing the part of Labina. Instead, Miss Perini was put into it—it being the part she took in the first performance last year; and Miss Ingram took her part of Olga.

The opera will never make an impression by its dramatic quality. It is said to make a strong appeal to Russians because the poem of Pushkin, upon which it is based, is one of the classics of Russian literature, and the character of Onegin is regarded as a "type." He may be considered a literary type of the romantic period—a Byronic hero, a Childe Harold. But for listeners not so affected with a national bias, it is hard to sympathize with so inefficient a sad dog as Onegin, who scarcely succeeds in doing anything in the opera but kill his friend; or with Lenski, absurdly jealous, who loses all hope because his fiancée dances with another man or with the "sensibility" of Tatiana, her lovelorn sentimentality, her romantic impulsiveness and prim propriety—though she does atone for much by the directness with which she sends Onegin about his business in the last act.

And yet the music cannot but exercise a charm. It is truly characteristic of Tschaikovsky in certain moods, not his most exalted. The mood is elegiac. In the few places where the dramatic interest becomes tenser he hardly rises to the occasion, as in the quarrel at the country ball or the scene of the duel. And when the climax of the drama comes in the scene at the end between Onegin and Gatiana, now the Princess Gremin, he has not put his best foot forward. He has in fact done better by less important moments, and he has let the opera close with as little of a musical climax as it has a dramatic one.

If the music be not dramatic, Tschaikovsky's own protestations as to its lack of dramatic quality should be remembered; and his own characterization of the opera as merely "lyrical scenes." It is throughout a genuine expression of his one aspect of his genius.

It may be feared that the performance at the Metropolitan, which is in Italian, may not convey fully the Russian impression. The singing is not such as should be heard at this establishment: the best is given by Mr. De Luca, who never forgets to be an artist and to sing artistically. Having a voice of a no great power, he is wise enough not to force it. Much of his singing was of fine finish and expressiveness. There was in his acting no great force, but the elegance and urbanity of the man of the world. The American listener can only wonder how close he gets to the true type of the romantic hero as presented by Pushkin.

Miss Muzio gave naturalness and the right sentimental turn to her impersonation. But her singing last evening may well have caused disquietude to her admirers. There was fundamental error in her production of tone; and, especially when she forced the tone, a consequent loss of quality, and unsteadiness in the pitch. And yet she has such an abundance of voice that forcing is needless. So has Mr. Martinelli; and his tendency to hurl so many phrases forcibly from the chest is not necessary for the effect, and useful only in acquiring a harvest of applause from more or less unthinking quarters. A bad few moments were offered by the leading singers in the quartet in the first act, in which there was a singular lack of unanimity about the pitch.

In their way Mme. Perim and Mme. Howard were more commendable in their singing. Mr. Bodanzky held a firm hand on the performance; kept it moving with vitality and secured some fine effects, warmth of color and significance of phrasing from the orchestral part. This has an unusual significance for an opera of this kind, which still keeps far from the methods of the "music drama." Yet there were passages which seemed to show the evidences of insufficient rehearsal.

MARY GARDEN HAS MANAGER

She Selects George M. Spangler as Business Associate in Chicago Opera.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Selection of George Miller Spangler as the new business manager of the Chicago Opera Association was announced today by Miss Mary Garden, the new Director of the Opera Association, to her friends at a reception given in her honor at the home of Mrs. William J. Chalmers, 1,100 Lake Shore Drive. Friends of Miss Garden, including many of the Directors of the Opera Association, were invited to be present to bid her good-bye before she leaves for New York tomorrow for the Chicago opera engagement. Miss Garden told these friends that she had selected Mr. Spangler for the position of Business Manager of the Opera Association, but added no details.

Directors of the association said tonight: "You will have to get all your information from Miss Garden. She is the boss now and the only one who can give out any facts."

The new business manager of the opera association was born in Cleveland, Ohio, in 1874, and has been manager of the Bureau of Conventions for the Chicago Association of Commerce for several years. He is known for his athletic activities and is a swimmer of some note.

PLAYS WITH PHILHARMONIC.

Ellen Ballon, Young Pianist, Pleases—Hadley Gives "Youth and Life."

Ellen Ballon, pianist, 19 years old, said to have played once as a child in old Mendelssohn Hall, made her first appearance with orchestra as well as her first with the added personal value of ripening years at yesterday's Philharmonic matinée in Carnegie Hall. She was heard in Saint-Saens's fourth concerto in C minor, with the hundred men led by Stransky, and won a cordial reception for a young artist.

Henry Hadley opened the matinée as associate conductor, presenting his symphony, "Youth and Life," a work that even today disarms criticism by its title as well as its frank treatment of tuneful themes. Before the solo number Mr. Stransky repeated Strauss's "Till Owlglass," while in closing there was the "Carnival" overture of Dvorak.

Rudolph Ganz, Pianist, Plays.

Rudolph Ganz, the Swiss pianist, returning from a tour of his own country and France, played to a full house at Aeolian Hall last night, a musical assembly that found no terrors in the fact of two sonatas in one recital. The works were Beethoven's Op. 26, in A flat, and Chopin's in B minor, less often heard. In both Mr. Ganz displayed an understanding of the composer's purposes that gave somewhat of mirror polish to familiar melodic outlines, without exaggeration or seeking after personal effect. He prefaced the pair with four little pieces by Chopin, and added later four of his own, including a new "Scherzino," Op. 29, closing with the "Heroic Elegy" and "Rakoczy March" of Liszt.

MUSIC NOTES.

"Zaza" will be repeated at the Metropolitan tonight by Miss Farrar and a large cast as the annual benefit performance for the French Hospital. The institution, which is non-sectarian and is supported by contributions, treats patients of all nationalities.

The Philharmonic Orchestra at the Brooklyn Commercial High School tonight presents Dvorak's "New World," Bruch's violin concerto, with Bernard Kugel; Hadley's "Culprit Fay," led by the composer, and Schubert's "Omnipotence," with the University Glee Club.

Ernest Dohnanyi, the Hungarian pianist and composer, is sailing next week from Rotterdam. He will make his reappearance in New York with the National Symphony, playing later with the orchestras of Boston and Cincinnati.

New York's second "music week" has been put forward from May 1-7 to April 17-24 so as to fall within the season of the Metropolitan Opera House.

The Rand School music league had a concert last evening by the Russian Trio.

YES!

This afternoon marks the last matinee of MECCA, and tonight's performance marks its last night at the Century Theatre.

This great artistic and sensational success is closing, not owing to lack of patronage, as our receipts this week will be over $35,000, which is probably more than any other attraction playing in New York.

MECCA has played the greatest engagement ever known in the history of the Century Theatre, far bigger than Aphrodite and far bigger than Chu Chin Chow, but we have a contract with the Chicago Opera Association to open there next Tuesday night and we must fulfill our obligations.

The entire original company and complete production leaves tonight after the performance, being transported direct by two special trains at a cost of $11,000 for railroad fares alone.

We regret very much that we have to leave and disappoint the hundreds of thousands of people who will want to see it.

THE EUROPEAN WORM TURNS.

There have been increasing signs of late that Europe is getting tired of being treated in Jefferson Brick style by the United States. She may be worn out and bankrupt and chaotic and all that, but she still has some dregs of self-respect left. And the constant American assumption that she is bound to do whatever we finally make up our minds to order her to do at last rasps her nerves. The proof of this is seen in the multiplying utterances by European statesmen, and in the articles of European newspapers, to the effect that the Harding Administration need not expect the nations of Europe to wait humbly at the door of the White House to learn their fate.

The cosmopolitan Senator from Massachusetts began the proud scorning of the foreigners. "Why pay any attention," demanded Mr. Lodge, "to "Europe's desires about the League "of Nations? She will have to take "whatever terms we impose, or be "wrecked." Since then this kind of loftily superior talk has flowed in streams. Republicans close to the next President have expatiated on the "thrill of pride" which will warm the hearts of all Americans when they see the representatives of Europe hat in hand at Washington. But it now appears that European public men are no more fond of eating dirt than our own. They are willing to consult, as equals, about changes in the League of Nations, but they don't fancy having changes rammed down their throats.

These plain intimations that have come across the Atlantic are of the nature of a timely and useful warning. They are a good preparation for the discussions that are to follow. It is just as well for the President-elect and his advisers to understand that they must persuade, not coerce, Europe. Even if Americans feel that they are the "greatest people on airth," they are getting a wholesome reminder from over the water that they are expected to behave like gentlemen in international affairs, and not like backwoods yawpers.

INVESTIGATING THE CITY GOVERNMENT.

There is strong belief and evidence that a searching inquiry into Mayor Hylan's Administration ought to be made. Mr. Whitman is a competent investigator, but, irrespective of the granting or refusal of money for his inquiry by the Board of Estimate and the Board of Aldermen, how can he be expected to get at the bottom of the facts? An administration, or part of it, pretending to grope after its own delinquencies is essentially comic. The Mayor is icy toward the District Attorney. The District Attorney is cold to the interesting discoveries and "leads" of Mr. Whitman in the Police Department. The extensions of power, some of them more than doubtful, sought for the Lockwood committee, which has done such notable work in exposing the building scandals, don't include the municipal Administration.

There are just two other processes for an investigation. One is by a legislative committee with ample powers; but, in the case of such a committee, political and partisan motives are sure to hamper to some extent the thoroughness and impartiality of the investigation; and the Republican politicians seem to be divided about the matter. Some of them think, however unreasonably, that it would be bad politics to burrow into Mr. Hylan's Administration. How can one expect zeal or fairness from persons who prefer the supposed interest of the Republican Party here to the good of the city? Governor Miller's recommendation to the Legislature for the extension to all county and municipal offices and departments of his power of examination and investigation, under the Moreland act, indicates the surest method of investigating the New York municipal Administration. Investigators appointed by him could be depended upon to do their work faithfully, without partisan consideration. Of course, some of the Republicans in the Legislature shake their heads mournfully and affect to shudder at such an enlargement of the Governor's power. Are they really afraid of an unprejudiced, non-political, businesslike inquiry?

THE PRESIDENT'S RIGHT TO REFUSE INFORMATION.

Representative Welty of Ohio has introduced a bill which provides, among other things, that the President, when he submits to the Senate nominations of Federal Judges, shall also submit the names of the persons who have recommended the appointments to him. Mr. Welty is a Democrat. It is curious that he has forgotten Grover Cleveland's famous message of March 1, 1886, in which occurred the long memorable phrase, "innocuous desuetude." Various committees in the Senate and finally the Senate itself had been bothering the heads of departments with requests for information why certain officials had been suspended during its recess, and asking for "all documents and papers" in reference to such suspensions.

Mr. Cleveland told the Senate it had no right to the papers and documents it asked for, and no right "by "the aid of any documents whatever, "save through the judicial process of "trial on impeachment, to review or "reverse the acts of the Executive in "the suspension, during the recess of "the Senate, of Federal officials." In a characteristic passage he said:

> The requests and demands which by the score have for nearly three months been presented to the different departments of the Government, whatever may be their form, have but one complexion. They assume the right of the Senate to sit in judgment upon the exercise of my exclusive discretion and Executive function for which I am solely responsible to the people from whom I have so lately received the sacred trust of office. My oath to support and defend the Constitution, my duty to the people who have chosen me to execute the powers of their great office and not to relinquish them, and my duty to the Chief Magistracy, which I must preserve unimpaired in all its dignity and vigor, compel me to refuse compliance with these demands.

This is as true of appointments as of suspensions. It is the constitutional power of the President to make appointments. The information and the reasons by which he is guided in making them are none of the Senate's business. The Senate must determine for itself the fitness of the nominee, and confirm or reject him. It must do its constitutional duty independently as the President has done his. He is not answerable to it for the grounds of his determinations and actions. It is queer to find a Democrat of 1921 in about the same political-intellectual condition as the Republicans who passed the Tenure of Office act in 1867.

THE CLOTHING "CONSPIRACY."

Whether or not the Amalgamated Clothing Workers are engaged in "an unlawful combination and conspiracy," as the clothing manufacturers have formally charged, there is abundant evidence that what they purpose is "wresting and seizing" the industry from its owners.

According to the preamble of their constitution, their object is to "put "the organized working class in actual "control of the system of produc- "tion," to the end that it shall "be ready to take possession of it." A multitude of books and pamphlets which chronicle their achievements and urge their aims breathe the same spirit. Their endeavors have been unceasing to inspire the steel workers and the textile workers with a similar purpose. And now, in the effort to hold the strikers together, they are preaching the doctrine in all its nakedness. The Evening Post of yesterday quotes a speaker as reciting the preamble of the constitution and declaring that the union would never give it up. He added: "We are go- "ing to move heaven and earth to "educate our people that they and "they alone are the owners of the "industry, and not the idlers and "loafers at our backs. The workers "in Russia have found it out. God "bless them!" This speaker was none other than Abraham I. Shiplacoff, manager of the joint board of the clothing workers and socialistic Alderman of Brooklyn.

Whether all this constitutes an unlawful conspiracy may safely be left to the courts. That there is any real danger that the clothing workers will accomplish their purpose, now or hereafter, will be admitted by few sane observers. Not only the vast majority of Americans are set against such madness, but the American Federation of Labor itself stands unalterably against Bolshevism in all its forms. No one knows better than the skilled workman what is implied in "industrial democracy." The real danger is not to our traditional institutions, to ingrained Americanism, but to the clothing workers themselves.

By their strike the clothing workers are gradually weakening the industry. For the sake of impossible demands they are not only suffering in the present, but endangering their future. For though they do not own the industry and never will, they have an interest in it which only they themselves can destroy.

LENINISM IN ITALY.

The process of unification of the working class against its capitalistic oppressors goes on. At the congress of the Italian Socialist Party the faction which favored whole-hearted acceptance of the blood-and-iron policy of the Third International got only about one-third of the votes. In consequence it seceded, leaving Mr. Turati's moderate group, which is opposed to all the doctrines of Moscow, to fight for the control of the party machinery with a middle-of-the-road faction which would ratify with reservations.

The process was lately reversed in France, where the extremists got a majority and obtained control of some at least of the party machinery, but at the price of seeing the moderates walk out. So it goes in Germany, in Bohemia, in America. Lenin, as always, is thoroughly consistent. He proved in Russia that Bolshevism could be put into effect by a small group, provided its members were well disciplined and thoroughly determined—and willing to use machine guns. Rather than a large party of many elements, some of which take seriously old and outworn Marxian doctrines about the proletariat, he prefers for his work abroad a small and easily controllable faction which has no doubts and which is convinced that only the tiny minority of right thinkers is truly proletarian. What accomplishments may ultimately be set down to the credit of Bolshevist leaders we do not know as yet, but it looks as if their first achievement will be the destruction of Socialism.

IDEALS AND PRACTICES.

All philosophic optimists toiling in the newspaper field will be encouraged and sustained by the words of President-elect W. G. Harding, spoken to President Scott of the Northwestern University, who went to Marion to consult Mr. Harding "about helping "to open the Joseph Medill School of "Journalism." President Scott regrets that he failed "to make adequate mental note" of all that Mr. Harding said, but the adjuration to nobler things which we here quote "found place" in his memory:

> The American press has not lived up to its responsibilities in molding the thought of the people. It has limited itself too much to dispensing sensational news and to making money. It has been influenced more by commercial agencies than by ethical standards. It is very important that all available agencies should combine to elevate not only the ideals but also the practices of the American press.

These are words of cheer and uplift. It stimulates ambition to be told that the American press has not lived up to its responsibilities in molding public thought. If perfection were already attained, what would aspiration feed on? It might be urged that before uttering these thoughts Mr. Harding should have broadened his field of study. He declares that the American press "has limited itself too "much to dispensing sensational "news and to making money." The obvious comment would be that perhaps his observation has been too much limited—possibly to the local field. Great numbers of American newspapers have inculpated themselves under the second charge—that of making money—by making it their policy to print news that is vital, essential, important, eschewing mere sensationalism. But retorts get us nowhere. Newspapers earnestly striving after the good, the true and the beautiful should seek to find their profit in Mr. Harding's reproof.

What we all need is a model, a newspaper that will embody the ideal of Mr. Harding, abstaining from practices he deplores. For this high office we nominate The Marion Star, not by reason of its present lofty attainments, but because of its opportunities. Some colleges give, at graduation, a prize to the student who has shown the greatest general improvement. The prize rarely goes to the most brilliant; the judgment of the Faculty more often awards it to some young man who, on entering college, was a poor, unlicked cub of no promise whatever, but whose steady and notable rise through the four years of the course has carried him furthest from the starting point. On that principle The Marion Star, moving toward the Harding ideal with the velocity of nebula 584 (Dreyer), may presently shine with the effulgence of Betelguese to an observer eleven miles away. Mr. Harding, though at present following an avocation, is an editor. It is generally believed that he has considerable influence in the office of The Star. It is a paper, good as it is, that offers room for improvement. For instance, it does not subscribe to the service of The Associated Press. The dispatches of that organization would make it a better newspaper. It is surprising that an editor solicitous for the employment of all "available agencies" for the elevation of the press should so long have neglected this opportunity to lay the foundation stone of a news structure. Mr. Harding regrets that the American press "has been influenced by "commercial agencies rather than by "ethical standards." In many cases this is true, we fear. The Marion Star, for instance, yields too much to the commercial allurement. It publishes many columns of medical advertisements that would never find a place in a New York newspaper of any serious pretensions to respectability. Ethical standards would come up with a fierce, o'ermastering jump if those announcements were, on principle, excluded from The Star.

Right there in Marion, it seems to us, a monument of triumphant idealism might be set up in the view of all newspapers of the country. Ethics would swing her bonnet for joy, responsibility would swell with the pride of being, for once, lived up to, the public thought would be filled with a sense of security in finding a new guide, and commercialism hand in hand with sensationalism would rush down the first steep place to the sea and be choked. The whole press of America would be lifted up and The Marion Star would be the better for it.

INCREDIBLE CHARGES.

Legislative and Congressional investigating committees often appear to inflict cruel and unusual punishments. They give audience and publicity to severe and odious charges against public men. The accusation goes on the wings of the wind before there is any chance for denial or refutation. This seems to be one of the unavoidable evils of what is, on the whole, a useful proceeding.

There is, however, a kind of rough popular justice upon which those falsely accused may depend. The public is not so gullible as to fail to know that some charges are on their face incredible. Of this sort were the intimations that Mr. Schwab had been fobbing off swollen accounts of personal expenses upon the Government. Every sensible man knew that this could not be true. Of whatever else Mr. Schwab might be guilty, he could not have displayed a mean, money-grubbing spirit. The very Chairman of the committee insisted at the time that the whole thing must have been a mistake in bookkeeping, or something of that kind, and that it was absurd to suppose that Mr. Schwab could have been profiting in an underhand way from his war work for the Government. That, indeed, was the general belief, even before Mr. Schwab appeared before the committee to make his indignant denial.

The fact is that there is such a thing as character too well and too long established to be destroyed by aspersions made in this way, even if they seem to have prima-facie support. When people have had the opportunity to judge a man like Mr. Schwab, they are not going to give easy credence to stories inconsistent with all that is known about him. They may hurt his sensibilities, but he ought to rest assured that they cannot harm him in the public estimation.

NEW JERSEY VS. NEW YORK.

Secretary Baker decides that the preservation of the harbor makes it necessary to evict leading steamship lines from their pier accommodations in Manhattan. From that statement of the case it is hard to dissent, but the statement leaves something more to be said. Until the decision was made there was no public knowledge that the harbor was suffering from the constructions which facilitated commerce in the same degree that their removal will discommode it. "Tidal velocity" has not been complained of, and channels are no more obstructed by pierheads than by the projections of steamships beyond the piers which are too short to accommodate them and do not protect them from collision. A considerable island has been created in the harbor for the benefit of the War Department, without raising such scruples as forbid the accommodation of steamships on Manhattan Island, for the benefit of both the city and the port. The War Department took over for war purposes the pier which was constructed during the extensions of time for the removal of the objectionable projections riverward, and the Shipping Board covets the pier now that peace releases it for trade. The Secretary thinks that, if channel encroachments are necessary, equity requires that they should be allowed on the New Jersey rather than on the New York side, because the Palisades, or Bergen Hill, obstruct extension of piers landward.

No tenderness for New York is reflected in the Secretary's letter, which makes a permanent decision while conditions are abnormal and altering fast. It would seem that, since several extensions have been granted without complaint or detriment, one more or less, while conditions were becoming normal, would harm nobody. There is a tendency to shorten steamships to piers, rather than to extend piers to berth steamships of extraordinary length, and the situation might clear itself without grievance to anybody with a little more delay. Also, there is a well-considered plan for the unification of the port which would reconcile the interests of the two sides of the harbor, and allow matters like this to be settled by authority more congenial to local and commercial interests than a War Department whose jurisdiction is rather legal than natural or local. New York has no objection, and would be heard to make no objection, to any betterment of New Jersey accommodations to steamships, either independently or according to a plan for the symmetrical and equitable development of the harbor. But when New Jersey procures the eviction of steamships from Manhattan, with the result if not the intent to attract them to New Jersey, it really seems something less than neighborly, and quite in keeping with the plan to drain New Jersey sewage into New York harbor, doing more detriment to channels than any piers, and yielding no real good to anybody, not even to New Jersey.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Acceptance Slow in Coming. After a delay of almost a year, the large and therefore slowly moving minds of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations have decided that it will be proper or judicious or expedient, or at least permissible, for our dear country to take the house in London that was offered to it by Mr. J. P. Morgan for the residence of the American Ambassador.

As hesitation to accept a gift is always a humiliation to him who proffers it, the probabilities are that by this time Mr. Morgan, to say the least, no longer feels the glow of satisfaction that presumably was his just after he had made easy the doing of something that the Government should have done long ago and had been prevented from doing by one of those queer—and rare—inclinations toward economy that do break the monotony of its lavish expenditure. That his offer has remained open all this time is to his credit, but he has dealt with Governments before, and therefore is too familiar with their peculiarities to be either grieved or offended by what, coming from another source, certainly would have caused him to feel one or the other of those sensations.

The Senators, however, have some excuse for neither accepting promptly nor as promptly declining with thanks this very unusual offer. They all knew, of course, that there are the best of reasons for providing houses in foreign capitals in which our diplomatic representatives can live rent free, but they also knew both that Congress has been and is afflicted with deafness when proposals to do this are made, and that to let Mr. Morgan supply the needed housing for a public servant in even one instance would excite a lot of comment in their home districts, some of it derisory, some of it denunciatory, and not much of it cordially approving.

Political considerations made the problem difficult, and it is no wonder that the committee was slow in finding a solution for it.

Objections Will Be Raised. Though the Senators in the Foreign Relations Committee have at last decided to recommend the acceptance of the Morgan house, the final settlement of the question still is somewhat remote. The home States will have something to say about it, as well as the other Senators, and really the arguments for rejection, or rather for declination, are about as good as those for acceptance.

Perhaps they are a little better. Obviously, it would be wiser and in better accord with national dignity for the Government not to take as gifts what it is perfectly well able to buy. That is the policy usually followed, though occasionally, as in the case of the "dollar-a-year men," the following is of the letter and not of the spirit. The other exceptions have been few and of a nature quite different from letting a private citizen pay for a needed public utility or facility. States are less sensitive, and most cities and towns, as a rule, will take from anybody anything they can get, regardless of such faint and ineffective protests as were made in a few instances against letting Mr. Carnegie build libraries for people with no imaginable claim to charity.

The taking of the Morgan house could and would be regarded as an admission by the Government of a duty neglected and forced upon its attention by him. Not everybody will like that, but neither will everybody like the continuance of a negligence to which is due in no small part the unpleasant fact that only rich men can afford to become our Ambassadors.

A Benefit Viewed Askance. Desirable as it is felt to be by vast multitudes that the price of eggs should be reduced, the joy caused by the present reduction in that price will be mitigated just a little, for most people, by the fact that it has been brought about by the arrival of eggs by the thousands from—China!

That will not be due to any hatred of China or the Chinese, or of things Chinese, including Chinese hens, but in large part, if not wholly, to the remoteness of China and the length of the voyage thence by water and land.

Very possibly these Chinese eggs have been subjected to less of time's ripening influence than have many that come from our own cold storage warehouses and possess only the dubious superiority that they are of home production. But—terrible thought!—is it not recorded in various books that the Chinese prefer old eggs to new? Page and line for that cannot be given, but the impression that this is one of many peculiarities marking Chinese taste is widespread and may be well founded. Most of such impressions, to be sure, have no foundation at all, but some of them are fairly accurate, and this one may be one of the exceptions.

Anyhow, there will be a general inclination to wish that the Chinese would keep their eggs, whatever their age, at home, where there certainly are enough people to eat them all, and to send us other wares of the kinds that everybody knows to be all right. Dishes and silks, for instance, and porcelain vases.

The Unknown Warrior.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I ask the favor of a little space to correct a misunderstanding? Some editor of an American paper, I think in Baltimore, has said with regard to the funeral of the "unknown soldier" that America did not need to honor a common soldier, as the common man was the nation.

It seems as if that editor did not understand that Westminster Abbey is the "Hall of Fame" of the British nation, and that those who are there honored come to it, not for rank, birth or wealth, but for the deeds they have done; that Britain brought there an "unknown" because undistinguished soldier to lie with the famous men of the race, as a symbol of the honor paid to the heroism of all that mass of undistinguished men who did all they could in doing their plain duty. In France also, where conscription makes no distinction, the "unknown" soldier was honored by burial under the Arc de Triomphe. H. ST. C. M.

DYE LICENSE BILL.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The writer has been connected with the dyestuff industry about twenty-five years as chemist in a foreign dyestuff factory, teacher of chemistry in our textile schools and a user of dyestuffs in the capacity of manager and chemist.

Nothing could be more deadening to real progress in the American dyestuff industry than the proposed licensing system embodied in the Longworth bill, which is virtually the same as placing an embargo on foreign dyestuffs entering this country. The history of the dyestuff industry has been a succession of rapid changes for improvement in the products offered to the mills, and it stands to reason that such improvements will be made in the future. Foreign countries are very actively engaged in improving the methods of producing colors now in use and in developing new and superior colors. Our industry has to face and meet the demand of the ultimate user for the best obtainable in the way of dyestuffs both as to their fastness and practicability for use.

A high tariff on dyes that would allow the American manufacturers to operate at a profit would, it would seem to us, be entirely in order; but an embargo or licensing feature ties the manufacturer's hands and prevents him from enjoying the use of products not made and unobtainable here from American manufacturers of dyes. The Longworth bill would not only make for stultifying the ingenuity and desire of the American manufacturer to produce the best types of colors obtainable, as it would remove such competition, but work a tremendous hardship on American industry, inasmuch as the mills would be unable to offer the public goods as well dyed, both as regards fastness and shade of color, as their foreign competitors, who would enjoy the use of products that the Americans would be debarred from.

As we look at it, the licensing feature, which is virtually an embargo, is in a way a dog-in-the-manger attitude; for the manufacturer would be prevented from obtaining and using colors which he certainly would need to meet foreign competition, colors that the American dyestuff manufacturer could not produce for him. In other words, the American manufacturer would be preventing the textile manufacturer from obtaining dyes which he must have to meet foreign competition, and the American manufacturer of dyes being unable to supply the special dyes wanted would only be hurting his customers' business without gain to himself.

Competition is the life of trade and the American dyestuff industry must come into the position where it can offer to the trade the best obtainable dyes and in merchantable quantities, and it never will reach that position by hurting their customers' business by a licensing system such as is outlined in the Longworth bill.

POLICE AS DRY RAIDERS.

Objections to the Governor's Enforcement Program.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The writer is one of the many Republicans who are strongly opposed to Governor Miller's prohibition message. It was a sort of second Volstead manifesto. The explanation may be the one openly stated by Senator James J. Walker—that the Governor did not himself believe his message, but was merely thus redeeming the campaign pledge forced upon him by the prohibition lobby!

In his Andersonian arraignment of the prevailing violations of the Volstead law the Governor utterly ignores two prominent facts: First, that this State is in no way responsible for the said law, which was enacted by a cowardly, lobby-ruled Congress, regardless of the rights of the people; secondly, that a law thus enacted, in defiance of public opinion, can never be enforced.

Is it not everywhere plainly in evidence that the people will have their alcoholic beverages in some shape, law or no law? Also that they will pay the exorbitant prices necessary to cover both the bootlegging risks and the official graft charges? For these two reasons enforcement has failed and will continue to fail.

From considerable experience both here and in other States I am convinced that the deliberate and systematic breaking of the Volstead law abounds everywhere and in every class, including men of the highest business and professional standing, even clergymen. All regard it as a tyrannous invasion of personal liberty, involving no moral obligation to obey.

As to compelling enforcement by local police, the Supreme Court may later go to the length of decreeing that the States have no remaining rights that the Federal Government is bound to respect; but this has not yet arrived. Therefore, we, citizens of New York, may lawfully protest to the Legislature that, regardless of the Governor's message, our police shall not be wasted upon a task relatively unimportant as well as impossible.

Beset as we are by murderous gangs of thugs and robbers, it would be an intolerable wrong to enact legislation that would in any way divert the police force from supplying even the present inadequate measure of protection to life and property. We do not believe that the Legislature will perpetrate so great an outrage.

As to the Volstead law, let those who made it, but who cannot enforce, either repeal or enact a law capable of enforcement. W. C. C.

Illegal Drinking.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When we consider that the Prohibition Commissioner has only 1,000 men in a population of over 100,000,000 of "all sorts and conditions of men" to enforce the law we need not wonder that there is so much illegal selling and drinking. We feel that, so far, he has done well. The deluge of drink has passed, and we can easily stand a few stray bucketfuls.

MY LAD.

There is no lad like my lad,
Oh, I love him dearly—
I who've had a-many lads
And have loved them, nearly.

But they like their steady jobs
In shops and such, in town,
And fun to them is walking out
Of Sundays 'cross the down;

And loving means just holding hands,
And squeezing if they can—
They will make some girls good husbands,
But, ah! my lad's a man!

My lad's hands are hard and strong,
His lips are hot as fire;
I'd follow him through bramble,
Through brake and dust and mire.

He need call to me but once
And smile his crooked smile;
I would take the road with him—
The rough stones and the stile:

Now, let the Winter hurry, then,
For when the Spring is here,
Perhaps my lad will call to me,
The budding of the year!

ABIGAIL CRESSON.

27 TAPESTRIES, $62,800.

A valuable collection of French and Flemish tapestries, consigned by foreign and domestic private owners, twenty-seven numbers, sold yesterday at the American Art Galleries for $62,800. A pair of early Gobelin tapestries, catalogue Nos. 21 and 22, each picturing a scene with Louis XIV., as a youth, and his young sweetheart, Marie Mancini, a niece of Cardinal Mazarin, at play, brought the highest prices, going to I. T. Mann for $10,400 each. These were woven in 1658 at one of the Paris tapestry plants soon after taken over by the Government and consolidated with the Gobelins. In the tapestries are many rich colors wonderfully preserved. They were from the collection of a noble Belgian family, Mercy d'Argentau.

To the same buyer went No. 17, a Renaissance tapestry of the first quarter of the seventeenth century, one of a set made for King Christian IV. of Denmark, celebrating his life and victories, for $2,600. No. 18, a Flemish Renaissance tapestry of the beginning of the seventeenth century, a fine product of the Brussels looms of that period, with many rich reds, an allegorical scene and compartment border, went to Mann for $3,100.

A Flemish tapestry of the late Renaissance, a Roman General listening to appeals for mercy, No. 23, sold to Louis Long for $4,050. Another Flemish tapestry, No. 24, of the same period, Cyrus the Great starting on one of his great campaigns, went to Charles Tustan, agent, for $4,000. A set of three large Flemish Renaissance tapestries, illustrating the romance of Titus and Berenice, went to Tustan for $18,000, $6,000 each.

NAME CHAPLAIN FOR SENATE

Republican Conference Elects Rev. Joseph J. Muir of Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—The Republican conference elected today a new Chaplain of the Senate in the person of the Rev. Dr. Joseph J. Muir, pastor of the First Temple Baptist Church of this city. It was asserted that the fact that President-elect Harding is a Baptist in no way occasioned the election of Dr. Muir.

When the Chairman of the conference asked if there was any one present who desired to vote for a candidate other than the nominee, Senator Fernald of Maine said he wished to cast his vote for Elder John Sims of the Colored Universal Pentecostal Congregation of Washington. Elder Sims is head barber in the Senate shaving and hair-cutting parlor.

Senator Fernald, it was subsequently explained, was not serious in voting for Elder Sims.

AMERICANIZE PERU SCHOOLS

Staff of 30 Educators Are Being Sent to Act as Supervisors.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—C. W. Calkins of Seattle, Wash., will sail next Wednesday for Lima, Peru, to become one of three regional Directors of Public Education under Harry I. Bard, also an American, who was engaged several months ago by the Peruvian Minister of Education to reorganize the country's school system.

Following a conference with Mr. Calkins, Frederico Alfonso Pezet, the Peruvian Ambassador, announced today that a staff of approximately thirty American educators was being sent to Peru to act as supervisors in schools scattered over the country and to introduce American methods of instruction, in both academic and physical education branches.

Mr. Calkins is a graduate of the University of Washington and served under Mr. Bard in educational work in the Philippines and in Porto Rico.

BOESS NEW BERLIN MAYOR.

Communists Charge Betrayal of Socialism and Protest Election.

BERLIN, Jan. 21.—Communist members of the Berlin City Council staged a noisy demonstration when it was announced last night that Dr. Gustav Boess had been elected Lord Mayor of the greater city. They accused the Majority Socialists of "betraying socialism."

Dr. Boess received 114 votes, against 95 cast for Dr. Weyl, Independent Socialist. He had the solid support of the Majority Socialists and all the bourgeois factions except members of the National People's Party, who joined the Independent Socialists and the Communists in supporting Dr. Weyl. The Nationalists defended their union with the ultra-Radicals by declaring that the bourgeoisie of Greater Berlin had been "asleep on election day and therefore deserved a Radical Lord Mayor."

Dr. Boess is 48 years old and has occupied the position of City Chamberlain. He has a record for efficiency as a municipal official.

NEWS PRINT MAKERS MEET IN MONTREAL

Report Publishers Found Canadian Control to Their Disadvantage.

BIG FUTURE IS PREDICTED

Mississippi, It Is Said, Has One Copy of Daily for 38 Citizens, Massachusetts One for Each Two.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Jan. 21.—Percy B. Wilson, Vice President and General Manager of the Spanish River Pulp and Paper Mills, Ltd., Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, was elected President, and George M. McKee, General Manager of the Donnacona Paper Company, Ltd., Donnacona, Quebec, Vice President of the Canadian Pulp & Paper Association at its annual meeting here today.

The principal business done, outside of the election of officers and the annual reports of the various sections, was the endorsement of a plan for the establishment of a department of technical research in connection with the association, which later may be incorporated in the proposed Central Bureau of Technical and Scientific Research at Ottawa, for the establishment of which legislative authority will be sought at the approaching Parliamentary session. The plan proposes an annual expenditure by the association of $35,000.

Reviewing the events of the year in the industry, George Chahoon Jr., the retiring President, declared that amicable relations had been restored between the publishers and the news print manufacturers. He said that some of the more representative publishers have, since ending of Government control of the industry, declared that the control had worked out to the economic disadvantage of those whom it was designed to serve and that the newspaper industry of Canada would have been in a stronger position today had the laws of trade been permitted to take their natural course.

President Chahoon also declared that the failure of the Underwood resolution in the United States was viewed with satisfaction by the industry, inasmuch as its success would have been regarded as detrimental alike to Canada and the paper industry.

After the business of the meeting had been disposed of and the new President was introduced and made a brief address, the association adjourned for luncheon, at which the guest of honor was General Sir Arthur Currie, K. C. M. G., Principal of McGill University, who made an address on the pulp and paper industry's connection with higher education.

At the annual dinner tonight Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, and the Hon. Walter Mitchell, Provincial Treasurer, were the chief speakers.

Predicts Big Future For Industry.

MONTREAL, Jan. 21 (Associated Press).—Only one copy of a daily newspaper, printed in the State of Mississippi, is distributed for every thirty-eight residents of the State, while there is a single copy available for every two persons in Massachusetts. This was pointed out here tonight by R. S. Kellogg, Secretary of the News Print Service Bureau, at the annual meeting of the organization, an international association of paper manufacturers.

Mr. Kellogg, who is also Chairman of the National Forestry Program Committee, in which the paper manufacturers are represented as asking for national legislation for protection of the forests, submitted an abstract of news print consumption from the standpoint of newspaper circulation and its bearing upon news print consumption.

The District of Columbia, he declared, prints more papers for its size than any State. New York State is second to Massachusetts in the number of papers printed in proportion to the residents, while Missouri and California are tied for third.

"This table of newspaper circulation shows one thing conclusively," he declared, "and that is that if there is a newspaper printed in New York for every 2.2 inhabitants, there is a prospect of a great future demand for daily newspapers in such States as Mississippi or North Dakota."

This means an increase in future news print consumption, he said, which "means that steps must be taken by the industry to secure a continuous supply of raw material for future consumption." He pointed to the need of protecting the nation's forests, as sought of Congress in the Snell bill.

"Forestry legislation," he added, "is asked not to curtail consumption of forest products, but to supply sufficient raw material to meet the future demand. While this legislation is already before the American Congress, there is the same need of adequate protection of the forests on the Canadian side of the international boundary, because the paper industry is international, both as to markets and manufacture, as well as to the source of the raw material."

DUTCH ISLANDS BALK AT TAX

WILLEMSTAD, D. W. I., Jan. 19.—Collection by the local government of an extraordinary income tax, from which natives of Holland who arrived here since 1913 are exempt, is causing much dissatisfaction here. Citizens contend the tax law had been incorrectly interpreted.

The household effects of a physician who refused to pay the tax were offered for sale at auction today by the Government. Although the building in which the sale was held was crowded, there were no bids and the articles were not sold.

A cheering crowd carried the physician about shoulder high. Merchants, as a token of their approval of the doctor's refusal to pay the tax, closed their places of business during the afternoon.

Cox to Spend a Week in Washington

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Friends of ex-Governor Cox of Ohio, Democratic Presidential candidate, were informed today that he would spend a week in Washington on personal business, arriving Monday. While the visit was said to have no political significance, it was expected that he would confer with prominent Democrats. Mr. and Mrs. Cox will be guests of former Representative T. T. Ansberry of Ohio.

Ford's Net Gain Is Now 2,009.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. — Henry Ford's net gain over Senator Newberry in the Michigan Senatorial contest was 2,009 votes at the close of work today by the Senate Privileges and Elections Committee, with 1,402 of the 2,232 State precincts re-canvassed. Senator Newberry's plurality was 7,569, and the heavier voting precincts still remained to be recounted.

82 PAINTINGS NET $98,255 AT PLAZA

$6,300 PAID FOR A COROT

The sale of 167 old and modern paintings begun Thursday evening in the grand ballroom of the Plaza under the management of the American Art Association was concluded last night when eighty-two pictures were disposed of for $98,255. This is more than twice the total for the previous evening, when eighty-five paintings were sold for $40,-985. The grand total for both sales is $139,240.

No single picture at the sale last night brought as much as the pastoral scene, by Charles Emile Jacque, purchased Thursday evening by E. F. Albee. A canvas by Corot called "Danseuses des Bois," which was bought by A. A. Healy, brought the highest price last evening, $6,300. Bidding for this picture opened at $1,000. In the foreground of the picture a group of maidens is dancing. Olive green feathery trees to the right and left contrast strongly with the sunlit morning sky. The picture is signed by Corot.

E. F. Albee, who purchased some of the best paintings offered for sale the first evening, bought "The Shoal Fisher," by Joseph Israels, last night, which brought the second highest price, $4,600. It was also the largest canvas shown, measuring 78 by 55 inches. It shows a full-length, life-size figure of a fisherman, with trousers rolled up, moving forward in shallow water as he guides with both hands a scoop net. The gray waters of the sea fill the composition to a point near the top of the canvas where the horizon is overhung by a gray sky.

Mr. Albee also purchased two other paintings which brought among the highest prices. "Landscape and Cattle," by the French artist, Emile Van Marcke, depicting a group of cattle standing in a pool, brought $4,500, the third highest price of the evening. He also purchased "Arabian Horsemen," by the German artist Adolphe Schreyer, which portrays three mounted Arabs under a green-blue sky looking across a wild, treeless region. This picture sold for $3,500.

In addition to the painting by Corot, Mr. Healy bought an Anton Mauve canvas for $3,500 and a work by the Dutch artist, Johan Barthold Jongkind, called "Scene at Delft, Holland," for which he paid $1,100. The Mauve work is called "Cows Returning to the Farm."

A second work by Corot called "Landscape in France," was purchased by M. Knoedler & Co. for $3,000. In the foreground of the picture, which consists of a field, a girl is seen standing near a tree. The tower and roof of a church appear in the middle distance at the right.

Thirty of the pictures offered for sale last night brought more than $1,000, and fifteen brought $2,100 or more. Among the other works which brought high prices was a "Brittany Farm Landscape," by Troyon, which was bought by F. J. Higgs for $4,200. It shows a boy in blue, driving a flock of geese across the foreground, while the background is occupied by a farmhouse surrounded by trees. Two other pictures by Troyon were sold. Howard Young bought "The Time of Milking" for $2,600, and W. N. Dair bid in "Cattle and Landscape" for $1,200.

M. Knoedler & Co. obtained Charles François Daubigny's "La Chaumiere," a French farm scene, for $3,300. A second Daubigny work called "On the Oise" was bought by C. W. Kraushaar. "Evening," a landscape by Henry Joseph Harpignies, was bought by P. J. Higgs for $3,600. A second picture by Harpignies called "Environs de Beaucaire" was bought by R. C. Vose for $1,900, and a third called "Landscape," which J. M. Heatherton obtained, brought $1,450.

Two works by Jean Charles Cazin brought lively bidding. "A Windmill Near Dunkerque" was bought by J. Levy for $3,100 and "Early Evening" went to H. Paul for $1,500. A work by Paul Potter, which depicts Noah disembarking on Mount Ararat was bid in by an agent of Seaman, the art dealer. It is signed by the artist and bears the date 1647. An "English Landscape" by Constable was also bought by a Seaman agent for $2,100. Five other pictures were bought by Seaman.

$3,150 BID TAKES A JAPANESE PRINT

A Kionaga Leads Sale That Again Brings Big Prices—Total to Date $51,695.

The record breaker at last night's sale of the big French collection of Japanese prints under the auspices of the Walpole Galleries at Delmonico's, was No. 265 in the catalogue, Kionaga's "Cherry Flower View at Gotenyama," which went to a distinguished print expert for $3,150. The print was a lovely diptych, showing the graceful figures of geishas from the Shinagawa district, a wonderfully clear impression. It was started at $500 and with heated competition ran up to the selling price. Higher prices have been given for some individual prints, but this price for this print was extraordinary.

There was again a gathering of well-known print collectors from all over the country. Headed by Howard Mansfield, Treasurer of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, who has a notably fine collection of prints, they included John Spaulding of Boston, with one of the largest collections in the country, and Miss Kate Buckingham of Chicago, a notable buyer of fine prints. George E. Fuller of Boston, Miss Mary Ainsworth of Moline, Ill.; Raymond Bidwell and Mrs. D. O. Kellogg were others present; S. C. Bosch Reitz, Curator of Far Eastern Art of the Metropolitan Museum, and Mr. King representing the Cleveland Museum.

Miss Buckingham paid the second highest price of the sale last night, $850 for No. 264, "Under the Trees in Autumn," three geishas with their matron, by Kiyonaga; "Reading His Letter," No. 237, a love letter episode, by Haronobu, went to her for $400; for No. 286, a Yoshiwara beauty, "Hinazuru of Choji-ya," by Utamaro, she paid $750; for No. 288, "The Sheltering Tree," a group of people caught in a rainstorm, by the same artist, she paid $425, and for No. 346, Toyokuni's "Three Shinagawa Beauties," $550.

Howard Mansfield paid $310 for No. 243, "A Young Samurai on Horseback," by Haronobu; for No. 257, "Famous Actors in a Tea House," by Shuncho, Colburn paid $500; Fulton gave $450 for a charming print by Kionaga, three women enjoying a view, "Evening—Cooling on the River Bank." "The Clinging Crab," a print of delicate tones by Haronobu, No. 249, went to the Metropolitan Museum of Art for $82.50, and Mr. King of the Cleveland Museum paid $140 for No. 342, a print in soft-color tones, "Woman Arranging Flowers," by Toyohiro.

The returns for the evening were $19,-403, making a total to date of $51,695. The sale will be concluded this evening.

Short Circuit Halts Traffic for an Hour Between Brooklyn and Manhattan.

A short circuit in the electric signal system of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company at the Atlantic Avenue Station tied up traffic between Brooklyn and Manhattan last night for more than an hour, caused tens of thousands of Brooklyn residents to be that late for dinner and delayed many Brooklynites who were bound for the Manhattan theatres.

The short circuit, which occurred at 6:40 P. M., just after the peak of the rush period, set every signal light at red, indicating danger, and brought all Interborough trains between Atlantic Avenue and the Brooklyn side of the East River to a stop. Trains in both east and west side subways were delayed. The tie-up lasted until 7:55 P. M.

Most of the delayed passengers sought the elevated or surface lines, or the B. R. T. subway, and the congestion was not serious. Denial was made by Interborough officials that any trains were stalled in the tunnels.

Traffic in Manhattan was not affected. Trains on the Broadway-Seventh Avenue line or the west side subway were turned back at Chambers Street. Those on the Lexington Avenue line or east side subway were turned back at Wall Street and Bowling Green.

GRANDMOTHERS GIVE UP AIR TRIP TO CAPITAL

Women Electors From Nebraska Forced by Bad Weather to Take a Train.

Special to the New York Times.

DES MOINES, Jan. 21.—The trip by airplane to Washington which was started by Mrs. H. H. Wheeler, Presidential Elector from Nebraska, and Mrs. Draper Smith, her alternate, carrying the electoral vote of Nebraska, was called off late this afternoon because of unfavorable flying weather.

The two women left Des Moines for Chicago at 10:30 this evening by rail and will complete their journey to Washington on land. The planes will return to Nebraska as soon as the weather permits.

Both grandmothers expressed keen disappointment at the unexpected change in plans. They had waited patiently all day for a heavy fog to lift so that they could resume their journey by air. Weather reports from the East late this afternoon indicated that they would encounter still further delays, even if they were able to get away tonight, so the decision was made to continue the journey by rail.

ROW IN CONSULATE.

Former Nicaraguan Officer Is Held for Disorderly Conduct.

Orlando Rosales of 115 West Eighty-sixth Street, now an elevator operator but formerly an officer in the Nicaraguan Army, was arrested yesterday on a charge of disorderly conduct after a fight with Fernando Elizondo, Nicaraguan Consul General, in the Consulate, at 15 John Street. Elizondo said he paid $50 to Rosales, by order of his Government, but that Rosales had demanded more aid and had misused letters of recommendation he had given to him.

At the Old Slip station Elizondo said Rosales had slain Elizondo's uncle. Rosales, the police said, admitted the killing, but said it was justified and that he had been exonerated. Elizondo then said Rosales had served six years for stealing. Rosales admitted that, too, the police said, but declared he was in love with the daughter of a former official of his Government and this official "framed" him while he was on duty at a palace to prevent his marriage with the young woman.

Clerico, with W. Johnson, a clubmate, made up one of twelve teams which started. He was riding on the track and suddenly swerved into the railing in front of the floor seats surrounding the armory floor.

"INEVITABLE?" BAH! SAYS CHESTERTON

"MUFFINS KILL PEOPLE"

Man Is a Hero and a Criminal, and No One Can Tell What He Will Do.

G. K. Chesterton spoke in the Times Square Theatre yesterday afternoon in answer to his question, "Shall We Abolish the Inevitable?" With humorous illustration and delicate subtlety he showed the fallacy of fatalism, the uselessness of prophecy in the field of human affairs.

"Like the man who did not believe in ghosts because he had seen so many," he said, "I do not believe in inevitable fates. When I was young it was prophesied that the small nations would be absorbed into three or four empires. It was even said that Ireland might become a part of the British Empire. Instead, we have lived to see the small States absorb much of the balance of power."

"Belief in the inevitable," he continued, "always presupposes a sort of vacuum in which forces are working. The moves in a game of chess are mathematical facts, but suppose you prophecy that one player in a certain game will checkmate his opponent in a number of moves. He may go crazy or kick over the board in a rage or in a spirit of compassion make all his moves wrong ones. All predictions are like that. They presuppose that the rules will be kept to, but suppose they are not? Again, the thing you predict may actually happen; but you do not know what other events will accompany or possibly destroy it.

"Avoid passive verbs. Don't say that wages rise and fall, as if they were tides of the ocean; but say that a certain individual has raised or lowered the wages of other individuals. Intangible falsehood based upon no authority is of all things the most difficult to fight.

"If, for example, you should walk into a parlor filled with your friends and say, 'The Pope (or the Bible) says you must not eat muffins,' no one would be much interested; but if instead you said, 'Haven't you heard? Didn't you know that muffins kill people?' a rapt expression of faith would come upon their faces.

"If we are going to discuss a moral, social or political matter, let us in God's name ask whether the thing we propose to abolish or to foster is good or bad in itself, and examine every question upon its own merits. Then our minds will be cleared of this fog of fatality which hangs upon our civilization. Whatever man is, he is not in that sense a part of nature. He has committed crimes and performed heroisms which no animal ever tried to do. Let us hold ourselves free from the boundary of the material order of things, for so shall we have a chance in the future to do things far too historic for prophecy."

Kato Group Demands Withdrawal —Friendly to America.

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

TOKIO, Jan. 21.—With the Diet opening on Saturday, today is marked by the greatest political activity, the various parties holding meetings to frame programs for the coming session.

The Kenseikai, the main opposition party, favors putting the League of Nations on a more practical basis, the maintenance of the Anglo-Japanese alliance, establishing more friendly relations with the United States with the settlement of pending questions on a basis of mutual understanding, and the adoption of a co-operative policy with China.

It has also resolved to demand the early withdrawal of Japanese troops from Siberia.

Viscount Kato, the leader of the opposition, in a speech to his followers scored the present administration's failure to introduce the racial equality question at the assembly of the League of Nations at Geneva. A more serious failure, he declared, had been the Japanese policy in China to which could be attributed the disturbed conditions in the Republic. He declared that the most urgent question was the restoration of order in China and the suppression of Bolshevist tendencies.

Regarding the Japanese-Siberian policy Viscount Kato said that it "has been an offense rather than a failure," and that the troops should have been withdrawn at the same time the Czechoslavs left or else increased sufficiently to enable the Bolsheviki to be overcome.

He said that an early settlement of the California question was impossible, but that provided the negotiations were conducted in a friendly spirit the Japanese demands could be insisted upon without aggravating the situation.

The Kokumintum Party favors the curtailment of military expenditures and the development of industrial power, holding that "national wealth no longer consists of superiority in arms."

EWEN TELLS OF AUNT'S WILL

John Ewen, a lawyer, who is contesting the will of his aunt, Miss Maria Louise Ewen, because she cut him off in her will disposing of $300,000, was the chief witness at the trial before Surrogate Foley and a jury yesterday. He testified that his three aunts, Caroline, Maria and Eliza, always treated him with due affection until Caroline died in 1913, leaving the bulk of her estate to institutions for the care of animals, and he contested the will. He got a sixth of the estate to drop the contest.

Mr. Ewen said his aunt Eliza was bitter toward him after the contest. His contention is that Maria Ewen was under the influence of Eliza when she made her will cutting him off. The trial will continue on Monday.

CANADIAN DECLARES LEAGUE A SUCCESS

N. W. Rowell, a Delegate, Declares This Was Demonstrated at Geneva Meeting.

CALLS IT WORLD'S HOPE

Bombay Editor Outlines Britain's Plan for Self-Government in India.

Newton W. Rowell, Canadian delegate to the Assembly of the League of Nations at Geneva, speaking last night at a dinner of the Canadian Club of New York at the Hotel Biltmore, declared that the five weeks' meeting at Geneva had demonstrated that the League was "successful beyond the expectations of even the most hopeful."

"The North American point of view, as presented by Canada, received most gratifying recognition," said Mr. Rowell. "The consideration which was finally accorded the views presented by non-European States was one of the most hopeful and significant features of the Assembly judged as a world organization. If such recognition was accorded to Canada's views what would be the recognition accorded the North American point of view if it were presented by both the United States and Canada?"

The results of the Geneva meeting, Mr. Rowell said, had changed the sentiments of even the most pessimistic. "I have returned convinced that the League of Nations is the most hopeful and practical experiment our humanity has ever tried for providing a substitute for war and for saving civilization from the collapse which threatens it unless a substitute can be found," he asserted.

Mr. Rowell spoke of some of the difficulties that had to be surmounted at the start of the meeting at Geneva. He said that disarmament could not be brought about unless there was a world-wide understanding. "The committee formed by the League to deal with this problem is going on the best it can, without the help of your country," he said.

E. W. Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, spoke of the accomplishments of the railway during the World War. "I have no fear for Canada," he said. "There is no ground for pessimism in the circumstance that unusual problems have to be met. There is every reason for effort and every ground for sane optimism."

Rustom Rustomjee, former editor of The Oriental Review of Bombay, India, outlined the plan by which the British Government proposes to grant self-government to the people of India. "The new era I speak of," he said, "is nothing more or less than the establishment of the United States of India under the benevolent hegemony of Great Britain. India is divided into fifteen provinces or states, each of them will have a legislative council elected by its people, who will appoint Indian Ministers, and to these Indian Ministers will be transferred important branches of provincial administration. At the head of the Government the Governor General will be assisted by an Executive Council of six or seven, three of whom, at least, will be Indians.

"The burden of civilizing the world—a burden resting largely upon the shoulders of Great Britain—has become almost staggering. It will enhance the dignity of no part of the British Empire if she is forced to turn her back now from the God-given mission she has been intrusted to perform. The most thrilling spectacle of the late war was the unity and determination of the British Empire."

Henry W. Taft spoke on Japan and Japanese-American relations. "The chances of war between America and Japan are practically impossible," he declared. Arthur Knowlson, President of the Canadian Club of New York, presided at the dinner. The guests included Lord O'Shaughnessy of Montreal, Frederick Cunliffe-Owen and Naval Lieutenants L. A. Kloor Jr. and Walter Hinton.

JAY GOULD RETAINS OPEN TENNIS TITLE

WINS FIVE OF SIX SETS

Victor, Playing at His Best, Outclasses Rival in Philadelphia Contest—Makes Only Eight Errors.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—Jay Gould, amateur and open court tennis champion of the world, retained his United States open title when he defeated Jock Soutar in the second half of their challenge match, concluded this afternoon on the courts of the Philadelphia Racquet Club.

Gould, prior to the start of play today, had obtained a 3 to 1 lead over Soutar, who is the world's professional racquet champion and the professional court tennis titleholder, as the result of the playing of the first half of the match last Wednesday.

Gould won by 5 sets to 1, running out the match in two sets today, 6—1 and 6—2. The scores of the four previous sets were 6—5, 6—2, 5—6 and 6—4.

Soutar was the first to congratulate Gould after the victory, but others soon followed with words of praise. Fred Tompkins, instructor at the Racquet Club and marker for the match, said: "It was the greatest exhibition of strokes I have ever seen. Gould arose to almost impossible heights. He was unbeatable. Soutar fought hard, but was outclassed."

Gould All Over Court.

Gould surely was at his best. The champion had apparently sized up Soutar's playing on Wednesday. Gould was all over the court, matched his opponent's "railroad" service, lobbed 'em up, changed his pace, and performed every trick known in the category of the game, which dates back hundreds of years.

An idea of how well Gould performed in the two sets can be obtained from the fact that he lost only eight points because of his own errors. Three miscues were made in the first set, which went six games, and five in the second set of eight games. The mistakes were mostly stroking the ball too hard or too lightly for proper returns or missing the ball as it came from the wall from Soutar's racquet.

This small number of errors made by the champion is an indication of Gould's wonderful playing, and was said by the professional experts who witnessed the match to establish a world's record.

Of all the sizzling, miraculous gets and strokes Gould got off, those after deuce had been reached in the final game were probably the most spectacular. Gould got vantage on a beautiful corner shot which took two walls and the floor and left Soutar swinging. Soutar, in trying to win a chase, smashed high over the dedans, and Gould, with his uncanny court instinct, anticipated the shot, dashing to the net and just managing to get his racquet on the ball to tip it over the net.

Another Sparkling Play.

Applause was still ringing when Gould, after a pretty rally, caught a return and, cutting it for all his strength, shot one just over the net which was so low on the tambour that Soutar slapped over it on the floor with his bat. That settled it.

Following the end of the match, Walter Kinsella of New York, who was beaten by Gould last year, issued a challenge to the champion. Kinsella was invited to take part in the recent professional championship tournament, but refused.

The point score:

FIRST SET.

Gould	4	4	4	4	5	4	—25—6

SECOND SET.

BAKER PLANS COMEBACK.

Yankee Third Baseman Almost Certain to Return to Game.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Md., Jan. 21.—Upon the ultimate recovery of his ten-year-old daughter, who has been fighting an attack of double pneumonia, depends the return of Frank Baker to baseball. The one-time king of home run hitters has given little attention to baseball recently, owing to the serious illness of his daughter, who apparently is now on the road to recovery. According to friends of the former Yankee third baseman he is now turning his thoughts to the game in which he attained considerable fame and picked up enough coin to make him comparatively independent in his early 30's.

Joe Kelley, Yankee scout, has been in conference with Baker recently on the question of his returning to the New York Club. Baker was none to enthusiastic when first interviewed about baseball, but his close friends say that he has changed and will surely return to baseball if his daughter recovers, as now seems certain.

SCHOOLS OF BASEBALL.

That Will Solve the Player Problem, Says Fred Mitchell.

BOSTON, Jan. 21.—Schools of baseball to solve the problems of obtaining new players in the major and minor leagues were suggested today by Manager Fred Mitchell of the Boston Nationals, who predicted that such training schools would be established at baseball parks within a few years.

"It will take time, patience and plenty of careful teaching to develop the players, but it will pay in the long run," Mitchell said. "Keep them for five years if necessary and if you get a couple of Maranvilles, Hornsbys or Holdechers out of the lot you are way ahead.

"Buying and selling of big league players is pretty nearly a thing of the past. The trouble is that there are not enough to go around, and managers and owners are so cautious about entering into a sale that the result is that they are seldom put through."

MAY PLAY JAPANESE NINE.

Harvard Offers May 25 to Oriental Baseball Team.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 21.—The Waseda University baseball team of Tokio, Japan, will play Harvard here May 25 if the cablegram accepting the date is favorable to the Orientals.

The Japanese team within a few days will leave for this country, first, however, spending a month touring the Philippines, and reaching San Francisco in April. The nine will spend about six weeks in the United States.

The University of the Philippines has cancelled a tentative date with Harvard, having abandoned its plan to make the trip to this country.

Agnew was formerly an all-around athlete for Media High School, and Harkness is a baseball product of the Philadelphia Trades School.

MISS DURACK ENDS SWIMMING CAREER

Noted Australian Mermaid Announces Her Retirement—Set Many Records.

Miss Fannie Durack of Sydney, N. S. W., Australia's famous swimming champion, has announced her permanent withdrawal from the competitive field.

The news of her decision to race no more has just been received here in a letter from an official of the Ladies' Swimming Association of New South Wales, and it comes most unexpectedly. Previous reports from Sydney stated that Miss Durack had gone into training for the prospective visit of Miss Ethelda Bleibtrey of the New York Women's Swimming Association, the Olympic champion, who is in New Zealand at present, and awaited eagerly the promised opportunity to try conclusions with her young American rival.

One is led to believe the illness she suffered last Spring, which prevented her attending the Olympic Games in Antwerp, may have left her in such condition that she was unable to regain top form. This would explain her recent action, for only at her best could she hope to have a fighting chance against the local marvel.

Move Will Disappoint.

Quite aside from the regret one is bound to feel at the loss of a great champion, the step taken by Miss Durack will cause keen disappointment among the many home and foreign followers of swimming, who looked forward to splendid competition between her and Miss Bleibtrey. Apparently there is no other mermaid in Australia able to extend Miss Bleibtrey. Miss Fisie Venning of Brisbane, Queensland, expected by the Australians to succeed Miss Durack as national leader, does not equal the American girl at any distance, judging from past performances. It looks as if Miss Bleibtrey will find no worthy opposition throughout the present tour.

The retirement of Miss Durack marks the passing of one of the greatest swimmers of either sex the world has known. As a girl in her teens she rose to international leadership, then retained undisputed supremacy for many years, so vastly superior to all rivals to be absolutely in a class by herself. In the early period of her brilliant career she placed to her credit all the regulation free-style world's records for women from fifty yards to one mile, and for more than a decade thereafter she alone proved able to improve upon them. So amazing were the feats she performed that often they taxed one's credulity. Champions of all other nations trailed far behind her. Indeed, despite the sensational progress made in swimming for women in recent years, some of the marks she set remain unbeaten to this day. Her time of 26:08 for one mile has not even been approached.

Lost to American.

An American lassie, Miss Claire Galligan of the New York Women's Swimming Association, was the first to dispose of one of Miss Durack's noted records. During the Summer of 1917, while on a visit to San Francisco, she swam 500 yards in a regulation pool in 7:31 2-5, clipping 1 1-5 seconds from the Australian's official world's standard for the distance. It was left to two of Miss Galligan's teammates, too, to administer to Miss Durack the only defeat she ever suffered in actual competition after she attained title rank. The occasion was the national 440-yard championship of 1919 at Manhattan Beach. The Sydney star was then touring the United States with her fellow-champion, Miss Mina Wylie. In the history-making race Miss Bleibtrey outswam her supposedly invincible rival conclusively, leading her across the line by five yards, while Miss Charlotte Boyle lowered the Australian's colors also, finishing three yards behind the winner and gaining second place.

Miss Durack may have swum her last race, but she will ever remain a conspicuous figure in the history of swimming for women.

ITALIAN CYCLE TEAM WINS.

Jerry Nunziata and Arthur Nieminsky, Unione Sportiva Italiana cyclists, captured premier prize last night in the twenty-five mile amateur team bicycle race held under the auspices of the Aaron Fox A. A. in the Thirteenth Regiment Armory, Brooklyn. Nunziata and Nieminsky, showing the way in a majority of the intermediate sprints for points, held every two miles, accumulated the total of 104 tallies. The team returned the time of 1 hour 7 minutes 19 seconds for the twenty-five miles.

During the race Nunziata and Nieminsky lapped nine rival teams, a feat equalled by J. Caldwell and W. Caldwell, brothers, of the Century Road Club Association, who finished third, with 49 points. E. C. Bendi and L. Kall, Unione Sportiva Italiana, finished second with 68 points. The members of the fourth combination were Harry Aaron and J. Van Zandt, Empire City Wheelmen, who had a total of 44 tallies.

An accident to one of the participants early in the grind marred the race. The injured rider was E. Clerico, Unione Sportiva Italiana novice, who had previously finished third in a half-mile novice race. In the first half-mile of the twenty-five mile event Clerico, riding wide on the track, crashed into the floor seat railing, and sustained injuries which necessitated his removal to St. John's Hospital. An examination disclosed a fracture of the skull and Clerico was immediately rushed to the operating table.

The summaries:

Half-Mile Race (novice)—Won by A. Schlessman, Acme Wheelmen; M. Sensendiver, unattached, second; E. Clerico, Unione Sportive Italiana, third. Time—1:19 4-5.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 21.—Using only second string swimmers in the open events and withholding all the stars for the 250-yard team relay race, Yale tonight easily defeated Princeton in their annual intercollegiate swimming meet, by 40 to 13 points.

Driscol of Princeton was the only visitor to capture a first place. He created an upset by defeating Pollard of Yale, favorite for intercollegiate honors. Although Meagher of Yale won the distance plunge, his mark of 73 feet was far below his former performance. Second string entries: Townsend in the 100-yard dash; Marshall in the furlong event, and Quash in the 50-yard dash won all three of the regular races for the Elis.

Yale's relay team of five men created a new world's record for 250 yards in the swimming race against Princeton. They made the distance in 2 minutes 6 seconds. The former world's record was 2 minutes 10 2-5 seconds and was made by the New York Athletic Club six years ago. The Yale team consisted of Solley, Pratt, Jelliffe, Captain Thurston and Binney. It led the Princeton team after the first ten yards and won by fifteen yards. The time of the Yale swimmers was as follows: 25 yards, 26 2-5 seconds; 50 yards, 52 2-5 seconds; 200 yards, 1 minute 36 3-5 seconds; 250 yards, 2 minutes 6 seconds.

TIGER SCRUBS GET LETTERS.

Members of Princeton's 1920 Second Eleven Receive A. P. A.

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 21.—Twenty-five members of Princeton's scrub football team were awarded the letters A. P. A., at a meeting of the athletic committee last night.

Although Princeton's athletic rules have always provided for the award of second team insignia, the scrubs have seldom been honored with a bit of orange for their sweater fronts in recent years. The action was taken in recognition of the fine spirit shown by the scrubs, many of whom had practically no chance to make the team, but nevertheless took a daily thumping from the varsity.

Sixteen of the men are seniors who will be graduated in June.

Five Americans on List.

The Hurlingham Polo Club of England, in its last year book, published the names of eleven top-notch, or ten-goal, polo players, and of the eleven five were Americans. Death has taken its toll from the list and of the others several no longer play the game. The list includes Captain F. W. Barrett, Walter S. Buckmaster, Captain Leslie St. C. Cheape, Foxhall Keene, Captain J. Hardress Lloyd, Captain Vivian N. Lockett, Devereux Milburn, Captain R. G. Ritson, J. M. Waterbury, Lawrence Waterbury and Harry Payne Whitney.

$10,000 for Football Contest Is Offer of Boston College

BOSTON, Jan. 21.—A guarantee of $10,000, or 50 per cent. of the gate receipts, is offered by Boston College to the college football eleven of equal standing that will meet the Boston College team here Nov. 5. Graduate Manager Frank Reynolds said today that the Maroon and Gold team, which won every game last Fall, was prepared to meet all comers, but to date had been unsuccessful in arranging a game for Nov. 5. Boston College would like to play either Dartmouth, Syracuse, Brown or California, Reynolds said. Negotiations with Dartmouth are pending. Fifty per cent. of the gate receipts at a well attended game would amount to approximately $20,000.

BELMONT IS NOT TO RETIRE FROM TURF

Noted Horseman States That Incorporation of Nursery Stud Is to Protect Assets.

In a statement which he gave out yesterday, Major August Belmont corrected the impression that the incorporation of his famous Nursery Stud, at Lexington, Ky., forecast his retirement from the turf, or a lessening of his interest in the breeding industry or racing. The first published reports of the incorporation had given rise to such reports.

"I merely incorporated the Nursery Stud to protect my entries in stakes of the mares and youngsters," said Mr. Belmont. "Under the rules, in case of the death of the nominator, all entries are void. The stakes are growing to be so large that engagements have become a valuable asset, and that was my idea of the best way to protect them, and means no real change in the ownership."

The action of Major Belmont, it was thought by many yesterday, will be followed by other owners and breeders of thoroughbreds, as it is a wise precaution, and will safeguard interests that would be seriously affected in the case of the death of the nominator acting as an individual. As an illustration, the Futurity of 1923 recently closed with over 1,400 nominations representing 167 individuals. This race will be worth about $75,000 to the winner. There are many other stakes which such action as Belmont's would protect as an asset to the estate.

WRESTLING CHAMPS WIN.

Leino and Liljehult Are Successful in N. Y. A. C. Tourney.

E. Leino and Carl Liljehult of the New York A. C., amateur champion wrestlers, were the victors last night in the finals of the amateur grappling tournament held in the New York A. C. gymnasium. Leino carried off the prize in the middleweight division, while Liljehult captured the premier award in the welterweight class.

Leino, in addition to holding national and local titles, is also the Olympic middleweight champion. In J. Murk of the Harlem Y. M. C. A., however, he engaged a foe who was not awed by the record of the champion. For fifteen minutes the athletes tugged and mauled each other, and on several occasions a fall seemed imminent, but always the endangered wrestler rallied and warded it off. Leino, with a variety of holds, forced the action consistently and accomplished the most impressive work in the sessions when the men were down on the mat. Murk, however, showed surprising strength in resisting holds and at times showed much skill on the offensive. At the end of the fifteen-minute bout Referee Benny Bradshaw of the Boys' Club awarded the bout to Leino.

Final Bout—Liljehault threw Shimmon with an armlock and side chancery in 19:01.

158-Pound Class—Semi-final Round—J. Murk, Harlem Y. M. C. A., threw H. Kaiilo, unattached, with an armlock and body scissors in 5:02; E. Leino New York A. C., threw T. Barrish, Columbia University, with a head scissors in 5:17.

LEWIS THROWS DAVISCOURT.

Deadly Headlock Wins for Strangler in Wrestling Bout.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 21.—Ed (Strangler) Lewis successfully defended the heavyweight wrestling championship here tonight, throwing Dick Daviscourt of Texas in one hour and twenty-three minutes.

Daviscourt was unable to rise after the first fall, and four physicians who worked over him refused to let him return to the mat. Lewis used five successive headlocks in the last few minutes to gain the fall.

RICE LOSES AT GOLF.

Is Defeated by Dr. Dickerson, 3 and 2, in Belleair Event.

Special to The New York Times.

Dickerson played an 80 in the morning, and, coming in on the first eighteen holes with a lead of 4 holes, increased the lead to 5 at the second hole in the afternoon with a beautiful iron shot over the pines and the palms that pleased the gallery. Rice then got busy, and, by winning the fifth, sixth and seventh, was only 2 down. A topped tee shot at the ninth cost Rice that hole, and the Clearwater golfer then made a beautiful recovery at the tenth for a par 4, and got back his lead of 4. Rice reduced this to 3 again at the short twelfth. An overapproach cost him the next hole, but he got the fourteenth, despite the fact that he was out of bounds, the rule that calls for a penalty stroke having been done away with on these courses. The match ended on the sixteenth, which was halved in 5.

In the second division, L. Bercher of Hillsboro defeated E. A. Enright of Glenview by 6 and 3. In the third flight Hugh Hammil of Merion Cricket defeated Edward McWilliams of Dwight, Ill., by 7 and 6. The beaten eight of the first sixteen went to R. S. Quigley of Lock Haven, Pa., when he defeated T. W. Kennedy of Merion Cricket by 3 and 2.

Another for Horace Mann.

Horace Mann School's basketball team registered its fifth straight victory of the season yesterday by trouncing the Poly Prep School quintet in a one-sided game on the Horace Mann court by by the score of 44 to 12. The victorious five led throughout the contest, enjoying the comfortable margin of 25 to 8 at the end of the first half. Cowan and Loeb were the leaders in the Horace Mann victory, scoring thirty-two of their team's points. Cowan accounted for eighteen and Loeb for fourteen.

Cleveland Hockey Team Wins.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 21.—The Cleveland hockey team tightened its grip on the lead of Group 2 in the United States Hockey League by defeating Duluth 10 to 3 here tonight.

JOCKEY INJURED IN RACE TRACK SPILL

Ponce Thrown From Mount and Collarbone Fractured in New Orleans Feature Race.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 21.—Racegoers at the Fair Grounds thought for a time today that they had witnessed another fatal accident such as cost the life of Jockey Mitchell a few days ago. Jockey Ponce was thrown from his mount and knocked unconscious. The boy was hastily removed from the track and given medical attention. An examination showed that he had sustained a fracture of the collarbone and had been badly shaken up and unnerved but that he had not suffered internal injuries. He was revived and sent to a local hospital for treatment.

The accident occurred in the running of the feature event of the day, the Cinderella Purse, for fillies and mares at a mile. Ponce, who has been riding with considerable success here this Winter, had the mount on E. L. Moore's Escarpolette. The accident happened when the horses were coming through the stretch and was apparently not due to rough riding or even to bumping among the horses.

Escarpolette was well up with the field, running in fourth position, when she suddenly reared into the air and then crashed to the ground. As she plunged forward Ponce was thrown through the air and landed a few feet in front of the horse. Escarpolette, however, turned a complete somersault as she hurtled through the air and came down on the rider, who had not had time to get out of the way. Ponce was seen to crumple up, and from the stands it seemed that he must have been crushed to death.

There was a rush to the boy and he was picked up and taken to the jockeys' room, where the examination was made. It was soon announced that he had not been seriously hurt, and the crowd felt relieved, for it still had in mind the death of Mitchell.

It appeared that Escarpolette went down from sheer exhaustion. She had appeared to be in good shape going to the post, but the pace told on her as she was put to a drive in the stretch.

The race was won by Dancing Spray, which was much the best and won in spite of suffering from interference as she rounded the first turn. At that point she was knocked back into last place, but she moved up gradually going through the back stretch and assumed the lead at the half-mile pole. Thereafter she held Tailor Maid safe to the end and got home with a length to spare over that mare, though she was forced to make a drive at the end. Tailor Maid was well up all the way and made a strong bid in the stretch, but was not good enough to get up to the leader. Marie Maxim was third. At the outset she went to the front but tired and dropped back to almost last, only to come on again in the stretch and get up for a place in the money.

RIDING CLUB TRIO WINS.

The Riding Club's second junior polo team crossed mallets with the low goal junior trio from Durland's Academy last night, and the former proved to be the winner by a score of 9 goals to 6 in a game made up of two ten-minute chukkers.

Only one player on either team carried a handicap, and he was Dr. E. Biers, who is tabbed at three goals. In consequence, the Durland trio had to allow the Riding Club three goals by handicap.

C. Danforth at No. 1 and L. Haight at No. 2 on the Riding Club trio played remarkably good polo for non-handicap men in the forward positions, while F. Burton at back on the same team proved to be dependable and saved the Riding Club from having numerous goals scored on it. Of the Durland aggregation the surprise was afforded by Thomas Cawthra, who drove the ball to a count on more than one occasion with difficult back hand stroke or from a difficult angle, and the gallery of enthusiasts applauded vociferously while the Handicap Committee considered attaching a numeral to his name in the official handicap list.

Dr. Biers at back seemed to be off his game last night, and that was attributed to the fact that he was not playing with his accustomed team mates. L. Berman played a good, consistent game throughout.

RIDING CLUB 2D JUNIORS (9).	Hdcp.	DURLAND JR.'S (6).	Hdcp.
No. 1—L. Haight	0	No. 1—L. Berman	0

SQUADRON A GIVES CUP.

Provides Challenge Trophy for a Class for Officers' Chargers.

A challenge trophy, to be known as the Squadron A Cup, will be offered for competition at the next National Horse Show. The cup, which will carry a value of $500, will be the gift of the squadron, and it will be competed for in the class for officers' chargers. In addition to the challenge cup the squadron will present other trophies outright for competition each year. Decisions to tender these gifts were made at the recent meeting of Squadron A.

It is the desire of the Squadron A Directors to stimulate interest in army mounts and to encourage the laying down of definite rules for the judging of that class of horse. In the past, conformation, type, performance, schooling and various other factors have frequently varied, with the result that widely differing types of horse have been awarded prizes in classes for officers' chargers. It is to avoid this and to establish a definite standard, so that prospective exhibitors may know what is demanded, and not take chances with anything from a rangy thoroughbred to a closely coupled stocky horse or a Percheron, that the cup is offered.

In the very near future a special committee composed of two members of Squadron A, two United States Army officers and two well-known civilian horsemen will be appointed to consider the subject of officers' chargers and to draw up conditions to govern competition for the Squadron A Cup and the type of horse best suited for the purpose.

WOULD LIMIT SIZE OF OPEN GOLF FIELD

U. S. G. A. and P. G. A. Seek to Reduce Number of Players in National Championship.

The extensive development of golf in the United States is continually leading to reforms of various kinds, and right now there is under consideration a new departure from what has been the custom in time past concerning one of the leading events of the golf calendar. Reference is made to the manner of handling the national open championship.

The leading organizations of the country concerned in this event—the United States Golf Association and the Professional Golfers' Association—are seriously considering means right now that will effect a reduction in the field to enter the next playing of the championship at the Columbia Country Club of the Washington district.

Last year at Inverness the field ran well over 200 entries and even then several others sent in their entries, but did not show up to start. As a result the first pair was sent away from the first tee before 7 o'clock in the morning and the last pair finished out in the dark. Meantime the course was so congested that some players spent nearly four hours in playing their rounds. Quite naturally, the play of these unfortunates could not be expected to grade up to their best.

Unless something is done to cut down the field for the next championship, conditions are expected to grow worse rather than improve. How to avoid the crowded and muddled condition of affairs that is threatened is the problem with which the United States Golf Association and the Professional Golfers' Association are wrestling.

Setting Limit Difficult.

Since conditions of play as well as the title at stake imply that any and all may enter, the proposition of limiting the field is a difficult one. So far as amateur entries are concerned, these can readily be limited by restricting them to players below a certain handicap in the U. S. G. A. rating. But the matter of weeding out the professionals is different, since there is no system of handicapping them.

At least two suggestions have been offered by way of relieving the situation. One proposes that some system be worked out to have the professionals qualify by sections, something after the manner employed by the P. G. A. This, however is open to objections from several different angles. In the first place, the players are continually shifting their places of residence, causing a constant change of personnel in any given district. Furthermore, the different standards of play required on the several courses over which these qualifying tests might be held would leave room for criticism on the fairness of the plan.

Another proposal is that two days be taken instead of one for the qualifying round, and that the field be divided into halves. George Fotheringham, the Richmond County professional and secretary of the metropolitan district of the P. G. A., has suggested this plan. His idea is to take, say, the first forty or fifty players from the preceding championship, number them in the order of their position at the finish, then assign all even numbers to one-half of the field and the odd numbers to the other half. Players who did not finish among this number would then be divided by draw or assignment and added to one or other of the two divisions.

Certain to Adopt Plan.

Whether or not either of the above plans will be put into force remains to be seen, but it is practically certain that some plan will be adopted to reduce the field to such proportions that it can be handled in a manner to insure all a fair break in playing conditions.

Another reform of a different character is likewise beginning to loom vaguely on the horizon and is likely to stride boldly into the picture at no distant date. This has to do with the employment of the numerous forms of freak clubs prevalent in this country today. Every season appears to introduce some new freak or monstrosity in the way of links implements. Probably a majority of them never become more than freak novelties, but some of them have come to be rather widely accepted.

The main idea back of this reform talk is to put all players on an equal footing so far as the tools of the trade go. In other words, it is pointed out that where a player spends long hours of patient practice perfecting some shot, for instance imparting back spin to a mashie shot, it is certainly unfair to enable another player to enter a shop and buy a club with a sharply corrugated face that even in unskilled hands will deliver the results of a skillful player.

The agitation against more or less freak clubs has been going on for years. It will be recalled that the use of a centre-shafted putter by Walter J. Travis in the British amateur championship at Sandwich back in 1904, which he won, proved so distasteful to the British that they immediately barred the use of a centre-shafted club. Such clubs are still used rather widely over here, and with them all kinds of new devices in mashies, niblicks, irons and even wooden clubs. But now that a standard ball has been adopted it is quite possible that a concerted effort will be made to reach some standard idea in clubs as well, and it is practically certain that a campaign in that direction will be inaugurated in the not distant future.

The international golfing program for the current year may assume an intercollegiate angle if plans of A. L. Walker Jr., President of the Intercollegiate Golf Association, materialize. Walker has just recently issued to Oxford and Cambridge an invitation to send over representatives for the intercollegiate championships to be held at the Greenwich Country Club June 28-July 2. In case of acceptance by the Britons, it is expected that Cyril Tolley and Roger Wethered, the Oxford captain, will make the trip along with James Douglas, who played with Princeton last year, but is now at Oxford, and others.

President Walker states that the coming Spring promises to develop wide activities among college golfers. In addition to the association championships, many intercollege matches are in prospect. The intercollegiate association is doing everything posible to stimulate such matches. The association is now considering the application of Wesleyan University for membership. At present the organization has eleven members as follows: Columbia, Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Cornell, Williams, Illinois, Georgia Tech, Dartmouth and Colgate.

COCHRAN NOW SAYS HE WILL NOT QUIT

OFFERS £100,000 HIMSELF

Will Give That Sum for Dempsey-Carpentier Fight in London—Dempsey's Bond Is Found.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The original contract for the Carpentier-Dempsey boxing bout is considered still valid by Charles B. Cochran, the English boxing promoter, a party to the agreement, it was declared in a statement authorized by his office here this morning. Mr. Cochran's associates said they had no knowledge of authority for William A. Brady of New York to speak in Mr. Cochran's behalf. The statement read:

"As far as Mr. Cochran is concerned the original contract for the Dempsey-Carpentier fight holds. If Mr. Brady or Mr. Rickard has withdrawn, that is beyond our control, but if it is true Mr. Cochran offers £100,000 to stage the fight in London."

It was stated that Mr. Cochran had not heard directly from Mr. Brady, but was inclined to believe that the ruling of the New York State Boxing Commission as to a maximum admission fee to the fight might have caused him to get out from under."

Developments in New York.

The outstanding local developments yesterday regarding the $500,000 Dempsey-Carpentier bout were the recovery of the champion's bond, which had previously been lost, and the flat declaration of the boxers' attorney, Harry Saks Hechheimer, that he will institute court action if the promoters fail or refuse to carry out the terms of the contract. Attorney Hechheimer, in a prepared statement, said that he had been definitely advised by the principals in the proposed bout in case any legal notification is given that any of the promoters desire to take advantage of the alleged breach of contract by the contestants, to move immediately to protect the legal interests of both Carpentier and Dempsey.

Attorney Hechheimer's statement follows:

Carpentier Ready to Sue.

I have been informed by cable that Carpentier has been advised by counsel at Paris that he has fulfilled his portion of the contract as far as the deposit of forfeiture is concerned, and that if the promoters have failed or refused to carry out the terms of the contract, he will proceed to sue for the breach of the same.

Kearns has taken a definite stand in the matter and I have, in pursuance of my own investigation, ascertained that the Fidelity Casualty Company of Maryland executed the bond in the sum of $50,000, provided in the contract as one of the pertinent provisions of the contract made to safeguard the interests of all concerned so that no technicality would avoid the plain intent of all the parties, which was that the contest should take place, that other cash security could be deposited with the trust company or a bond for the same amount to be delivered to the promoters, and that Mr. Kearns may fix it to take advantage of this clause and secure the bond instead of depositing the cash with the Central Union Trust Company of New York.

During the course of the several conferences held at the office of Mr. Brady, it was finally decided that any question of any kind or character arising under the agreement should be left to the sole decision of Robert Edgren. Mr. Edgren has informed Mr. Kearns as far as he is concerned he has not said that there has been a violation of the contract nor does he consider the position of Mr. Brady to be the position of either Mr. Cochran or Mr. Rickard—he went entirely on his own responsibility.

Says Kearns Executed Bond.

There is no provision in the contract that the bond in place of the cash should be deposited with all the promoters as this was an entirely impossible fact. The fact that the bond was secured on the part of Kearns and properly executed and delivered, as now acknowledged by Mr. Kearns, carries out the proper intent of the contract and furthermore, up to this time no damage of any kind or character has resulted to any of the parties concerned, no steps, as a matter of fact, have been taken by Mr. Brady which assumed an expenditure or contractual obligation whereby he or his associates might suffer some financial injury.

Mr. Brady has admitted that at the time he went to the Central Union Trust Company to deposit, as he says, his bond, he made inquiry as to whether or not Kearns had deposited the cash security and was informed that he had not done so. Mr. Brady then saw fit not to deposit his bond. If such be the case he then had the same information as he has now utilized and if a forfeiture then took place it should have been taken at that time, and he cannot now step in and say that because he himself has failed to carry out his obligation in the same respect, he can hold Mr. Kearns liable from the same point of view.

There is no doubt that no court would consider that there has been a violation of the contract according to its terms, especially in view of the fact that Edgren had the final decision as to matters occurring and without his decision in some definite form the promoters, as well as the contestants, would be powerless to assume or take any action by reason of the alleged breach of contract.

No Violation of Contract.

It is my opinion that there has not been, however, a technical violation of the contract upon the part of the contestants, and it is my firm conviction especially in view of the general purport of the contract that my contention would be sustained.

During the course of one of the conferences Mr. Brady left the room stating as far as he was concerned he was through. Mr. Cochran at this time was present as were several other parties interested, and Mr. Cochran then stated that if Mr. Brady did not desire to continue as a participant under the contract he would assume to do so himself.

I have been definitely advised by my principals, in case any legal notification is given, that if any of the promoters desire to take advantage of an alleged breach of contract by the contestants, to immediately move to protect the legal interests of both Carpentier and Dempsey.

In my opinion there is no doubt that the attempt to break the contract was in order to further the interests of Mr. Cochran in order to have the principals participate in the bout in London, and especially so in view of the fact that Mr. Carpentier was under a contractual obligation to Mr. Cochran.

Dempsey's Bond Found.

The mystery of Dempsey's missing bond for $50,000 was cleared when the document was discovered in the office safe of Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager. The bond was immediately intrusted to the care of Promoter Tex Rickard, who accepted it with the statement that the good faith and legal obligations of the champion had been fulfilled.

It developed, according to an explanation by Dan McKetrick, local representative of Manager Kearns, that the bond was filed away in a private compartment of the office safe by Kearns under the impression that it was a copy of the original bond, which it was supposed had been deposited with the Central Union Trust Company. The flat announcement on Thursday from the trust company officials led to immediate search for the bond.

The bond, which calls for a surety of $50,000, as is provided in the contract for the proposed heavyweight championship battle, was issued under date of Nov. 20, the last day on which deposits were to be made by the boxers and promoters under the contract, by the Fidelity, Surety and Deposit Company of Baltimore. Rickard plans to deposit it immediately in the vaults of the Central Union Trust Company.

Discovery Elates Rickard.

Promoter Rickard, who has steadfastly maintained that Dempsey had complied with the provisions of the contract, was elated at the recovery of the champion's bond. He declared, however, that he still was prepared to follow the course announced by him with the first intimation that Promoters Brady and Cochran would withdraw. Rickard has declared repeatedly that in the event of the withdrawal of his two associates in the proposed bout he would conduct it independently under the original $500,000 purse contract, if the boxers sought to compel him under that document, or under a new contract stipulating a percentage basis for the boxers if they would agree to the latter arrangement.

Rickard had not received a reply yesterday to his cable dispatch to Charles B. Cochran, the British promoter. Upon receipt of this reply, he said, he would be prepared to discuss the situation further.

William A. Brady, who withdrew for himself and Promoter Cochran from participation in promotion of the bout, refused yesterday to discuss the situation in its latest status.

"You can say that I refuse further to discuss the situation," said Mr. Brady. "I have declared my attitude before. Just now I am waiting for a reply to my cable dispatch to Mr. Cochran, and until I hear from him in regard to his attitude on my action I will have nothing to say. I am just sitting tight and waiting to see which way the cat will jump."

WANTS SIGNED CONTRACTS.

Notice was served by the Boxing Commission yesterday on boxers and their managers, licensed and operating under the Walker law, that written contracts between boxers and their managers would be recognized over verbal agreements in the future deliberations of the Boxing Commission and License Committee on disputes submitted for official consideration by individuals licensed under the law. The notice came in a decision rendered in the case which involved Angil Christiano (Al Rogers), a manager, and Jesse Morey, a boxer, of Buffalo, in a dispute on the merits of a verbal agreement between boxer and manager.

The official decision follows:

"The New York State Boxing Commission and License Committee announce that, in the complaint of Angil Christiano (Al Rogers), manager, against Jesse Morey, a boxer, of Buffalo, in which a hearing was held by Commissioners Hooke and Wear and Deputy Commissioner Suttner on Monday, the commission cannot recognize the verbal contract between this manager and the boxer. There was no evidence submitted before the commission, except Al Rogers's own statement, that the contract was other than a verbal contract, to be terminated at will by either party. The commission, therefore, recognizes as Morey's manager Bert Finch of Buffalo, with whom Morey has made a written contract. The commission further wishes to take this opportunity to call to the attention of managers and boxers that, for their mutual protection, written contracts should be made in all cases."

Jack Singer, a Buffalo manager, was suspended for thirty days for a verbal attack on Referee Robert McLaughlin in the dressing room of the Queensberry A. C. of Buffalo after a bout on Jan. 7. The suspension will date from Jan. 20, according to the commission edict, and during the period Singer will not be permitted to act as manager or second at any bout in the State.

O'GATTY WINS ON FOUL.

Paddy O'Gatty, local bantamweight, won on a foul from Roy Moore of St. Paul, in the third round of their scheduled fifteen-round bout last night at the Pioneer Sporting Club in East Twenty-fourth Street. Referee Eddie Pollack charged Moore with striking his opponent foul and disqualified him, after the ring official had previously warned Moore. The rule violations by Moore, together with the subsequent disqualification, caused considerable excitement among the spectators.

O'Gatty was sent to the canvas with a blow which he claimed was foul, in the second round. Referee Pollack began counting over the prostrate boxer and suddenly stopped. O'Gatty regained his feet, but before the bell again claimed he had been struck foul. Referee Pollack cautioned Moore on this occasion. Soon after the third session started Moore landed a blow which Referee Pollack adjudged foul, and the St. Paul lad was immediately disqualified.

RICKARD GETS PRESENT.

It must be that the hens of the Poultry Show, now occupying Madison Square Garden, heard of the trials and tribulations besetting their landlord, Tex Rickard, for they got together yesterday and presented the impresario of fistic artists with as fine a dozen of eggs as could be laid by Leghorns, Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes and the rest of the numerous family of barnyard queens starring in competition. As a result, it is rumored that Rickard is planning to stage an egg-laying contest as soon as this prize dozen has been appropriately scrambled, the entire receipts to go to himself.

Another recipient of prize eggs from the show was May Irwin, the actress, who runs a small chicken farm herself not many miles from Broadway. The Salvation Army received for free distribution an entire crate. Several dozen more were sold on the premises at 80 cents the dozen.

CRANE DEFEATED AGAIN.

Bows to Thomas in Snooker Tourney by 59 to 43.

Three games were played last night in the amateur championship snooker pool tournament which is in progress at Doyle's Broadway billiard room. Al Thomas defeated Ray Crane in the first event by a score of 59 to 43. The second match was won by George La Rue, who won from Courtney Wood, 70 to 53, while the third affair resulted in a victory for Al Thomas, who beat Lou Paley, 78 to 46.

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 21.—Princeton defeated Cornell here tonight, 19 to 12, in a league basketball game. The Tigers' victory evened matters, for Cornell defeated Princeton when the Orange and Black five journeyed to Ithaca three weeks ago. Princeton showed a complete reversal of the form exhibited in early league games, and tonight's victory returns the Tiger to a place among the league championship contenders.

Cornell's defeat was largely due to the close guarding of the Cornell forwards, Molinet and Backelew. The Cornell captain, Molinet, who leads the league in scoring, was unable to add even a single field goal to his team's score because of the tenacity of Bergen, Princeton's substitute guard.

Princeton went into a short-lived lead at the outset of the game, due to a brace of fouls, but Cornell almost immediately registered a goal and a foul. Dickinson then dribbled the ball up the floor and scored from under his own basket, sending his team to the fore by a single point. After that Cornell never managed quite to catch up, and the half ended at 10:8.

Sidman, who was starring for Cornell, and Legendre, who was responsible for seven of the Tigers' points, both left the game early in the last half because of too many fouls.

Brawner took Legendre's place, got two baskets in a row, and Princeton had a lead of eight points with three minutes to play. Cornell cut this down by the margin of a foul goal, but never threatened to win.

The game was characterized by excellent guarding on both sides, and the brilliancy of play kept a capacity crowd at a high pitch of enthusiasm. Foul shooting was above standard, Molinet gauging four out of four, Brawner four out of five, and Legendre five out of six. In the matter of baskets, Cornell had some hard luck, missing several shots that hesitated and then rolled off.

The line-up:

PRINCETON (19).		CORNELL (12).

HARVARD BEATS AMHERST.

Crimson Basketball Team Wins by 45 to 24.

Special to The New York Times.

AMHERST, Mass., Jan. 21.—The Harvard basketball team outplayed and defeated the Amherst five tonight, 45 to 24. The visitors exhibited strong team work, and as the playing progressed showed a continually improved grade of basketball. Fitts, with six baskets, including several long shots, played a steady game, while the work of Pallo in the second half was sensational. The little forward was the individual high scorer of the game, with seven free shots and five baskets. Card, with four counters, performed best for the Purple. Amherst showed a lack of team work, and the tendency toward individual playing lessened their offensive strength.

The line-up:

HARVARD (45).		AMHERST (24).
Pallo	L. F.	Card
Fitts	R. F.	Hill
Tyson	C.	Lee
Tolbert	L. G.	Palmer
Fering	R. G.	Snyder

Goals from field—Pallo (5), Fitts (6), Tyson (5), Tolbert, Fering (2), Snyder, Palmer, Lee (2), Hill, Card (4), Seyler.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Jan. 21.—The Colgate basketball team here today sent the five of Rochester University down to defeat by a 52 to 26 score.

In spite of their handicap of inferior weight, the Rochester men played a brand of ball that was worthy of a more even result.

The line-up:

COLGATE (52).		ROCHESTER (26).

LAUBACH BEATS GARDNER.

Turk Also a Winner in Title Three-Cushion Tourney.

In the continuation of the New York State three-cushion billiard championship at the National Recreation Academy last night George Laubach met and defeated Gus Gardner by the score of 30 to 18 in a game that lasted sixty innings. Laubach made two runs of 4, while Gardner could do no better than 3. The winner got away to a good start and Gardner never could overtake him.

The other game was played between Harold Turk and Robert Crespi, the one-armed player. Turk proved to be the winner after a closely contested game in which there was lots of good safety play, and at no time until Turk finally won out were the players more than two points apart. The score was 30 to 26 and the game lasted for sixty-five innings. Both had high runs of 3.

BALKLINE TOURNEY JAN. 24.

The Eastern 18.2 balkline championship of the National Amateur Association of Billiard Players will begin next Monday at the New York Athletic Club. Last year it was played at the American Billiard Club and was won by David McAndless, who has become a professional since then, so there is no champion at the present time.

The entries for the tournament are Francis S. Appleby, Edgar T. Appleby, T. Henry Clarkson, Edward W. Gardiner and Dr. L. L. Miall. Games of 300 points will be played, and it will require ten gamees to decide the tournament.

First Women's Athletic Club In City Seeks Incorporation

A novel indication of the increasing interest in athletics was furnished yesterday in Brooklyn, when Supreme Court Justice Aspinall received an application for incorporation of the Women's Athletic Club of Brooklyn. The organization is the first strictly women's athletic club to seek incorporation under the State laws. The club, it is understood, will devote most of its attention to swimming, but members will also engage in basketball, hockey, golf and other sports, it is said. Charlotte Boyle, champion swimmer, and Eileen Riggin, the youthful diver who won at the last Olympic games, are said to be members of the new organization. At present the Women's Swimming Association of New York is the leading women's swimming organization of the city, but this club is exclusively for swimmers. The Women's A. C. will establish its headquarters at 28 Clinton Street, Brooklyn, the former home of the Crescent A. C. Mrs. Kathryn V. Cowley is President of the organization.

DESIRE PERMANENT OLYMPIC COMMITTEE

The plans for the reorganization of the American Olympic Committee, which have been the objects of attention from a Reorganization Committee appointed by President Gustavus T. Kirby at the last meeting of the body at the New York A. C., Dec. 4, will be disclosed at the next assemblage of the Olympic officials, which will be held at the Mercury Foot organization on Feb. 5. Notification of the meeting was sent to the members of the committee yesterday by Secretary Frederick W. Rubien.

The report of the Reorganization Committee, which includes among its members President Kirby and Willis K. Booth, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company, who is Treasurer of the Olympic Committee, will be submitted to the officials. This report will embody a suggestion that there be a permanent American Olympic Committee installed for the purpose of keeping abreast of the work which in the past has accumulated between the holding of the international games. Under this plan, it is expected, much of the confusion and disadvantages which have been encountered by the officials in preparing for previous meets will be eliminated. The report will also contain a suggestion for an assembly of representatives of all national governing athletic bodies affiliated with the American Olympic Committee to be held in December next year.

FORDHAM QUINTET WINS.

Maroon Defeats Seton Hall at Basketball, 44 to 27.

Fordham's basketball five tackled the Seton Hall team last night on the courts in the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory, and the Fordham team won by the score of 44 to 27 in a game that was replete in brilliant shooting and quick work on the floor, but which was even more remarkable for the good team work which won the game for the collegians from the Bronx.

Gordon proved to be the star, but it was not his brilliant playing that counted as much as the excellent support he received from the other members of the team. Seton Hall was fairly good on the floor and shot well when the opportunity presented itself, which was not often.

A game between the Fordham Preps and the Seton Hall Preps preceded the other game, and the Fordham youngsters proved to be the victors, the score being 35 to 17.

FORDHAM (44).		SEATON HALL (27).
Fallon	L. F.	Freis
Stocker	R. F.	Flynn
Gordon	C.	McGann
Kelly	L. G.	Donohue
Culloton	R. G.	Donovan

Referee—McCarthy, Lehigh. Umpire—Cook, Y. M. C. A. Time of halves—20 minutes.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Pa., Jan. 21.—The Lafayette College basketball team won its third straight game here tonight, handing the St. John's College of New York a 44 to 25 trimming. In the first half the visitors managed to hold Coach Bill Anderson's Lafayette players virtually even, the score being 17 to 13. But in the second half the Lafayette team ran away from its opponents, scoring 12 field goals, 8 more than St. John's.

Kearney was the leading scorer, caging 9 field goals. Frollick, with 6 field goals, did excellent work for St. John's.

MICHIGAN BEATS IOWA.

Wins Hard-Fought Basketball Game by Score of 19 to 15.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 21.—Michigan won a Western Conference basketball game from Iowa here tonight, 19 to 15. The game was close and hotly contested throughout, the score at the halfway mark being 7 to 7. Captain Karpus of Michigan and Schmick for Iowa were the individual stars.

MAY HIT CHICAGO BIKERS.

Velodrome Company, Operating There, in Receiver's Hands Here.

An ancillary receiver may be applied for here against the receipts of the six-day bicycle race that is now on at Chicago. The New York Velodrome Company, which is conducting the Chicago competition, has just gone into the hands of a receiver, appointed here by Federal Judge Julian Mack, to take care of its half completed track and building at 225th Street and Broadway.

The company planned a grand stand to seat 30,000 sport fans there, but lack of funds has compelled it to stop work. The bankruptcy petition filed calls attention to the fact that the company is also operating the bike contest at the Chicago Coliseum, and says it may be necessary to ask for the appointment of an ancillary receiver in Illinois.

KELSEY CAPTURES PINEHURST TROPHY

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 21.—Frank D. Kelsey of East Aurora, N. Y., today led a field of 137 guns in the midwinter handicap, the culminating event of the annual midwinter trapshooting tournament at Pinehurst, and won the coveted trophy with 98 broken from the 18-yard line. Twenty-three of the amateur field broke 92 or better.

Mr. Kelsey, who is 66 years of age and the dean of the trapshooters here assembled, was Frank Wright's predecessor as champion of New York State. Kelsey's score for the five events was 20, 20, 19, 19, 20—98. Weather conditions were perfect, with the thermometer in the sixties and very little wind.

The long-distance men gave a particularly good account of themselves. S. H. Sharman of Salt Lake City, a 21-yard man, took second honors with 97. Harve Dixon, Missouri State champion, led the rear-trench contingent with 96 at 22 yards and was tied for third place by C. C. Fawsett of Washington, who shot from the 20-yard line. Dixon was tied with Kelsey at 78 out of the first 80, but dropped 2 on the last 20, while Kelsey hit them all in a row.

A. Bogert of Sandusky, Ohio, a 22-yard man, broke 95. H. J. Ellsworth of Irvington, N. Y., led the metropolitan delegation at 94 from 17 yards. Martin McVoy of New York broke 93 at 20 yards and Tracey H. Lewis of New York disposed of 91, shooting from the 21-yard mark. The thirty-seven contestants who broke 91 or better divided twenty-six moneys, aggregating $3,440.

Tracey H. Lewis was awarded the general average trophy for the best aggregate of the week. Lewis broke 615 of the 650 targets thrown in the 16-yard contest and the two handicap events. Paul The leading scorers in the midwinter handicap were:

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The original contract for the Carpentier-Dempsey boxing bout is considered still valid by Charles B. Cochran, the English boxing promoter, a party to the agreement, it was declared in a statement authorized by his office here this morning. Mr. Cochran's associates said they had no knowledge of authority for William A. Brady of New York to speak in Mr. Cochran's behalf. The statement read:

"As far as Mr. Cochran is concerned the original contract for the Dempsey-Carpentier fight holds. If Mr. Brady or Mr. Rickard has withdrawn, that is beyond our control, but if it is true Mr. Cochran offers £100,000 to stage the fight in London."

It was stated that Mr. Cochran had not heard directly from Mr. Brady, but was inclined to believe that the ruling of the New York State Boxing Commission as to a maximum admission fee to the fight might have caused him to get out from under."

Developments in New York.

The outstanding local developments yesterday regarding the $500,000 Dempsey-Carpentier bout were the recovery of the champion's bond, which had previously been lost, and the flat declaration of the boxers' attorney, Harry Saks Hechheimer, that he will institute court action if the promoters fail or refuse to carry out the terms of the contract. Attorney Hechheimer, in a prepared statement, said that he had been definitely advised by the principals in the proposed bout in case any legal notification is given that any of the promoters desire to take advantage of the alleged breach of contract by the contestants, to move immediately to protect the legal interests of both Carpentier and Dempsey.

Attorney Hechheimer's statement follows:

Carpentier Ready to Sue.

I have been informed by cable that Carpentier has been advised by counsel at Paris that he has fulfilled his portion of the contract as far as the deposit of forfeiture is concerned, and that if the promoters have failed or refused to carry out the terms of the contract, he will proceed to sue for the breach of the same.

Kearns has taken a definite stand in the matter and I have, in addition to my own investigation, ascertained that the Fidelity Trust Company of Maryland executed the bond in the sum of $50,000, provided in the contract as one of the particular provisions of the contract made to safeguard the interests of all concerned so that no technicality would avoid the main intent of all the parties, which was that the contest should take place, that other cash security could be deposited with the trust company or a bond for the same amount to be delivered to the promoters, and that Mr. Kearns as fit to take advantage of this clause and secure the bond instead of depositing the cash with the Central Union Trust Company of New York.

During the course of the several conferences held at the office of Mr. Brady, it was finally decided that any question of any kind or character arising under the agreement should be left to the sole decision of Robert Edgren. Mr. Edgren has informed Mr. Kearns as far as he is concerned he has not said that there has been a violation of the contract nor does he consider the position of Mr. Brady to be the position of either Mr. Cochran or Mr. Rickard—he went entirely on his own responsibility.

Says Kearns Executed Bond.

There is no provision in the contract that the bond in place of the cash should be deposited with all the promoters as this was an entirely impossible fact. The fact that the bond was secured on the part of Kearns and properly executed and delivered, as now acknowledged by Mr. Kearns, carries out the proper intent of the contract and furthermore, up to this time no damage of any kind or character has resulted to any of the parties concerned—no steps, as a matter of fact, have been taken by Mr. Brady which assumed an expenditure or contractural obligation whereby he or his associates might suffer some financial injury.

Mr. Brady has admitted that at the time he went to the Central Union Trust Company to deposit, as he says, his bond, he made inquiry as to whether or not Kearns had deposited the cash security and was informed that he had not done so. Mr. Brady then saw fit not to deposit his bond. If such be the case he then had the same information as he has now utilized and if a forfeiture then took place it should have been taken at that time, and he cannot now step in and say that because he himself has failed to carry out his obligation in the same respect, he can hold Mr. Kearns liable from the same point of view.

There is no doubt that no court would consider that there has been a violation of the contract according to its terms, especially in view of the fact that Edgren has the final decision as to matters occurring and without his decision in some definite form the promoters, as well as the contestants, would be powerless to assume or take any action by reason of the alleged breach of contract.

No Violation of Contract.

It is my opinion that there has not been, however, a technical violation of the contract upon the part of the contestants, and it is my firm conviction especially in view of the general purport of the contract that my contention would be sustained.

During the course of one of the conferences Mr. Brady left the room stating as far as he was concerned he was through. Mr. Cochran at this time was present as were several other parties interested, and Mr. Cochran then stated that if Mr. Brady did not desire to continue as a participant under the contract he would assume to do so himself.

I have been definitely advised by my principals, in case any legal notification is given, that if any of the promoters desire to take advantage of an alleged breach of contract by the contestants, to immediately move to protect the legal interests of both Carpentier and Dempsey.

In my opinion there is no doubt that the attempt to break the contract was in order to further the interests of Mr. Cochran in order to have the principals participate in the bout in London, and especially so in view of the fact that Mr. Carpentier was under a contractual obligation to Mr. Cochran.

Dempsey's Bond Found.

The mystery of Dempsey's missing bond for $50,000 was cleared when the document was discovered in the office safe of Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager. The bond was immediately intrusted to the care of Promoter Tex Rickard, who accepted it with the statement that the good faith and legal obligations of the champion had been fulfilled.

It developed, according to an explanation by Dan McKetrick, local representative of Manager Kearns, that the bond was filed away in a private compartment of the office safe by Kearns under the impression that it was a copy of the original bond, which it was supposed had been deposited with the Central Union Trust Company. The flat announcement on Thursday from the trust company officials led to immediate search for the bond.

The bond, which calls for a surety of $50,000, as is provided in the contract for the proposed heavyweight championship battle, was issued under date of Nov. 20, the last day on which deposits were to be made by the boxers and promoters under the contract, by the Fidelity, Surety and Deposit Company of Baltimore. Rickard plans to deposit it immediately in the vaults of the Central Union Trust Company.

Discovery Elates Rickard.

Promoter Rickard, who has steadfastly maintained that Dempsey had complied with the provisions of the contract, was elated at the recovery of the champion's bond. He declared, however, that he still was prepared to follow the course announced by him with the first intimation that Promoters Brady and Cochran would withdraw. Rickard has declared repeatedly that in the event of the withdrawal of his two associates in the proposed bout he would conduct it independently under the original $500,000 purse contract, if the boxers sought to compel him under that document, or under a new contract stipulating a percentage basis for the boxers if they would agree to the latter arrangement.

Rickard had not received a reply yesterday to his cable dispatch to Charles B. Cochran, the British promoter. Upon receipt of this reply, he said, he would be prepared to discuss the situation further.

William A. Brady, who withdrew for himself and Promoter Cochran from participation in promotion of the bout, refused yesterday to discuss the situation in its latest status.

"You can say that I refuse further to discuss the situation," said Mr. Brady. "I have declared my attitude before. Just now I am waiting for a reply to my cable dispatch to Mr. Cochran, and until I hear from him in regard to his attitude on my action I will have nothing to say. I am sitting tight and waiting to see which way the cat will jump."

WANTS SIGNED CONTRACTS.

Notice was served by the Boxing Commission yesterday on boxers and their managers, licensed and operating under the Walker law, that written contracts between boxers and their managers would be recognized over verbal agreements in the future deliberations of the Boxing Commission and License Committee on disputes submitted for official consideration by individuals licensed under the laws. The notice came in a decision rendered in the case which involved Angil Christiano (Al Rogers), a manager, and Jesse Morey, a boxer, of Buffalo, in a dispute on the merits of a verbal agreement between boxer and manager.

The official decision follows:

"The New York State Boxing Commission and License Committee announce that, in the complaint of Angil Christiano (Al Rogers), manager, against Jesse Morey, a boxer, of Buffalo, in which a hearing was held by Commissioners Hooke and Wear and Deputy Commissioner Suttner on Monday, the commission cannot recognize the verbal contract between this manager and the boxer. There was no evidence submitted before the commission, except Al Rogers's own statement, that the contract was other than a verbal contract, to be terminated at will by either party. The commission, therefore, recognizes as Morey's manager Bert Finch of Buffalo, with whom Morey has made a written contract. The commission further wishes to take this opportunity to call to the attention of managers and boxers that, for their mutual protection, written contracts should be made in all cases."

Jack Singer, a Buffalo manager, was suspended for thirty days for a verbal attack on Referee Robert McLaughlin in the dressing room of the Queensberry A. C. of Buffalo after a bout on Jan. 3. The suspension will date from Jan. 20, according to the commission edict, and during the period Singer will not be permitted to act as manager or second at any bout in the State.

Paddy O'Gatty, local bantamweight, won on a foul from Roy Moore of St. Paul, in the third round of their scheduled fifteen-round bout last night at the Pioneer Sporting Club in East Twenty-fourth Street. Referee Eddie Pollack charged Moore with striking his opponent foul and disqualified him, after the ring official had previously warned Moore. The rule violations by Moore, together with the subsequent disqualification, caused considerable excitement among the spectators.

O'Gatty was sent to the canvas with a blow which he claimed was foul, in the second round. Referee Pollack began counting over the prostrate boxer and suddenly stopped. O'Gatty regained his feet, but before the bell again claimed he had been struck foul. Referee Pollack cautioned Moore on this occasion. Soon after the third session started Moore landed a blow which Referee Pollack adjudged foul, and the St. Paul lad was immediately disqualified.

RICKARD GETS PRESENT.

It must be that the hens of the Poultry Show, now occupying Madison Square Garden, heard of the trials and tribulations besetting their landlord, Tex Rickard, for they got together yesterday and presented the impresario of fistic artists with as fine a dozen of eggs as could be laid by Leghorns, Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes and the rest of the numerous family of barnyard queens starring in competition. As a result, it is rumored that Rickard is planning to stage an egg-laying contest as soon as this prize dozen has been appropriately scrambled, the entire receipts to go to himself.

Another recipient of prize eggs from the show was May Irwin, the actress, who runs a small chicken farm herself not many miles from Broadway. The Salvation Army received for free distribution an entire crate. Several dozen more were sold on the premises at 80 cents the dozen.

Bows to Thomas in Snooker Tourney by 59 to 43.

Three games were played last night in the amateur championship snooker pool tournament which is in progress at Doyle's Broadway billiard room. Al Thomas defeated Ray Crane in the first event by a score of 59 to 43. The second match was won by George La Rue, who won from Courtney Wood, 70 to 53, while the third affair resulted in a victory for Al Thomas, who beat Lou Paley, 78 to 40.

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 21.—Princeton defeated Cornell here tonight, 19 to 12, in a league basketball game. The Tigers' victory evened matters, for Cornell defeated Princeton when the Orange and Black five journeyed to Ithaca three weeks ago. Princeton showed a complete reversal of the form exhibited in early league games, and tonight's victory returns the Tiger to a place among the league championship contenders.

Cornell's defeat was largely due to the close guarding of the Cornell forwards, Molinet and Backelew. The Cornell captain, Molinet, who leads the league in scoring, was unable to add even a single field goal to his team's score because of the tenacity of Bergen, Princeton's substitute guard.

Princeton went into a short-lived lead at the outset of the game, due to a brace of fouls, but Cornell almost immediately registered a goal and a foul. Dickinson then dribbled the ball up the floor and scored from under his own basket, sending his team to the fore by a single point. After that Cornell never managed quite to catch up, and the half ended at 10?8.

Sidman, who was starring for Cornell, and Legendre, who was responsible for seven of the Tigers' points, both left the game early in the last half because of too many fouls.

Brawner took Legendre's place, got two baskets in a row, and Princeton had a lead of eight points with three minutes to play. Cornell cut this down by the margin of a foul goal, but never threatened to win.

The game was characterized by excellent guarding on both sides, and the brilliancy of play kept a capacity crowd at a high pitch of enthusiasm. Foul shooting was above standard, Molinet gauging four out of four, Brawner four out of five, and Legendre five out of six. In the matter of baskets, Cornell had some hard luck, ringing several shots that hesitated and then rolled off.

PRINCETON (19).		CORNELL (12).
Opie	R. F.	Barkelow
Jefferies	L. F.	Molinet
Dickinson	C.	Rippe
Bergen	R. G.	Cornish

Substitutions—Cornell: Pope for Sidman, Myers for Pope, Pope for Cornish. Princeton: Brawner for Legendre, Wittmer for Jefferies, Winfield for Opie.

Referee—Thorp, Columbia. Umpire—Corcoran, Navy. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

HARVARD BEATS AMHERST.

Special to The New York Times.

AMHERST, Mass., Jan. 21.—The Harvard basketball team outplayed and defeated the Amherst five tonight, 45 to 24. The visitors exhibited strong team work, and as the playing progressed showed a continually improved grade of basketball. Fitts, with six baskets, including several long shots, played a steady game, while the work of Pallo in the second half was sensational. The little forward was the individual high scorer of the game, with seven free shots and five baskets. Card, with four counters, performed best for the Purple. Amherst showed a lack of team work, and the tendency toward individual playing lessened their offensive strength.

The line-up:

HARVARD (45).		AMHERST (24).
Fitts	R. F.	Hill
Tyson	C.	Lee
Tolbert	L. G.	Palmer
Fering	R. G.	Snyder

Goals from fouls—Pallo (7), Snyder (4).

Referee—Otto of Springfield. Time—20-minute halves.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Jan. 21.—The Colgate basketball team here today sent the five of Rochester University down to defeat by a 52 to 26 score.

In spite of their handicap of inferior weight, the Rochester men played a brand of ball that was worthy of a more even result.

The line-up:

Edkins	R. F.	Karchmacer

LAUBACH BEATS GARDNER.

Turk Also a Winner in Title Three-Cushion Tourney.

In the continuation of the New York State three-cushion billiard championship at the National Recreation Academy last night George Laubach met and defeated Gus Gardner by the score of 30 to 18 in a game that lasted sixty innings. Laubach made two runs of 4, while Gardner could do no better than 3. The winner got away to a good start and Gardner never could overtake him.

The other game was played between Harold Turk and Robert Crespi, the one-armed player. Turk proved to be the winner after a closely contested game in which there was lots of good safety play, and at no time until Turk finally won out were the players more than two points apart. The score was 30 to 26 and the game lasted for sixty-five innings. Both had high runs of 3.

BALKLINE TOURNEY JAN. 24.

The Eastern 18.2 balkline championship of the National Amateur Association of Billiard Players will begin next Monday at the New York Athletic Club. Last year it was played at the American Billiard Club and was won by David McAndless, who has become a professional since then, so there is no champion at the present time.

The entries for the tournament are Francis S. Appleby, Edgar T. Appleby, T. Henry Clarkson, Edward W. Gardiner and Dr. L. L. Miall. Games of 300 points will be played, and it will require ten games to decide the tournament.

A novel indication of the increasing interest in athletics was furnished yesterday in Brooklyn, when Supreme Court Justice Aspinall received an application for incorporation of the Women's Athletic Club of Brooklyn. The organization is the first strictly women's athletic club to seek incorporation under the State laws. The club, it is understood, will devote most of its attention to swimming, but members will also engage in basketball, hockey, golf and other sports, it is said. Charlotte Boyle, champion swimmer, and Eileen Riggin, the youthful diver who won at the last Olympic games, are said to be members of the new organization. At present the Women's Swimming Association of New York is the leading women's swimming organization of the city, but this club is exclusively for swimmers. The Women's A. C. will establish its headquarters at 25 Clinton Street, Brooklyn, the former home of the Crescent A. C. Mrs. Kathryn V. Cowley is President of the organization.

The plans for the reorganization of the American Olympic Committee, which have been the objects of attention from a Reorganization Committee appointed by President Gustavus T. Kirby at the last meeting of the body at the New York A. C., Dec. 4, will be disclosed at the next assemblage of the Olympic officials, which will be held at the Mercury Foot organization on Feb. 5. Notification of the meeting was sent to the members of the committee yesterday by Secretary Frederick W. Rubien.

The report of the Reorganization Committee, which includes among its members President Kirby and Willis K. Booth, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company, who is Treasurer of the Olympic Committee, will be submitted to the officials. This report will embody a suggestion that there be a permanent American Olympic Committee installed for the purpose of keeping abreast of the work which in the past has accumulated between the holding of the international games. Under this plan, it is expected, much of the confusion and disadvantages which have been encountered by the officials in preparing for previous meets will be eliminated. The report will also contain a suggestion for an assembly of representatives of all national governing athletic bodies affiliated with the American Olympic Committee to be held in December next year.

Fordham's basketball five tackled the Seton Hall team last night on the courts in the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory, and the Fordham team won by the score of 44 to 27 in a game that was replete in brilliant shooting and quick work on the floor, but which was even more remarkable for the good team work which won the game for the collegians from the Bronx.

Gordon proved to be the star, but it was not his brilliant playing that counted as much as the excellent support he received from the other members of the team. Seton Hall was fairly good on the ficor and shot well when the opportunity presented itself, which was not often.

A game between the Fordham Preps and the Seton Hall Preps preceded the other game, and the Fordham youngsters proved to be the victors, the score being 35 to 17.

FORDHAM (44).		SEATON HALL (27).
Fallon	L. F.	Freis
Stocker	R. F.	Flynn
Gordon	C.	McGann
Kelly	L. G.	Donohue
Culloton	R. G.	Donovan

In the first half the visitors managed to hold Coach Bill Anderson's Lafayette players virtually even, the score being 17 to 13. But in the second half the Lafayette team ran away from its opponents, scoring 12 field goals, 8 more than St. John's.

MICHIGAN BEATS IOWA.

Wins Hard-Fought Basketball Game by Score of 19 to 15.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 21.—Michigan won a Western Conference basketball game from Iowa here tonight, 19 to 15. The game was close and hotly contested throughout, the score at the halfway mark being 7 to 7. Captain Karpus of Michigan and Schmick for Iowa were the individual stars.

MAY HIT CHICAGO BIKERS.

Velodrome Company, Operating There, in Receiver's Hands Here.

An ancillary receiver may be applied for here against the receipts of the six-day bicycle race that is now on at Chicago. The New York Velodrome Company, which is conducting the Chicago competition, has just gone into the hands of a receiver, appointed here by Federal Judge Julian Mack, to take care of its half completed track and building at 223th Street and Broadway.

The company planned a grand stand to seat 30,000, sport fans there, but lack of funds has compelled it to stop work. The bankruptcy petition filed calls attention to the fact that the company is also operating the bike contest at the Chicago Coliseum, and says it may be necessary to ask for the appointment of an ancillary receiver in Illinois.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 21.—Frank D. Kelsey of East Aurora, N. Y., today led a field of 137 guns in the midwinter handicap, the culminating event of the annual midwinter trapshooting tournament at Pinehurst, and won the coveted trophy with 98 broken from the 18-yard line. Twenty-three of the amateur field broke 92 or better.

Mr. Kelsey, who is 66 years of age and the dean of the trapshooters here assembled, was Frank Wright's predecessor as champion of New York State. Kelsey's score for the five events was 20, 20, 19, 19, 20—98. Weather conditions were perfect, with the thermometer in the sixties and very little wind.

The long-distance men gave a particularly good account of themselves. S. H. Sharman of Salt Lake City, a 21-yard man, took second honors with 97. Harve Dixon, Missouri State champion, led the rear-trench contingent with 96 at 22 yards and was tied for third place by C. C. Fawsett of Washington, who shot from the 20-yard line. Dixon was tied with Kelsey at 78 out of the first 80, but dropped 2 on the last 20, while Kelsey hit them all in a row.

C. A. Bogert of Sandusky, Ohio, a 22-yard man, broke 95. H. J. Ellsworth of Irvington, N. Y., led the metropolitan delegation at 94 from 17 yards. Martin McVoy of New York broke 93 at 20 yards and Tracey H. Lewis of New York disposed of 91, shooting from the 21-yard mark. The thirty-seven contestants who broke 91 or better divided twenty-six moneys, aggregating $3,440.

Tracey H. Lewis was awarded the general average trophy for the best aggregate of the week. Lewis broke 615 of the 650 targets thrown in the 16-yard contest and the two handicap events. Paul The leading scorers in the midwinter handicap were:

CHALLENGED BY COUNSEL

Harry Gordon Declares Union Is Out to Destroy "Our Industrial Society."

Commenting yesterday on the suit brought by the Clothing Manufacturers' Association for the dissolution of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, Sidney Hillman, President of the union, charged that the manufacturers were not sincere in bringing their action.

Harry A. Gordon of 347 Fifth Avenue, counsel for the manufacturers, said he did not believe Mr. Hillman was in a position to deny the allegation in the papers that the Amalgamated was "an organization whose basic principle is the destruction of our industrial society as at present constituted."

"We are not taking this blunderbuss lawsuit solemnly," said President Hillman. "If the manufacturers who filed it had meant business they would have asked for the usual immediate preliminary injunction ex parte. Instead, they set this action to come up in court two weeks hence. It is a move to fill the newspapers and whip into line their association members who are slipping toward resuming relations with us.

"The manufacturers who promulgate this suit cry conspiracy because they themselves have been the conspirators and they are being found out. They took the cue for a union-smashing plot from the country-wide scheming now going on under the name of 'open shop,' and their actions are of the same sort as those of the illegal combinations exposed in the Lockwood investigation and in briefs recently filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission. These conspirators are out to destroy unions. The emissaries of the New York clothing manufacturers went secretly to other markets, seeking to extend their lockout campaign, and, aside from Boston, they failed and were found out. Now they have the effrontery to fire a blunderbuss charge of conspiracy at the union."

In order, as he said, to contrast real suits with a fake suit, A. I. Shiplacoff, Manager of the New York Joint Board, gave out a statement regarding suits for damages brought by the employes against employers aggregating $180,000 in behalf of pickets who have been victims of assaults by guards.

Within a few days union workers will vote either to accept or reject the agreement worked out by a joint committee of the Association of Dress Manufacturers and the International Ladies' Garment Workers, it was announced yesterday, and it is believed that their action will end the threat of a strike which would have involved about 30,000 workers in the dress industry. The outstanding feature of the tentative agreement is that wages will remain as they were in 1920.

ROAST PIG VOLLEY IN GYPSY BATTLE

To the scant folklore, the rude ballads and the handful of love songs that make up the literature of the gipsy folk, gathered in their centuries of wanderings from the Nile to the Arctic Ocean, from the Euphrates to the Atlantic, there is now to be added the epic of the double wedding in Odd Fellows Hall, Forsyth Street, east side, New York City.

It is the modern epic of an ancient people. It embodies charges of profiteering at the wedding feast. It includes a row that no doubt will be described in an appropriate phrase in the language that the Roma have pilfered from all the tongues of the earth, and that phrase will mean "some fight"—a fight in which the softest and gentlest missiles used were eleven whole roast pigs.

It ends—or rather reaches a climax, for the end is not yet—outside of that palace of justice, the Men's Night Court, when one of the Gregory Johns elopes in a prosaic taxicab with the wife of one of the Ephraim Franks, a wife, alas, who wore about her swarthy neck all the wealth of the family. At last accounts some half a hundred itinerant tinkers in their colorful native costume, their bangles and ornaments of precious metals jingling as they ran, were in hot pursuit of the taxi, the lost fortune and vengeance.

Had seventeen of the Romani not pleaded guilty in Night Court last night to charges of disorderly conduct, proffering soiled dollar bills from sundry deep-hidden purses in payment of their fines, it might be possible to tell more in detail what it was all about. As it was, all the police of the Clinton Street Station knew for a certainty was that it took their combined and unstinted might to separate the combatants in the hall about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. They told how three ambulance surgeons spent a busy hour repairing the casualties inflicted with the roast pigs, minor volleys of roast chickens and major onslaughts with chairs, tables and the accoutrements of the wedding feast.

Gregory John and Old Man Guy were primarily responsible. It was they who entered into the pact for the marrying of the daughter of each to the son of the other. Considerable money changed hands, and all the coppersmith clan of gypsies were assessed for the festivities, which brought 500 of them into the hall at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. Whether the profiteering charge leveled against the managers of the wedding feast was justified or not, it is certain that a goodly number of battered and veteran casks had been emptied of their savory wines before Ephraim Frank appeared at the feast.

The rest is soon told in the language of one of the gypsy women who waited in the Night Court to be a witness if the testimony had been taken.

"Gregory John," said she, "he want too much money. Ephraim Frank he tell him not want too much. Gregory John say Ephraim Frank no pay. Ephraim Frank he say all gypsies pay $5, 15 cent, $15. Gregory John mad. He say Ephraim Frank Mexican. Ephraim Frank born Cleveland family from Brazil. He say liar, hit Gregory Frank with chair. Everybody fight."

BRIDGE COMPANY LISTED.

Announcement of Incorporation Delayed Through an Oversight.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 21.—Incorporation of the Hudson River Bridge Corporation, with $251,000 capital stock, was announced at the office of the Secretary of State today. The papers were filed last Tuesday, but through oversight no record was made on the sheets showing the list of incorporations.

The purpose of the incorporators, among whom are George A. Post, R. A. C. Smith, John H. Love, Henry D. Walbridge, Thomas H. Simpson, Fulton MacMahon, W. J. Amend, George T. Smith, and George F. D. Trask, is the erection of a bridge over the Hudson River between New Jersey and Manhattan. The plan as announced in a statement by Otis H. Cutler, Chairman of the Board of the American Brake Shoe and Foundry Company, printed in THE TIMES last Wednesday, includes freight and passenger terminals, elevated railways, a highway and railroad bridge, and moving platforms. It is understood that the project will cost $200,000,000. Mr. Cutler is Chairman of the Organizing Committee of the bridge company.

BROKERS MUST PAY CUSTOMER $32,182

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court decided yesterday that the brokerage house of N. W. Halsey Company must pay a judgment for $32,182, obtained by Mortimer B. Foster, a customer, as the value of 100 shares of Singer Manufacturing Company stock delivered to Edwin H. Hatch, Treasurer of the concern, on his representation that more margin was needed to protect Foster's account. The brokerage house refused to return the stock on the ground that the deposit was made not only to strengthen Foster's account but to create more margin for a venture in which he and Hatch were interested personally.

The papers show that Mr. Hatch was also an officer of the Mutual Trust Company of Orange, N. J., and that he has been in the Trenton penitentiary since 1917 serving a term of not less than seven years for obtaining $300,000 from the trust company by making false entries.

It is expected that the case will be carried to the Court of Appeals. The Appellate Division Justices affirmed the judgment without an opinion.

EXPORTER IN TOMBS, LACKS $100,000 BAIL

Samuel L. Harper, head of Harper, Marshall, Thompson & Co., an exporting firm, at 291 Broadway, was committed to the Tombs yesterday in default of $100,000 bail on an indictment for the theft of $112,785. The charge grew out of involuntary bankruptcy proceedings against the firm.

Harper and two others, who were also indicted but not arrested, are accused of stealing money paid to the firm on the sale of 50,000 cases of base tin. It is alleged that the checks were deposited to Harper's personal account and withdrawn by him and his accomplices.

C. H. Griffith, Harper's counsel, brought him to the Criminal Court Building yesterday and he was arraigned before Judge Crain in General Sessions, bail being fixed at $100,000. The charges were developed in the bankruptcy proceedings, when the liabilities of the firm were fixed at $350,000 and the assets at $1,500. The proceedings disclosed that many records of the firm were missing, and it was said that Harper and his alleged accomplices attempted to cover up their transactions by dummy companies.

The $112,785 which Harper is accused of stealing was paid, according to the indictment, for 50,000 cases of base tin, sold to the American Trading Company for export. The total amount paid to the Harper firm by the American Trading Company was $142,665, which, it is charged, was paid in three checks.

Harper is alleged to have had four dummy companies operating at one time, and his partners aided in gathering evidence against him and the two other men indicted with him, it is said.

ODD LUNACY PETITION.

William Theal Called Insane After 32 Years in Bloomingdale.

Special to the New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 21.—When Supreme Court Justice J. Addison Young today appointed Charles A. Dryer Commissioner of Lunacy to investigate, with a Sheriff's jury, the alleged incompetency of William Theal, it became known that Mr. Theal had been confined in Bloomingdale Asylum for thirty-two years.

The petition for the appointment of the commission was made by Margaret Pierone of 651 Second Avenue, Astoria, L. I., a niece of Mr. Theal, who alleges he is insane and incompetent. According to the papers filed in court, Mr. Theal is now 79 years old and is suffering from dementia. Dr. Russell, Superintendent of Bloomingdale, says that Mr. Theal has the mind of a child and spends his time playing with imaginary persons. He is said to have considerable money in trust. In all the years that Mr. Theal has been in the asylum no application has been made to declare him incompetent.

LLOYD'S APPEAL DENIED.

Conviction of Rich Communist and 19 Associates for Sedition Stands.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Motions for a new trial for William Bross Lloyd, millionaire sergeant-at-arms of the Communist Labor Party, and nineteen associates convicted of violating the Illinois anti-sedition law, were overruled in the Cook County Criminal Court today.

Attorneys for Lloyd forestalled immediate surrender of their clients by entering a motion for arrest of judgment. Arguments on this were set for Jan. 29.

Cases against eighty-six members of the Communist Party and thirty-eight members of the Industrial Workers of the World, based on indictments returned by the same Grand Jury which indicted Lloyd and his associates, were stricken from the docket, but with leave to reinstate.

Lloyd Heth, Assistant State's Attorney, explained this action by saying that in the I. W. W. cases most of the men indicted had been convicted on Federal charges before Judge Landis.

FORGER PLEADS GUILTY.

Peculations of Former Pratt Institute Cashier Estimated at $10,000.

Edward H. Byatt, 48 years old, of 65 Macon Street, Brooklyn, for eight years cashier of Pratt Institute, pleaded guilty before Judge Martin, in the Kings County Court, yesterday to forgery in the third degree. Byatt was indicted for the theft of $317 from the institute, but it was charged that his peculations amounted to $10,000, running through the period of his employment.

His trial was well under way yesterday when he decided to enter a plea of guilty. Judge Martin remanded him for sentence on Jan. 31.

CRAIG RESIGNS FROM FINANCE COMMITTEE

Refuses to Attend Meetings in Retaliation for Loss of Budget-Making Powers.

ROW IN BOARD FOLLOWS

Controller's Action Threatens to Tie Up City's Business—Matter Is Laid Over.

Controller Charles L. Craig threw yesterday's meeting of the Board of Estimate into disorder by resigning as Chairman of the Committee on Finance and Budget, the most important committee of the board, and serving notice that hereafter he would not attend any of its weekly meetings. The Controller took this action in retaliation for the action of the Mayor and the other members last week in taking away from the committee the work of making up the yearly budget and bestowing it upon the Committee of the Whole, of which the Mayor is Chairman.

While the Controller would make no explanation of his action, it was learned that he believed the Mayor and President LaGuardia of the Board of Aldermen had entered into a conspiracy to belittle the Controller's work and make it as unpleasant as possible for him in the board. The Controller complained that the Mayor called a meeting of the Committee of the Whole last week, giving him only a few hours' notice, and then put through the resolution taking the budget-making powers from the Finance Committee. When the Controller sent next day for a copy of the minutes of this meeting he was informed that the Mayor had instructed his stenographer not to make a stenographic record of the meeting. This, according to the Controller's friends, was the first time in the history of the Board of Estimate that minutes of a meeting had been suppressed.

The Mayor and other members of the Estimate Board were completely surprised at the Controller's resignation and a heated argument ensued as to what effect it would have on the transaction of the city's business. It is expected that without the Controller's presence important work will be seriously delayed, if not actually made ineffective.

A resolution to lay the matter over for a week was finally adopted, as was another for a meeting of the Finance Committee next Monday in the Controller's office.

There was another flare-up in the board when Borough President Van Name of Richmond, unable to get action on an assessment matter, declared that the people of his borough were seriously considering seceding from the city. The Mayor and Deputy Controller Smith voted in favor of delaying for two weeks action on the assessment matter.

The Borough President intimated that Deputy Controller Smith did not know where Richmond was, and demanded to know the reason for the Deputy Controller's objection. The Mayor asked Mr. Smith if he wished to answer Van Name.

"I am not here to answer any hard-cider speeches," replied the Deputy Controller. "I am here to transact the business of the city as intelligently and as expeditiously as I can."

President Riegelmann threatened to resign as Chairman of the board's Committee on Assessments unless the board decided to adopt some policy regarding reports from committees, which he said were not acted upon after the committee had made recommendations.

An appropriation of $900,000 was authorized to remove the piers of High Bridge and to substitute a single archway.

BARUCH HAS PLAN TO MARKET TOBACCO

Growers Get Him to Form Co-operative Company to Handle Stock on Their Hands.

MAY FIX NEXT YEAR'S CROP

Reported Germans Will Bid for Cheap Grades — "Cutout" Movement Continues.

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 21.—Kentucky tobacco growers turned tonight to Bernard M. Baruch to form a great co-operative marketing company to handle the tobacco that remains in the growers' hands, to fix a limit for the crop to be produced in the future and to sell it all at what the growers call a "living price." Baruch was interested in the Kentucky, Ohio, Tennessee and Indiana tobacco problems by Representative J. C. Cantrill of the Seventh Kentucky District, John W. Newman, President of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Association; Dr. Samuel Halley of Lexington, one of the leading sales warehousemen of the South, who with other tobacco men recently visited him in New York.

After a series of conferences it was announced in Kentucky today that Baruch had begun plans for such a company as would handle the output of the dissatisfied farmers and would tend toward becoming a new factor in the tobacco situation.

Coincident with the story of Baruch's action came word from Washington that representatives of the German Government want to buy a large amount of the low grade burley leaf, which is selling at from 1 to 5 cents a pound. The low price of the German mark is an obstacle, but it is believed this can be overcome. Kentucky leaf interests will confer with the German interests as well as with French and Japanese interests, who have also intimated they would take a quantity of low grade leaf. The buyers in the United States can only use the higher grades.

Newman and Halley are now in Washington to urge the Bureau of Internal Revenue to make a ruling allowing tobacco to be treated so that it could be made into fertilizer and used on the land that produced it. Tobacco prices over the State average 10 cents per pound for the same grades that last year sold for 40 to 50 cents. Farmers claim it cost them 30 cents a pound to produce the crop.

Tonight the organization formed to enforce a "cutout" of this year's crop met here and decided to push the work. March 1 was named as the final date for all pledges to raise no tobacco. It is believed the announcement that Baruch has entered the fight on behalf of the growers will retard the movement.

LIBERTY BOND SELLERS HELD

Two With $20,000 Securities Suspected of Complicity in Robberies.

Magistrate Thomas Nolan yesterday in the West Side Court held Robert Duval of St. Louis, Mo., and Louis Harris of 514 Sixth Avenue in $10,000 bail for a hearing Monday. The men were arrested Thursday by Detectives Rosenberg and Mindheim on suspicion of being connected with the thefts of securities and Liberty bonds in Western cities. Mindheim, posing as a banker, and accompanied by Rosenberg, went to an apartment in West Ninety-seventh Street where, they said, Duval and Harris offered to sell them $20,000 worth of Liberty bonds.

The bonds were confiscated, and the detectives told the Magistrate they had communicated with the police of several Western cities to learn if they knew anything about Duval and Harris.

Jackson Estate $1,366,664.

An appraisal filed yesterday in the Surrogate's office, Brooklyn, shows that Edwin E. Jackson Jr., who died at his home, 124 Clinton Avenue, that borough, in May, 1919, left a net estate amounting to $1,366,664, all of which goes to his widow, Mrs. Caroline M. Jackson.

FUR SALE OFFERINGS.

Wolf and Opossum Pelts Principal Ones at Sale Yesterday.

Wolf and American opossum were the principal offerings of the fifth day at the fur sale in the Masonic Hall here yesterday. Prices obtained for the former, which were put up at the opening of the afternoon session, appeared to be not so good as had been expected in some quarters of the trade. They were said, however, to be pretty fair, considering the general quality of the skins. The best price, which was paid for a black timber wolf, was $23. A representative price for the better grades of "regular" wolf was about $4. Opossum, which brought out some fair bidding, reached a top of $1.16. The amount realized at the sale yesterday was estimated, unofficially, at $300,000, which brought the grand total for five days' selling to $1,685,000.

The morning session began with an offering of Chinese civet cat, with Dan Collyer Jr. wielding the hammer in place of J. Gordon Neakes until the Australian opossums were reached. The feature of the morning's activities was the competition that developed for the prime lots of Australian and New Zealand rabbit pelts, of which more than forty-two tons were sold. The poundage price of these skins ranged from 20 cents to $1.25.

All of the opening session was given over to Chinese, Australian, Tasmanian and other foreign furs, which brought the price ranges shown in the appended table. Although there was no marked interest in those furs on the part of buyers, the complete oferings were disposed of. A good part of the kangaroo collection, however, was reported withdrawn.

The furs sold yesterday brought the range of prices shown in the table given below, which also contains the declines. The day's average prices showed when compared with similar averages of last April:

	Low Price.	High Price.	Decline P. C.
Chinese civet cat	..	$1.40	40
Chinese weasel	$0.15	0.35	[illegible]
Chinese raccoon	..	0.58	60
Australian and New Zealand rabbits	0.20 lb.	1.25 lb.	*60
Rabbit	0.03	0.05	75
White hare	0.10	0.14	60
Australian opossum	0.18	3.20	50
Ringtail opossum	0.02	0.55	75
Tasmanian opossum	0.10	3.40	50
Kangaroo	0.22	1.10	..
Wallaby	0.10	0.55	75
Wombat	0.75	1.30	35
Ringtail cat	0.03	1.15	70
Wolf	0.30	23.00	†50
Opossum	0.00½	1.16	60

*Furriers' rabbit. Hatters' rabbit dropped 75 per cent. †Northern wolf. The decline in southwestern wolf was 55 per cent.

The sale will conclude today with offerings of black, brown, grizzly and polar bears; fitch, mole, nutria, ermine, raccoon and squirrel. The mole offering, which is the largest of the day, contains nearly 475,000 pelts.

136 LIQUOR INDICTMENTS.

Hudson County Jury Accuses Saloon Men Under State Law.

Indictments against 136 saloon keepers and bartenders for alleged violations of the State law in all parts of Hudson County, N. J., were handed up to Judge James W. McCarthy of the Common Pleas Court at the Court House in Jersey City yesterday. It was understood last night that about one-half of those indicted had been arrested and officers were out looking for the others. Judge McCarthy thanked the jurors and told them they had made a splendid record. The evidence was obtained by detectives under County Prosecutor Pierre P. Garven, who said yesterday that if the Legislature would pass a State prohibition enforcement law he would make Hudson County "bone dry."

Frank Vetrano, proprietor of a cabaret at 529 Broome Street, was held in $500 bail yesterday for examination next Tuesday by Magistrate Charles E. Simms in the Tombs Court on a charge of violating the State liquor tax law.

ARGENTINE LOAN FAILS.

Government Refuses to Pay 8 Per Cent. on $200,000,000 Bonds.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 21.—It is reliably reported that the negotiations which have been going on between the Argentine Government and a syndicate of New York bankers for a $200,000,000 loan to Argentina have proved unsuccessful because the Government considered the bankers' terms too severe.

These terms, it is understood, were that Government bonds be sold to the bankers at 98 and bear 8 per cent. interest. The report says the Argentine financial representatives informed the bankers that it was too much to expect any Government to pay 8 per cent.

CUTS IN FABRIC PRICES.

Reductions by American Woolen Co. on Men's Wear Goods.

The American Woolen Company yesterday readjusted prices on stock goods for the men's wear trade on a basis of from 25 to 33 1-3 per cent. below former quotations. These reductions mark an effort to sell a surplus, estimated anywhere from 30,000 to 50,000 pieces, consisting of goods orders for which were cancelled or which were made up for a demand that did not materialize. The so-called key number serge, 3192, was brought down to $2.27½ from $3.67½, the Spring 1921 opening price. This number was priced at $4.50 for Fall 1920. The new prices met with a large response and principally on the part of small operators, who were said to be anxious to make purchases at the new low level, which will enable them to manufacture clothing at values likely to meet the public's demand for cheaper apparel.

The new price range on stock goods is guaranteed by the company against the Fall opening, and rebates will be given if the new quotations are lower than the values now set. This was considered a rather significant move by buyers, who interpreted it as evidence that further price declines are not likely. The surplus goods are offered for February and March delivery with no dating and on regular terms. The fabrics included in the surplus offering were described as repeating numbers or materials which can be used the year around.

The action of the company in readjusting prices at this time was not so favorably regarded in many quarters of the clothing trade. Normally, the clearance of Spring goods is not made until June, thus removing the possibility of using the goods for any but special price or job lot purposes. Purchases made now, however, can be distributed in regular channels as seasonable merchandise. It is believed that the small operators will look for a quick turn-over and make prices that will attract business on this basis, thus cutting into the trade of the larger houses which bought goods in a regular way to provide for their usual seasonable wants. The price readjustment was therefore criticised on the ground that it gives the smaller operators a clear field, with the regular trade at a disadvantage. The suggestion was heard, in fact, that a more equitable procedure would have been to make the reductions retroactive in order to protect the concerns which bought their supplies in good faith, or else that the materials might first have been offered to them.

In analyzing the new prices, the clothing trade found that prices on its products must still be maintained at fairly high levels. It was pointed out that a standard make, cut and trim formerly cost $20 and now costs about $16, with a possible New York scale of $11. When a serge at $4.50 was used, the wholesale selling price of a suit was either $48.50 or $52.50. With goods at $2.37½, the same suit should cost around $30, making a retail price of $45 or $50.

Some of the well known materials repriced yesterday were as follows:

	New Price.	Spring 1921.	Fall 1920.
3192—11-oz. serge	$2.37½	$3.67½	$4.50
8018—13 wool filled	2.02½	2.75	4.12½

Yesterday ....7¾@7⅞% for the best names
Thursday ....7¾@7⅞% for the best names
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Volume Sales Necessary.

Manufacturers, who have heard of the buying opposition which has developed in consequence of advances asked, contented themselves yesterday with drawing attention to the volume of sales necessary for the stores to maintain while the process of liquidation goes on. This was, therefore, given as a reason for believing that there will be no sudden cessation of buying at the least evidence of wholesale price increases. For volume sales, the manufacturers argued, merchandise must be purchased, and there is no dodging advances when they come along.

Billing Clerks Working Harder.

One thing the improvement in business has done has been to increase the burden of the billing departments of selling houses. Particularly is this said to be the case with jobbers and manufacturers who sell direct to the retail trade and who have thousands of accounts on their books. When goods were scarce and orders could not be filled, the number of invoices sent out was considerably smaller than when things were normal. Now that the latter condition is approaching again the bill clerks are realizing the difference. The increased number of orders is also said to be adding materially to the work of the credit departments of the prominent wholesalers.

Gray Goods Sales Fair.

A fair business was put through in the local gray goods market, more active trading having been prevented by the slump in cotton. Among the day's print-cloth sales were spot Southern 39-inch 68-72s at 9¾ cents. Second hands sold Eastern makes of 38½-inch 60-48s at 7¾ cents for delivery during the remainder of this month and through next. In the coarser yarn goods there were sales of nearby 3.95-yard drills at 9 cents net. Buyers paid 6¾ cents for 5.50-yard sheetings for shipments running to the end of March. It was reported that inferior makes of the same goods might be had for a bid of 6½ cents, the delivery also being the same. Nearby lots of 40-inch 2.85-yard sheetings brought 10½ cents.

Kick-Back From Unemployment.

In scanning the future of business, manufacturers in various lines believe that the corner has been turned, and that from now there should be steady improvement. One factor, however, regarded as a bearish influence, which has not exerted its full effect yet, is unemployment. The kick-back from this is expected to reach its full force some time during the coming Summer. By that time the evil effects may be minimized, it is thought, through the readjustment of industry to a more active basis and a price liquidation which will lower the cost of living. But confidence in the outlook is being restrained by reason of the present labor situation.

Dress Goods Opening.

With the improvement that has taken place in the women's apparel trade, it is thought likely that the opening of Fall dress goods will not long be put off. Opinion differs regarding the values which will be established at that time. Lately the market has shown a tendency to advance, and on some numbers the increases are considered quite stiff in view of how idle the industry was but a short time back. Another factor is taking an important place in the plans of the garment manufacturers, and that is the possibility of future labor trouble contingent upon a wage adjustment which all feel is most necessary. This condition is expected to come to a head some time next Summer, and for that reason the garment houses will not consider it proper to be too plentifully supplied with goods. There is quite some weighty opinion behind the view that opening purchases of dress goods will not be large.

Finish Purchases of Spot Goods.

The special offices provided by the American Wholesale Corporation in the Greenhut Building for the purpose of facilitating its purchases of sport merchandise to the extent of $3,000,000 were closed yesterday with the completion of the buying. At the offices of the company it was said that the results were considered very satisfactory, although the entire sum had not been expended. On the first day of buying, 1,800 salesmen visited the offices, and the second day drew an equal number, although there was a falling off yesterday. Clothing, women's ready-to-wear, leather and cotton goods, it was said, were freely offered at attractive price quotations.

May Check Printed Cottons.

Unless there is a recovery in the cotton market in the near future, it was asserted yesterday, the advances in narrow prints that have been talked of here of late may not materialize. Without the support of a strong market for the staple, gray goods prices will soon start slipping, from all accounts, which means that efforts to advance the price of the colored cloths would be met with a loud protest from the jobbing trade. The jobbers, for that matter, do not look with any particular favor on the advances which have already been made in several lines of cotton goods that were reduced in price at the turn of the year.

Weather Aids Coal Prices.

If the lower range of temperatures of the early part of the week has not caused much of a revival in the wholesale demand for hard coal, Saward's Journal will say today, it has had a tendency to check for the time being the drift toward lower prices for independent tonnage and has brought in a few more orders to retail dealers. The latter have so far caught up with their back orders as to be well able to take care of a moderate amount of increased buying. Some have even been soliciting orders, though that is unusual. The demand for soft coal shows little revival, and the local market is so glutted that it will take some time to clean up the surplus at the present rate of absorption.

Furniture Makers Don't Cut Much.

Men who have returned from the annual Winter furniture fair at Grand Rapids assert that the manufacturers throughout the country are not helping to lower the cost of living by reducing prices on their products to any extent. Reductions of around 15 per cent. were made in a number of cases, but these were said to have been discounted largely by the offers that had been made by some manufacturers to move their wares late in the past year. Unless retailers can force the manufacturers to capitulate by holding off indefinitely substantially lower prices on general lines of furniture to the public will not be seen for some time. Manufacturers defend their position on the ground of high production costs, particularly for labor.

Boston to Get Ostrich Skin Shoes.

BOSTON, Jan. 21.—Ostrich skin shoes, in smart tan or sober black, which, it is claimed, will outwear leather footwear and cost less, will soon be seen in Boston. The first consignment of ostrich skins arrived here today in an American steamship from South Africa. Manufacture of the shoes will begin immediately and they will be offered to women and men as an Easter novelty.

THE WEEK'S PRICE TREND.

A Notable Feature Was the Weakening in the Foodstuffs.

The excess of declines over advances in general wholesale commodities prices, as shown in Dun's list, continued to lessen this week, but, in spite of this fact, the "downs" in the foodstuffs portion of the list exceeded the "ups" by nearly four to one. A total of 53 declines was shown in the general list, against 36 advances. Last week the figures were 62 and 34, respectively. Weakness in grains and lumber were other features of the current list.

The following table gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on standard commodities selected from the general list mentioned above. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

*Nominal.

Only six advances in the listed foodstuffs were shown this week and at least half of these took place in articles of secondary importance. Flour was quoted 25 cents a barrel lower, and Middle Western lard and bacon were also cheaper here. Hams advanced in this market. The provisions list at Chicago did not show a single advance this week. Mess pork and short ribs were quoted unchanged, but live beef, hogs and sheep were also lower.

The week in the local dairy products list was featured by declines of 3 cents a pound in the best butter and 3 cents a dozen in both the near-by fancy and the best Western eggs. Butter is now 14 cents a pound cheaper than at this time a year ago, while the fancy eggs cost 9 cents a dozen less. Common apples advanced here. In the dried fruits declines were recorded in citron, cleaned currants and orange and lemon peel. Vegetables changes were not very numerous, and were equally divided between advances and declines.

The leading grades of Brazilian coffee lost some ground during the week, but there was no change in the teas. Advances in mace and black pepper were seen in the spice list, as were declines in cloves and white pepper. The best raw sugar declined somewhat, but there was no change in the refined granulated. All of the grains changes were downward this week, straw alone failing to drop.

A more even division in the drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils revisions was seen this week than for some time. Nine of these articles went up, against 12 declines. Features were few. The changes in the metals list were evenly divided. Most of the changes were seen in the minor metals, in which advances were shown by aluminium, lake copper and lead. The declines occurred in antimony, spelter and tin. Both Brazilian and Eastern crude rubbers were higher, and there was a generally firmer tone reported from the principal raw silk markets.

Leather again was quotably unchanged, but in the hides five declines were shown to overbalance further advances in No. 1 kip and No. 1 calfskins. In the naval stores resin and turpentine were higher. The lumber list showed declines in red gum, poplar, ash, birch and common mahogany. The paint list showed three recessions in prices for asphalt paints.

The week in the textile markets brought about a further tightening up in cotton goods prices, principally in colored and bleached cloths. Woolens and worsteds were marked by the repricing of stock in men's wear fabrics and dress goods for Spring by the largest factor in the business and by the naming of reduced prices on dress goods for Fall by one of the leading corporations making that class of goods.

Wages in the Needle Trades.

In discussing the price situation in women's ready-to-wear, a leading manufacturer yesterday called attention to the wage liquidation which must yet take place. Wholesale prices on popular priced merchandise, he said, have come down very near to pre-war levels, notwithstanding the higher wage scales. A comparison of labor cost per garment, he explained, showed that the pre-war percentage to total cost was about 25 per cent., whereas now it amounts to some 60 per cent. He did not express himself in favor of a reduction of wages to pre-war rates, but suggested that either the piece-work system be restored or else the employers be given the right to discharge inefficient workers.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The noteworthy incidents on yesterday's financial markets were the rise in French exchange to the highest rate since September; the maintenance of 7 per cent. call money all day, for the first time in a fortnight; a general and rather sharp decline on the Stock Exchange, and a very extraordinary statement of foreign trade for December, showing a surplus of exports over imports never but once surpassed in any previous month of our commercial history. These curiously disconnected occurrences did not in any respect embody themselves in the 1 to 3 point fall of stocks, which affected both industrial and railway shares. Those declines, like the similar advances of two days before, represented the alternating experiments of restless professional traders on one side and the other of a market which, if left to its natural tendencies, might perhaps have ceased to move at all.

Foreign exchange made a quick recovery of the losses incurred in the late market of Thursday. Sterling did not reach the high rate of the week, but its closing figure of $3.77⅝ yesterday compared with $3.33 at the low Autumn level of November, and the advance in Continental rates brought most of them well above any previous quotation of the year. Scandinavian exchange sold nearly 1½ cents per crown higher than three days ago, and the advance of the same period in the Belgian rate has been ⅜ cent per franc; but the day's notable movement was in exchange on Paris. The franc, at 6.79 cents, sold yesterday almost ¾ cent higher than a week ago, and more than 1 cent above the low-level price of 5.70, reached Nov. 11. It is still well below the rate of last January, but the rapidity of the recent recovery has been remarkable.

This movement of foreign exchange was undoubtedly based on the growing realization that, in the altered situation now existing on our money and investment markets, the ready placing and quick absorption of numerous important European loans is insured. People closely in touch with the situation have not doubted the fact since the beginning of the year, but yesterday's virtual announcement of the $30,000,000 Belgian loan made more tangible impression. Taken along with the series of European loans which in due course will follow, the implication is of high importance to the exchange market and to European finance; it may eventually create the position, in the matter of readjustment of Continental Europe's industry and foreign obligations, which seemed to be expected on our investment markets during a month or two after the armistice and before the tossing of American capital into extravagant home speculation began. Its effect on the general bond market is perhaps less evident; the placing of a Belgian Government twenty-year loan on an 8 per cent. basis might be construed in different ways as an influence on the price of outstanding 4 and 5 per cent. American company securities. As compared, however, with the locking up of capital in unsold and unsalable merchandise at a 15 to 25 per cent. rise in prices over wartime, there is something to say even for outstanding investment bonds.

That the persistent rise in foreign exchange was not a result of such contracting American export trade as had been widely predicted, is proved by the trade statement for December, published yesterday. So far from such reduction in exports having occurred, the value of our outward trade last month, in the face of demoralized South American exchange and falling commodity prices, was with five exceptions (three last year and two in 1919) the largest in our history. Nor was this all; for last month's imports not only declined in value $55,000,000 from November and $114,000,000 from the previous December, but were much the smallest of any month since February of 1919. The resultant export surplus, $454,000,000, has never been surpassed except for the wholly abnormal $635,000,000 outward balance of June, 1919. In an American trade reaction of an ordinary year there would be nothing strange in such results; they are perplexing now because most of us had thought that other countries were achieving more than we in curtailment of foreign purchases. The only convincing explanation of this remarkable export statement is the increase over the preceding year of some 14,000,000 bushels in our December wheat exports and our shipment of five times as much cotton as in August.

FRIDAY, JAN. 21, 1921.

Call funds on the Stock Exchange ruled all day at 7 per cent. This is the highest rate for renewals since Jan. 12. No funds were reported offered in the outside market. For time money, both classes, there was a change in the bid price to 6¼ per cent. compared with 6 per cent. ruling all week. Lenders are asking 6½ per cent. with the demand for funds not very large. Merchants' paper and prime bankers' acceptances ruled all day unchanged from previous quotations. Principal inquiry in this department comes from interior bankers.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Heavy buying of exchange on all important markets of the European Continent caused an advance in rates yesterday which amounted to more than ⅛ cent per franc, for Paris, to nearly ⅛ for Brussels, to nearly one tenth of a cent for Rome, and to ⅜@½ cent per crown for the Scandinavian markets. Nearly all other European markets participated. Sterling sold at one time ⅜ cent above Thursday's closing. There was some reaction before the close.

South American rates were unchanged. The rate on Montreal advanced to 88 cents against 87.8 Thursday, 87.7 Wednesday and 87.3 a week ago.

TO ISSUE MORTGAGE NOTES.

International Products Stockholders Will Vote on $5,000,000 Plan.

Stockholders of the International Products Company will be asked to authorize an issue of $5,000,000 8 per cent. mortgage notes at a special meeting to be held Feb. 1, according to announcement yesterday.

Funds resulting from the sale of the notes will be used in the development of the company's Paraguay business. It is proposed to issue promptly $2,272,249, the remainder to be reserved for future requirements. The notes will be dated Jan. 15, 1921, and will mature next year. More than $1,100,000 of the issue has already been underwritten.

Roads Seek to Cut Freight Claims.

Another item in the 1921 economy campaign of the railroads came to light yesterday when it was learned that the Long Island Railroad has requested all agents and handlers as well as other employes to join in a crusade for the prevention of freight claims at the source. It has been estimated that the possible savings through an intensive campaign may amount to 50 per cent. in a year, and with some roads paying claims of $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 this would be quite an item.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Conditions Reversed.

The rather sharp falling off in stock market prices yesterday was held to be in large part an effect brought about by the decline in the commodity markets. In general the stock market is the barometer, but Wall Street was inclined to consider that yesterday it served only to reflect price movements elsewhere, as, for instance, in cotton and grain. The display, however, coincided with what the Street has been talking about for a number of days, namely, a decline. It was plain to many that the forward impetus to the market in the early days of the month was playing out. It had been built on short covering, and with speculators for the decline having largely taken in their commitments there was no real cushion to provide a buffer to selling. This was demonstrated yesterday in fairly conclusive manner. Commission houses throughout the financial district were bearish recently, in anticipation of just what has developed. There has, however, been a sentiment that buying should be undertaken on any substantial reactions. It will be interesting to see whether this advice still stands.

Bond Prices Recover.

The upturn in the bond market since the first of the year has been one of the highly interesting developments. It has not been confined to one class of securities, but rather has been a broad movement encompassing the entire list. Taking the Liberty issues, for instance, it will be found that the gain in some of the more active issues has been about 3 points. In the case of these securities it is reported that there has been extensive investment demand on the part of savings banks throughout the country, the high interest yield affording a particular attraction, considering the security of the investment. In the general run of bonds it has been found that there was a good reinvestment demand, and also a considerable amount of buying back of issues sold toward the close of last year for the establishment of losses for tax return purposes. Also it has been discovered that there was a disposition to shift from the short-term to the long-term securities. This has been impelled, in part at least, by the prospective easing of money over the span of years, there being a danger that the reinvestment of funds from short-term securities might not afford such attractive dividend possibilities as now. The following tables show the advances which have taken place in some representative issues of Liberty, foreign Government and railroad bonds since the first of the year and a comparison of the high of this week with the low of 1920:

An indication of the situation is to be found in the fact that ten bonds eligible for savings banks in this State show a yield average of 5.18 per cent.

Money's Tightness.

The money market showed real stiffness yesterday, opening and renewing at 7 per cent. for the first time since a week ago Wednesday, and standing at that figure thereafter throughout the day. Time money also was a shade firmer, being quoted at 6¼ per cent. bid, as against the 6 per cent. bid figure which had obtained since last Thursday. And there was no "outside" money at any price. This stiffening, some of the lenders said, was due to the "foolishness" of those who had offered money at 4 and 4½ per cent. last week. By doing that, said the critical lenders, the interior banks were scared into pulling their funds away, from here or into investing them in Treasury certificates or in bankers' acceptances. This, they went on to explain, made for tightness. But the record failed to show any cases of borrowers willing to pay the rate being refused accommodation. Money wasn't that tight.

Treasury Certificates.

The local Federal Reserve Bank has addressed a letter to member banks in this district suggesting that they take advantage of the present excellent demand for Treasury certificates to liquidate their holdings and reduce their loans at the Reserve Bank. The letter also points out that apparently a great many banks have already done this, for as compared with the total of certificates outstanding of $2,350,000,000, only $131,000,000 are held by Federal Reserve Banks as collateral for loans. As an evidence of the demand for certificates, the letter calls attention to the fact that in the recent offering $300,000,000 or more was subscribed in his district, while only $138,000,000 was allotted, and it states that the maturities up to June are now selling on a 5½ per cent. basis, while the larger maturities are selling on a 5⅜ per cent. basis, which means that virtually all certificates are at a premium.

The Clayton Act Again.

The announcement yesterday that John D. Ryan had resigned from the Board of Directors of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul in compliance with Section 10 of the Clayton act was not altogether a surprise, as it was realized when the President refused to further extend the date upon which the act was to become effective that there would have to be many changes in railroad directorates. It has been the hope in some railroad quarters that something could be done to take the teeth out of the act so that the changes would not have to be so marked, but it would seem now after the resignations of several prominent men from different railroad boards as if the big companies are not willing to let the matter go pending such an attempt.

No New England Compromise.

Reports that the New England railroads have offered to compromise with the trunk line railroads serving them on the question of a division of through rates, the figure agreed upon being $15,000,000, were flatly denied yesterday by one of the New England Presidents. It can be stated authoritatively, however, that both the New England heads and the trunk line heads have talked the situation over, but it is not considered that anything definite will be announced until after the hearing on the matter before the Interstate Commerce Commission is terminated. The adjourned hearing will be resumed again on Monday when the trunk line officials are testifying for the solution of the New England situation. On Monday the trunk line heads will tell their side of the story to the commission.

TO SELL $30,000,000 BELGIAN GOLD BONDS

J. P. Morgan & Co. and Guaranty Trust Co. Will Offer Twenty-Year 8% Issue.

WILL BE DATED FEB. 1 NEXT

First Financing Undertaken Here by Belgium Since June 1, 1920.

J. P. Morgan & Co. and the Guaranty Trust Company will formally offer on Monday $30,000,000 in Kingdom of Belgium twenty-year 8 per cent. sinking fund gold bonds at par and interest, according to an announcement made yesterday. Associated with them will be a syndicate composed of substantially the same New York and Chicago bankers who were associated in the offering of Belgian bonds last June.

The new bonds will be dated Feb. 1, next, and will mature on Feb. 1, 1941. The bonds will not be redeemable as a whole before Feb. 1, 1931, but a sinking fund will be created sufficient to purchase $1,500,000 principal amount of the bonds per annum, at a price not to exceed 107½ and interest. If it is impossible to purchase bonds at this price or less, sinking fund moneys will be used to redeem bonds at that price by lot on Feb. 1, 1926, and annually thereafter. The sinking fund payments will be sufficient to redeem at 107½ and interest all of the issue by its maturity.

This is the first financing Belgium has undertaken in this market since June 1, of last year, when an issue of $50,000,000 twenty-five year 7½ per cent. bonds were sold at 97½ and interest. That issue was callable, in equal instalments, annually at 115 and interest. Associated with J. P. Morgan & Co. and the Guaranty Trust Company in that transaction were thirteen of the leading banks and banking houses of this city and four of the leading Chicago banking institutions.

Prior to that, on Jan. 1, 1919, the same bankers sold an issue of $25,000,000 in one and five-year notes of the Belgian Government. These notes, of which $6,400,000 were allotted on the one-year maturity and $18,600,000 on the five-year term, were sold at 90 and 95¾, respectively. The notes carried a coupon rate of 6 per cent.

So far as could be learned in banking circles yesterday, no substantial progress has been made on any of the other foreign loans now under negotiation. The French loan is said to be as indefinite as it was previously and nothing concrete can be learned regarding the Swiss financing, which is expected to be arranged in this market shortly. Bankers, however, believe that these issues cannot be long deferred and it is predicted that several other foreign offerings will be announced in the near future.

RAIL HEAD DEFENDS OUTSIDE REPAIRS

E. E. Loomis, President of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, yesterday answered the general charge made by W. Jett Lauck, economist for labor bodies, that railroads are farming out equipment work at greatly increased costs instead of making repairs in their own shops.

"The return of large numbers of our cars in a badly crippled condition after the end of Government control," said Mr. Loomis, "complicated by the situation prevailing in the shops as a result of the Railroad Administration's abolition of piecework and inefficiency due to the enforced continuance of the national agreements with various unions, made it impossible to cope with the situation.

"Hours worked in our car repair shops in the ten months since March 1, when Federal control ended, show an increase of approximately 850,000 man hours, or 18 per cent., as compared with the average working hours in the same period in 1914, 1915, and 1916. Despite this greatly increased number of hours worked, it was impossible to keep the number of crippled cars down to normal. It was deemed vital that every car on the line be placed in serviceable condition, and to do this it was necessary that the Lehigh Valley contract with outside concerns for the repair of 2,825 of its steel coal cars. This we were able to do at no greater expense than if we had repaired the cars at our own shops under present conditions had we had the facilities to do so.

"There is no question that the coal situation in this country was a critical one at the beginning of the Winter. In many places consumers were on the verge of panic. As one of the largest carriers of anthracite it was incumbent upon us to move every car of coal possible and to make every possible car available for loading. To do this we were obliged to avail ourselves of every agency to get our car equipment repaired promptly."

COMPROMISE DENIED.

Edward J. Pearson, President of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad yesterday denied the rumors that the New England carriers had agreed to compromise with the trunk line railroads for $15,000,000 additional revenues from through rates. His denial stated in part:

"The trunk lines have not offered to make a schedule yielding the New England railroads an additional $15,000,000 annual revenue, as reported from Boston, and the New England roads certainly do not plan to take the initiative in effecting a settlement of the issue before hearings before the Interstate Commerce Commission are concluded."

An adjourned hearing on the matter of a division of through rates in the New England district will be resumed on Monday, the trunk line roads being scheduled to give their testimony.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Forms for filing income tax returns on incomes of $5,000 and less will be ready for distribution Monday, the Bureau of Internal Revenue announced today. Copies will be sent to all persons who filed returns last year, but failure to receive a copy will not relieve any one from making a return by March 15.

On the same date, the Bureau announced, forms will be ready for filing returns of normal income tax to be paid at source, such as interest on bonds and similar obligations of domestic and foreign corporations having a paying interest in the United States.

City of Rochester Bonds Offered.

A syndicate composed of Brown Brothers & Co., the First National Bank, White, Weld & Co. and Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co., has bought $4,225,000 City of Rochester 5 per cent. serial bonds, maturing 1922 to 1951, which are being offered at prices to net 5.50 per cent. to 4.65 per cent., depending upon maturity.

BUSINESS IS BETTER, TRADE REVIEWS SAY

Gains Outweigh Losses, Though Contrasts in Some Industries Are Reported.

The trade reviews of the last week agree that while reports from different parts of the country indicate that there is irregularity in general business, there have been more gains than losses, and business generally shows an improvement in demand.

Dun's Review says:

"Despite the unsatisfactory features which still prevail, business conditions are more encouraging. Sharp contrasts continue in different trades and industries, but there are more points of gain than formerly and clear evidence that the price readjustments are working toward a revival of demand. The recent favorable turn in textile branches has been extended, with mills in New England and elsewhere expanding operations as orders begin to flow more freely from distributers, and the leather and footwear markets are experiencing a gradual and moderate recovery. Similar indications are developing in other quarters, and strengthening of prices is noted in certain instances, though a comprehensive list of wholesale quotations again discloses an excess of recessions.

"Where the price yielding has apparently not yet ended, as in iron and steel, the waiting attitude of buyers persists, and this serves to emphasize the irregularity of the present situation. The main trend of late, however, has been in the direction of improvement, and the enlarging attendance of merchants in many of the leading centres, and their increasing disposition to purchase, is a phase which gives rise to hopeful expectations."

Bradstreet's says:

"Improvement is still the keyword in the trade situation, but there is still a great deal of irregularity in the reports, different industries and sections of country sending in varying advices. For one thing, wholesale distributive trade seems to have held all the ground gained in recent weeks, whereas, on the other hand, retail trade is rather quieter, mild weather in parts of the West being charged with affecting sales of Winter apparel. Perhaps the most marked improvement is noted in advices as to gains in manufacture and industry, but these gains are not uniform. Nor are the reports from the country as a whole uniform. Best reports as to wholesale trade come from the big primary markets, next to these being the West generally and a few Pacific Coast markets, while the South, possibly owing to reaction in cotton prices, shows little ground gained."

TRADE AS WEST SEES IT.

Dry Goods Outlook Better — Provisions Market Waiting.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Marshall Field & Co. in their weekly review of the wholesale dry goods trade say:

"Current wholesale distribution of dry goods was less, in terms of dollars and cents, than during the corresponding period of 1920, but slightly larger in volume. This represents an unmistakably healthier conditions, and is supported by the fact that there were more customers in the market during the week than a year ago and yardage sales are showing a steady daily increase.

"That the merchants of the country at large are now regaining confidence in the general situation, and commencing to replenish their depleted stocks, is evidenced by the fact that orders for immediate delivery of Spring merchandise in many lines were actually larger in volume this last week than during the similar period of the previous record year 1920.

"We feel confident that the outlook for the future is brighter now than it has been for some months past."

The Armour & Co. Weekly Trade Review says export demand for provisions seems to be marking time, with resumption of activities largely dependent upon changes in the international political situation which would have a beneficial effect upon credits. Collections show no change.

SEES PANIC DANGER OVER.

Gov. Harding of Federal Reserve Says Readjustment Is Progressing.

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Jan. 21.—Even pessimists are now convinced that danger of "an old-fashioned panic" has passed, Governor W. P. G. Harding of the Federal Reserve Board declared here today, speaking to the Chamber of Commerce.

"I think," he said, "the developments of the last thirty days have convinced even those who are never so happy as when miserable that not only has all danger of a great financial crisis or money panic been passed, but that business generally is safely over the most critical and trying stage of the readjustment period. While many predictions were made that an old-fashioned panic was inevitable, I never once doubted the ability of the Federal Reserve system to prevent any such condition.

"The decline in prices was necessarily disastrous to those producers who had gone heavily into debt with the expectation that the level of prices which existed a year ago would be sustained or even advanced, and in many individual cases great losses will be suffered, but so far as the community as a whole is concerned there is no question of solvency."

VOTE $60,000,000 INCREASE.

Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Stockholders Approve Stock Issue.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Stockholders of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad have approved the proposal of the Directors to increase the capital stock by $60,000,000 and to create a new mortgage bond issue of $100,000,000, consisting of 6 per cent. refunding mortgage bonds, it was announced today.

It is proposed to issue the new stock and $80,000,000 in bonds as a bonus to stockholders, thereby capitalizing a large part of the surplus. The proposal is now before the Interstate Commerce Commission for decision. Another purpose of the bond issue is to reimburse the treasury for expenditures made on the property out of income.

CUT BY BRITISH STEEL MEN.

Northeast Coast Makers Fix Scales Below Production Cost.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The steel makers along the northeast coast today adopted a policy of drastic price cutting, the reductions ranging from £2 per ton for rails and ship plates to £4 for billets. The reductions are said to bring a majority of the selling prices below the actual cost of production.

The action followed that of the Scottish steel makers on Thursday in making a reduction of from 20 to 70 shillings per ton.

The drastic cutting is said to have been necessitated by increased foreign competition, which has virtually stopped demands for the dearer home-made articles.

Goodyear Tire Meeting Adjourned.

AKRON, Ohio, Jan. 21.—The meeting of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company stockholders set for today was adjourned until Jan. 28. Directors, it is said, hope to have refinancing plans completed by that time. Reports from New York City, where refinancing negotiations are under way, say good progress is being made.

GERMANY BUYING OUR COPPER DIRECT

AMOUNT STEADILY GROWS

From 10,000,000 to 20,000,000 Pounds a Month May Be Imported From America.

Substantial amounts of copper are going direct to Germany, according to information yesterday. Germany took some copper from this country last year, but most of it went through Rotterdam. The metal is said to be going direct into Germany now through Hamburg. It is paid for in cash, despite the disadvantage in the exchange situation. Credits are impossible of attainment at present. Copper men here, however, find encouragement in the outlook, and once an actual peace basis with Germany is declared it is believed the establishment of credits for the purchase of copper will be readily obtainable. It is understood that the machinery for obtaining such credits is ready to become operative as soon as peace is concluded.

It is asserted that there has been a steady increase in the amount of copper Germany has been taking. It was predicted by one prominent copper man that Germany might seek copper here at the rate of 10,000,000 to 20,000,000 pounds a month for a considerable time. This would not be as large as in the pre-war years, but Germany was then preparing for a world war, whereas here activities now must perforce be those of peace.

It is considered probable that any eventual extension of credit to Germany for buying copper would be similar to the agreement between the Copper Export Association and France. This is in the nature of a revolving fund, France receiving the copper, manufacturing it into goods and then paying for the copper. The French banks are sponsor for the payments.

The particular point of interest in any movement of copper to Germany lies in the past association of Germany with the copper market. Prior to the war buying of the metal by Germany caused a picking up in demand here, and it is believed that such may prove once more to be the case, even though Germany's position in the copper market is far from being what it was seven years ago.

CRUDE OIL PRICES CUT 25 TO 60 CENTS

Reduction of Runs Last Month Has Resulted in Congestion of Supplies.

As the result of the reduction of crude oil runs which became effective about the middle of last month there has been a conjection of supplies held by producers, and the necessity for some of these for cash has resulted in price reductions in some of the fields. Yesterday Pennsylvania crude oil was reduced 25 cents a barrel, from $5.75 to $5.50, the second reduction in a few weeks. Cabell crude oil has been reduced from $4.21 to $3.96, while Somerset light, Somerset, Ragland and McKinney have also been reduced 25 cents a barrel.

Some of the Mid-Continent field producers are reported to be offering crude oil at $3 a barrel, a reduction of 50 cents. In the trade it is the opinion that the cuts have come chiefly because some producers found that they had to sell to get cash, and could only find a market at the reduced rate, which would result in enough business to enable them to meet their requirements.

At the same time it is the feeling in some quarters that while the local refiners have not announced a cut in the price for gasoline, the reduction in Pennsylvania crude yesterday may hasten such action, or at least may be taken as an indication of the fact a cut is not far away. The following figures give a comparison of prices for some of the crude oils in 1920 and today, which are interesting:

	Present Price.	High, 1920.	Jan. 1, 1920.
Pennsylvania	$5.50	$6.10	$5.00
Cabell	3.96	4.46	3.42
Ragland	2.00	2.60	1.75
Lima	3.73	3.78	2.98
Illinois	3.77	3.77	3.02
Midcontinent	3.50	3.50	2.75
Gulf Coast	2.00	3.00	1.50
Canada	4.18	4.13	3.38

Heavy shipments of Mexican oil into the United States are considered as one of the factors contributing to lower prices.

HOLDS LILLEY WILL IS VOID.

Court Rules Against Coal Operator's Millions Accumulating for 99 Years.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 21.—The residuary provisions of the will of Thomas E. Lilley, coal operator, were held to be null and void in an opinion handed down in the Orphans' Court here today by Judge H. B. Hughes. Several million dollars are involved.

Lilley died Jan. 5, 1920, leaving an estate afterward appraised at $2,464,416.41. Under the will the residuary estate, more than 96 per cent. of the whole, was to be invested and allowed to accumulate for ninety-nine years, at the end of which period it was to be divided among the heirs of Thomas Elliott and Jacob Elliott, sons of Mr. Lilley's sister.

The court held that such provisions of the will were null and void and that Lilley's sister, Jane Elliott, and his nephews, Charles E. Lilley and Walter T. Lilley, are entitled to the realty and personalty of which the said residuary portion of the estate is composed.

COTTON LIST BREAKS IN BULL COLLAPSE

Prices Drop 70 to 85 Points, With March and May Under 15 Cents.

Further weakness at Liverpool, and what appeared to be the collapse of the bull pool which had been attempting a squeeze in the January option, sent cotton prices down again sharply yesterday. The break extended from 70 to about 85 points at the extreme, and the close was very near the low prices for the day. This break took the list down 150 to practically 200 points under the recent high, which was made a week ago Wednesday, and at the lows two of the active options, March and May, were under 15 cents.

Selling on a fairly large scale developed directly after the opening, and, aside from very occasional rallies, none of which accomplished much, the tendency was downward consistently. March suffered more than any other month, and scored the extreme break of the day of 86 points. The selling in this month was generally believed to come from the bulls in January, who, caught by the unexpectedly heavy arrivals of actual cotton for delivery against January contracts, were engaged in selling March as a hedge. Some of this also got into May, doubtless, and this contract got down 72 points at the extreme low.

There was nothing especially interesting in the trade situation here, and the ring was not inclined to pay any attention to trade conditions, being entirely taken up with what was going on in the market. Also, there was less attention to Liverpool, where the market was again heavy, as it has been all week, and even the Southern spot markets, which usually are carefully scanned, were generally ignored.

Arrivals here amounted to 4,203 bales, which makes the total for the week to date 33,466 bales, against 20,576 bales, unusually large, last week. Counting last Saturday's arrivals in as part of this week's receipts, the total for the last seven days is 45,087 bales.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

The local market for spot cotton was quiet, down 70 points to 16.65c for middling upland; sales nil. Southern spot markets were: Galveston, 14.00c, down .75; New Orleans, 14.75c, down .25; Savannah, 16.00c, unchanged; Augusta, 14.50c, down .50; Memphis, 14.50c, down .50; Houston, 13.50c, down .75; Little Rock, 14.50c, down .50.

OFFER TAX PROGRAM TO BUSINESS MEN

National Industrial Conference Board's Proposals Discussed at Astor Meeting.

SALES TAXES ARE FAVORED

Abolishment of Excess Profits Levy and Surtax Reductions Recommended.

The national tax program proposed by the Tax Committee of the National Industrial Conference Board was discussed at the Hotel Astor yesterday at two sessions of the Third National Industrial Tax Conference, attended by 125 representatives of leading national associations and business firms. The conference will today embody the views of a majority of the delegates in resolutions to be sent to Congress.

"The tax program of the National Industrial Conference Board," said Arthur Ballantine of Root, Clark, Buckner & Howland of this city, in the opening address, "embraces the abolition of the excess profits tax, which has been the source of great discrimination and complexity; reduction in the surtax rates or a lower rate on the portion of the income which is saved, and changes in the income tax law so that it will be more just and better administered.

"The revenue loss resulting from tax reductions involved in these changes it is proposed to make up by obtaining approximately 40 per cent. through the increase of the flat rate upon corporations and 20 per cent. from increase in minor taxes, such as stamp and license taxes, and the other 40 per cent. from increases in sales taxes and customs duties. The kind of sales taxes favored are those which are levied on special articles, not articles of prime necessity, and which are levied at one stage of production only, so that they do not operate in a discriminatory way as between different producers.

"Any excess of receipts over expenditures for current years is needed for reduction of the public debt. The gross debt amounts to upward of $24,000,000,000. Of this amount the floating debt, which has to be renewed from time to time, amounts to approximately $2,400,000,000. On Jan. 1, 1923, $800,000,000 of War Savings Certificates will have to be paid, and on May 20, 1923, there will be due Victory Notes now outstanding of approximately $4,250,000,000. A large refunding operation in 1923 will therefore be necessary. It seems essential, in order to keep the finances of the Government upon a sound basis, that the floating debt be materially reduced, if not entirely paid off, so as to lessen the amount of the new loan which will have to be placed."

William A. Brady protested against the committee's suggestion for increased taxes on motion pictures, which, he said, were already too heavily taxed.

Otto H. Kahn, of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., suggested the imposition of a small sales tax. He said that the rank and file of business favored it, though the theorists were opposed to it. In answer to the question whether such a tax should be added to existing excise taxes, Mr. Kahn said that those excise taxes which had been found not unduly burdensome should be retained.

$1 A DAY CAR CHARGE IS UPHELD BY ROADS

Directors of Railway Association Reject Plan to Suspend Rental on Foreign Lines.

SITUATION IS IMPROVING

All Carriers Requested to Keep Rolling Stock at Home When Possible.

Following a special meeting yesterday of the Board of Directors of the American Railway Association to consider suggestions made by some of the member roads that the $1 per day rule of the Car Service Division be reduced or suspended for a limited time, it was announced by J. E. Fairbanks, General Superintendent, that the suggestions had been rejected.

The following telegram was sent to all member roads:

"At a meeting today of the Board of Directors of the American Railway Association it was the unanimous opinion of the board that under all circumstances it is inadvisable at this time to either suspend or reduce the per diem rate."

The report of the General Committee of the association, which has been studying the situation, also was sent out. This read:

"The committee recommends that there be a concerted and uniform undertaking by all roads, under instructions from the executives, to observe car service rules."

One of the first essentials was the strict enforcement of car service Rule 1, except as to the use of home cars, when properly authorized by the roads directly affected or by the car service division, the rule reading:

"Home cars shall not be used for the movement of traffic beyond the limits of the home road when the use of other suitable cars under these rules is practicable.

"In cases of disturbance arising under car service rules the car service division will deal immediately as to disposition of the cars and all roads will be governed by its direction."

In issuing the statement Mr. Fairbanks said:

"During the period of Federal control the cars of the railroads were operated under an intensified pooling arrangement, the cars of any road being sent to other roads wherever in the judgment of the Federal Administration they were needed. As a result, when the roads were returned to the operating companies on March 1, 1920, a much less than normal number of cars were on home lines.

"Since the resumption of private ownership cars have been returned to home lines to such an extent that the number of home cars is approaching normal, thus enabling the roads better to handle the matter of repairs."

VALUATION AND OPERATING EFFICIENCY

GREAT INCREASE IN EXPORT TRADE

December Surplus of Exports Second Largest of Any Month on Record.

IMPORTS HEAVILY REDUCED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—America's foreign trade in 1920 was the largest in the country's history, totaling $13,507,000,000. Exports were valued at $8,228,000,000, against $7,920,000,000 in 1919, and imports were valued at $5,279,000,000, or $1,375,000,000 greater than the imports in 1919.

This left a trade balance for 1920 of approximately $3,000,000,000 in favor of the United States, as against a balance the year before of approximately $4,000,000,000.

In announcing the figures the Department of Commerce said exports were one-third greater than they were in 1918, the first full year previous to the World War, and imports were nearly three times those of 1913.

That the imports are showing a continued decline in January is illustrated by the Treasury Department records for customs receipts. For the first nineteen days of January, 1921, the customs receipts were $9,950,005.64, as compared with $17,799,584.09 for the corresponding period last year.

The statement of the country's foreign trade in December and for the whole year 1920, as published yesterday, contained many surprises. The business community had very generally expected a contraction in exports for the month, due to the confusion of the foreign exchanges; but December's exports increased $45,000,000 over November and $38,000,000 over December, 1919, when prices were much higher. The $720,000,000 reported for last month have been exceeded only in October, May and January of 1920 and in November and June of 1919.

Imports last month were $55,000,000 less than in November and $114,000,000 less than in December of 1919; they were less than half the value of the imports of last July or June and were the smallest of any month since February, 1919.

The December trade in merchandise compares as follows with the preceding month and with the same month last year:

Imports	266,000,000	321,000,000	380,710,323
Excess exports	$454,000,000	$354,000,000	$301,005,676

	Exports.	Imports.	Exc. Expts.
Dec.	$720,000,000	$266,000,000	$454,000,000
Nov.	675,000,000	321,000,000	354,000,000

Exports for the full year 1920 were $306,000,000 above 1919, but imports increased $1,374,000,000, so that the year's excess of exports was $1,068,000,000 less than in 1919. Although last year's exports were the largest of any year on record, the surplus of exports was the smallest since 1915.

Export and import trade for the twelve months of 1920, compared with the same months in a series of years (000 omitted):

	Exports.	Imports.	Ex. Expts.
1920	$8,228,000	$5,279,000	$2,949,000

SALE TO PORTUGAL SURPRISE IN WHEAT

Unloading by Chicago Longs and Fear of Argentina Send All Grains Near Bottom.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—While it has been reported recently that so far no effort has been made to utilize the War Finance Bureau, unless there is a marked change in conditions it would not be surprising to hear of liberal export sales of grain being made to parts of Central Europe with which this country is not at war. The wheat trade was taken by surprise today by reports that Portugal had asked for offers of 10,000 tons or 370,000 bushels of wheat and an equal quantity of rice for immediate shipment, with intimations that 250,000 tons of wheat and a like quantity of rice would be required.

While this report was denied early, it was fully confirmed later by a leading New York bank. It was officially estimated some time ago that import requirements of wheat by Portugal were around 8,250,000 bushels, and that a syndicate had been formed to finance it. No business with Portugal is expected for three or four days, if there is any at all. The trade here has an impression that Argentina will get the bulk of the business, although the credit situation may force the purchase of the grain in this country.

There was further evidence that the leading long was unloading wheat as fast as the market would take it, and while prices were 2@2½ cents higher at the extreme top, the market broke badly later, with general liquidation in evidence, many disgusted bulls selling out on the way down. At the inside prices were off 7½@8 cents from the high, with the close within ½@1 cent of the bottom, with net losses of 4@5½ cents, May leading.

Hedges were removed here against export sales of 1,150,000 bushels of wheat to Germany, Italy and Belgium, but failed to affect the market materially. Corn and oats sold at a new low on the crop and finished within a fraction of the bottom, with net losses of 1⅛ cents on both grains.

Sentiment after the close was radically bearish on wheat, but less so on coarse grains. The fears of increased competition with Argentine are the main factor, and there is a lack of confidence on the buying side. At the same time, it was generally believed that the market was heavily oversold, and, unless the leading long continues to liquidate, a sharp upturn would not be surprising. No material rally is looked for in coarse grains. At the inside figures, wheat showed 20¼ cents and corn 8⅜ cents under the high of last week.

Marketing of wheat remains heavy. Receipts aggregated 1,122,000 bushels for the day, compared with 1,148,000 a week ago and 800,000 last year. Shipments were 913,000 bushels; week ago, 747,000; year ago, 761,000.

Arrivals of corn of 1,823,000 bushels compared with 1,219,000 last week and 724,000 last year. Shipments were 846,000 bushels; week ago, 752,000; year ago, 554,000.

475,000 COMPANIES TO FILE TAX RETURNS

Internal Revenue Bureau Prepares to Receive Reports From Corporations.

FOR CALENDAR YEAR 1920

Excess Profits Tax Explained—Severe Penalties Provided for Delinquency.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue is preparing to receive before March 15 about 475,000 corporation returns covering the calendar year 1920.

"Certain corporations, such as labor, agricultural and horticultural organizations, corporations organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific or educational purposes, business and civic leagues, farmers' and fruitgrowers' mutual associations, may, by establishing their exemption, be relieved of the duty of filing returns and paying the tax," says a statement from the bureau. "No corporation is exempt from filing a return until its status has been determined by the Collector and the corporation so informed.

"In place of the surtax imposed upon individuals the law imposes upon corporations, in addition to the normal tax, an excess profits tax. The computation of the excess profits tax begins with the determination of the corporation's invested capital. Invested capital, as defined by law, is the amount of cash and tangible property paid into the corporation, together with the paid-in or earned surplus and undivided profits at the beginning of the taxable year.

"The value of intangible property paid in for stock or shares, in an amount as limited by Section 326 of the Revenue act of 1918, may also be included in invested capital. The term 'intangible property' means patents, copyrights, secret processes and formulae, good will, trade marks, trade brands, franchises and other like property. Borrowed capital cannot be included in invested capital. Adjustment must me made for inadmissible assets, which are defined as stocks, bonds and other obligations (other than obligations of the United States), the dividends or interest from which is not included in computing net income.

"The Bureau of Internal Revenue carefully examines and audits returns of corporations, and whenever necessary makes a correction in the amount of tax due under the law. Severe penalties may be imposed upon corporations for delinquency in filing returns, fraud or negligence in the understatement of any taxes, and it is important that the corporation in filing its return follows closely the instructions printed on the return form."

COMMODITY PRICES SAG.

Weakness Continues in Prices, Most Staples Showing Declines, With Few Unchanged.

With the single exception of a nominal advance in one of the staples in the subjoined list, and with a few unchanged over the previous day, yesterday's wholesale markets were weak, price declines affecting the majority of articles. In the grains, wheat dropped 6 cents, corn 1⅜ cents and oats 1 cent per bushel, with flour unchanged. In the grocery and dairy products, coffee, sugar and butter were unchanged, but eggs continued weak at a loss of 4 cents per dozen. In the provisions, lard only advanced 15 cents per 100 pounds, with others unchanged. In the metals, tin dropped $1.50 a ton, others unchanged. CAREER BEARINGS IN THE REALTY FIELD

PROPERTY HELD AT $550,000

Druggists Buy West Broadway Lofts Held at $65,000—Reported Sale of Astor Property on the Bowery.

A half-million-dollar Fifth Avenue sale was closed yesterday and another transaction in the fifties that will run well into seven figures is reported pending.

Yesterday's deal involved 570 Fifth Avenue, a seven-story fireproof building, occupying a lot 21 by 100 feet, located on the west side of the avenue, between Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh Streets, which was sold to an investing client of Harris Vought & Co.

It was held at $550,000 by Mrs. Morgan R. Howe, the seller, who acquired the property in 1916.

The building, which was erected from plans by McKim, Mead & White, adjoins the present home of J. M. Gidding & Co., who play to move further north and occupy the new structure being erected for them by Farquahson & Wheelock at 724 and 726 Fifth Avenue, south of Fifty-seventh Street.

Samuel H. Stone has arranged a mortgage for the new owner.

Druggists Buy on West Broadway.

The two five-story loft buildings at 502-504 West Broadway, plot 50 by 75 feet, have been purchased by Horatio and Frank Avignone, druggists, from L. S. Seligman. This firm has been a tenant at 502 West Broadway for twenty years.

Pepe & Brothers were the brokers. They sold the property about a year ago for the Markham Realty Corporation. Clarence W. Eckardt, President. It was held at $65,000.

Business Properties Sold.

The three-story business building at 2,254 Seventh Avenue, between 134th and 135th Streets, has been purchased by the tenants, the Empire Credit Company. Anselm Frankenthaler was the broker.

A. A. Hageman sold to the Kinson Realty Company the four-story building with store at 47 West Thirty-seventh Street, 20 by 98.9.

Vincent Astor is reported to have sold the four-story building, with store, at 189 Bowery, on a lot 25.4 by 125.6. The property, which had been in the possession of the selling family for a great many years, is located 75.4 feet north of the northeast corner of Delancey Street.

Buying in the Suburbs.

TROUSERS TO BE LONGER.

Designers of Men's Wear Propose Offset to Short Skirts.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Longer trousers for men will offset short skirts for women next Spring, according to the edict of the Merchant Tailors Designers Association today. Coats also will be longer and of the "athletic or wedge-shape type," and trousers will be "moderately belled," says the announcement of L. O. Tyler, Columbus, Ohio, fashion Chairman of the association.

"Centre vents, known to the layman as coat tails, will be eliminated to a great extent," Mr. Tyler said. "From the shoulders to the coat bottom, the lines will be as straight as possible, as will the front of the coat.

"Vests will be long and trousers long and cuffless, moderately belled at the bottom, but with straight lines typical of the coats.

"Plain colors will be most numerous, as textile mills are not manufacturing novelties. Browns have lost favor, and blues, grays and checks will be most fashionable for Spring and Summer wear."

VALUED BRINDELL'S 'HELP' AT $50,000

Hugh Robertson, Builder, Willing to Pay for "Strike Insurance" and Advice.

GAVE $20,000 ON AUTO RIDE

When Brindell Suggested Plan Witness Said "It Would Be a Fine Thing."

Martin W. Littleton, counsel for Robert P. Brindell, on trial in the Supreme Court on a charge of extorting $5,000 in return for calling off a strike, attempted to show yesterday that payments made to Brindell were for valuable services rendered by the head of the Building Trades Council to his accusers.

Hugh Robertson of the construction firm of Todd, Irons & Robertson, testified that he promised to pay Brindell $50,000 for "strike insurance," because the labor leader was of great help to him. He also said he wanted Brindell's aid in an interpretation of the rules of the unions in the Council.

Mr. Untermyer cross-examined, and Robertson admitted that his firm had been in business for eighteen years and had done business with unions in that time. This followed the statement by the witness that he required Brindell's assistance in interpreting the union rules.

Robertson admitted that he had never heard of an insurance company safeguarding clients against strikes, and said that Brindell told him it would be a fine thing if he, Robertson, could get strike insurance "just as you get liability insurance for accidents." The witness agreed that "it would be a fine thing" and when pressed to say why he wanted it he replied: "I wanted his help to avoid strikes. I knew he was the strong man in the building trades."

Agreed to Pay $50,000.

On March 22, 1920, he met Brindell by appointment on the first floor of the Guaranty Trust Company, Fifth Avenue and Forty-fourth Street, and agreed to pay $50,000 for "strike insurance." Robertson was having some trouble with bricklayers at the time.

"Did he say what sort of help he could give? That he could fix this thing for you?" asked Mr. Untermyer over Mr. Littleton's objection. A copy of the testimony he gave before the Lockwood committee was placed in Robertson's hands and he was asked whether he said on the previous occasion that Brindell told him, "I can fix this thing."

Robertson, under the insistent questioning of Mr. Untermyer, finally admitted that he gave the testimony in question.

The witness's memory was hazy on other points and sometimes it was not refreshed when he was permitted to reread the testimony he gave before the Lockwood committee.

Robertson said he explained to Brindell that his firm had a $35,000,000 contract to build docks for the Cunard Line and it was apropos of this work that Brindell said: "It would be a fine thing if you could get strike insurance."

He could not say whether he had made the suggestion that caused Brindell to use the words "strike insurance" or whether the suggestion was wholly Brindell's. He said that when the trouble occurred on the Guaranty Trust Building he met Brindell and said he wanted "to have this matter of strike insurance straightened out." He asked how much it would cost and Brindell said $50,000 would be required.

"I asked him how he wanted the payments," the witness testified. "He said he wanted $20,000 right away and I could pay the rest to suit my convenience."

Gave Brindell $20,000 in Auto.

Subsequently, Robertson continued, he invited Brindell to luncheon at the Hotel Commodore and gave him $20,000 in an automobile when they left the hotel. This was the first of a series of payments and examination on the others was put off because of the close of the day's session.

Mr. Littleton subjected Albert A. Volk, a house wrecker, to a vigorous cross-examination of four and a half hours, beginning at 10 A. M. and ending in the middle of the afternoon, but was not able to shake Volk's story concerning his relations with Brindell and the reasons for paying the labor leader $7,000. Volk emerged from the ordeal suave and smiling.

"Did Brindell propose to enter into a joint arrangement with you, that he was to get the work with his influence and your ability to do it?" asked Mr. Littleton concerning a contract Volk received from the Fred T. Ley Co. to wreck a building at Forty-second Street and Madison Avenue. "No, sir."

"Did you tell him that?" "No."

"Did you discuss it?" "Not at that time."

"Was there anything said about the formation of a company or an arrangement?" "No."

On re-direct examination Volk said that five or six times Brindell tried to make a definite arrangement to enter into his business and to share its profits. He said he had to agree to go fifty-fifty" with Brindell on the Hotel Manhattan and Hotel Knickerbocker jobs, but that he did not get the Manhattan contract.

Questioned concerning a drive he took with Brindell and the latter's brother Matthew, in the defendant's car, Volk said that Matthew Brindell suggested to him on that occasion, "Why don't you form a corporation and take me in?"

"I gave him an evasive answer," said Volk.

Justice McAvoy took counsel by surprise when he announced that the trial would go on today. The jurors suggested an adjournment until Monday to permit them to catch up with their business and the court consented.

RETURN BLANKET INDICTMENT.

Extraordinary Grand Jury Reported to Have Accused 60 Plumbers.

The Extraordinary Grand Jury, of which William I. Spiegelberg is foreman, handed up a blanket indictment yesterday to Justice McAvoy, in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court. The indictment is said to charge conspiracy against sixty plumbers in violation of the Donnelly act.

The names of the indicted men were not revealed, and will not come out until they are arraigned on Monday at 11 A. M. before Justice McAvoy. The men are said to be Bronx plumbers, some of whom were members of the group in Manhattan operating under a "code of practice" designed by John T. Hettrick.

SAYS SHIMMY AND JAZZ SET INDIAN WILD AGAIN

Secretary of Missions Gets Philadelphians to Pass Resolution Asking Ban on Such Dances.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—Modern jazz music and dancing are making the Indians wild again, the roll of the snare-drum and the wail of the saxaphone, combined with the "shimmy," stir atavistic memories of the tom-tom and the shriek of the victim at the stake, asserted Dr. Henry Beets of Grand Rapids, Mich., Secretary of Missions of the Christian Reformed Church, in an address here today before the session of the Friends of the Indian.

A resolution, introduced by Dr. Beets, which would forbid Indian youths and girls from dancing the modern steps, was adopted and will be sent to the Indian Bureau of the Department of the Interior at Washington.

A system of practical education for Indians on Government reservations was advocated by Dr. E. A. Bates of Cornell University. "There is urgent need of a system of industrial education among the Indians," said Dr. Bates. "The Indian Bureau's education program as carried out is a joke."

TO TEST BAN ON HOME BREW

Chicago Attorney Denies Right to Both Tax and Fine Makers.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—A suit to test the constitutionality of the recent construction of the Volstead act prohibiting manufacture of home brew was on file today in Federal Court, a petition by David D. Stansbury, an attorney, asserting that the Government cannot collect both a revenue tax on home made liquors and assess a fine for violation of a law forbidding theft manufacture.

More than six hundred Chicago saloon keepers have been assessed both the fine and the tax, according to Mr. Stansbury, on charges of selling beer containing more than the legal percentage of alcohol.

The landlord of any tenant convicted of making home brew will be fined $1,000, District Attorney Clyne announced today. The fine, Mr. Clyne explained, should really be placed against the amateur brewer, but since many of them are unable to pay and have not sufficient property to attach, the fine will be levied against the landlord.

"The saloon act holds an owner guilty of law violations on his premises," Mr. Clyne said. "If the tenant can't pay, the landlord must."

LIQUOR DEALER TO JAIL.

Cincinnati Man, After Two-Day Trial, Changes His Plea to Guilty.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Jan. 21.—After the Government had spent two days in presenting testimony against him in the United States District Court here Henry Friedman, liquor dealer of Pittsburgh, indicted on a charge of conspiring to violate the prohibition law, suddenly made up his mind during the trial today to plead guilty. Judge John W. Peck sentenced him to serve six months in jail and imposed a fine of $3,000.

Friedman was arrested for illegally transporting 1,000 cases of whisky from a distillery at Frankfort, Ky., to Cleveland, Ohio. John E. Zerby, Summit Hill, Pa., who was indicted with Friedman, is serving a five months' jail sentence upon his plea of guilty several days ago.

TO EXPEDITE CUT IN ARMY.

Senate Committee Decides to Ask Adoption Today of House Resolution

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—To expedite enactment of the legislation to cut the regular army to 175,000 men, the Senate Military Committee decided today to seek final action tomorrow by having the Senate adopt the House resolution and abandon its own measure.

Both bodies having passed recently separate, but similar resolutions, each directing the Secretary of War to stop army enlistments until the maximum of 175,000 is reached, the Senate committee determined to solve the parliamentary puzzle by abandoning the Senate measure in favor of the House measure.

Inaction, it was said, was costing the Government $1,000,000 daily, and it was hoped to transmit the final resolution to the President tomorrow.

NAVAL COURT BEGINS REPORT ON BALLOON

Findings Will Not Be Made Public Until Daniels Has Approved Them.

LAST DAY OF TESTIMONY

Lieut. Hinton Said Farrell Appeared to Be Excited on Entering Room at Mattice.

The naval court of inquiry, convened to investigate the flight and loss of the free balloon A-5308, yesterday finished its hearing of witnesses at the Rockaway Air Station and began to formulate its report to the Navy Department.

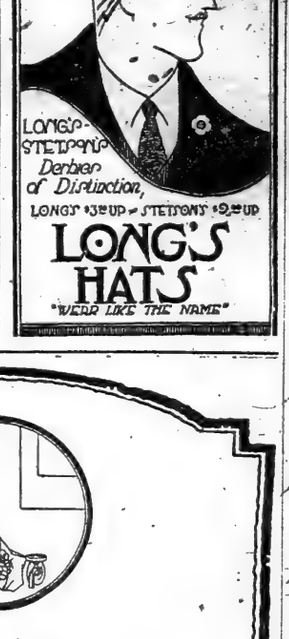
The report will not be made known until it has been approved by the Judge Advocate General and by the Secretary of the Navy. The officers of the court have the power to recommend court-martial of any of the three officers who were in the craft, if, in their opinion, the evidence disclosed neglect or misconduct.

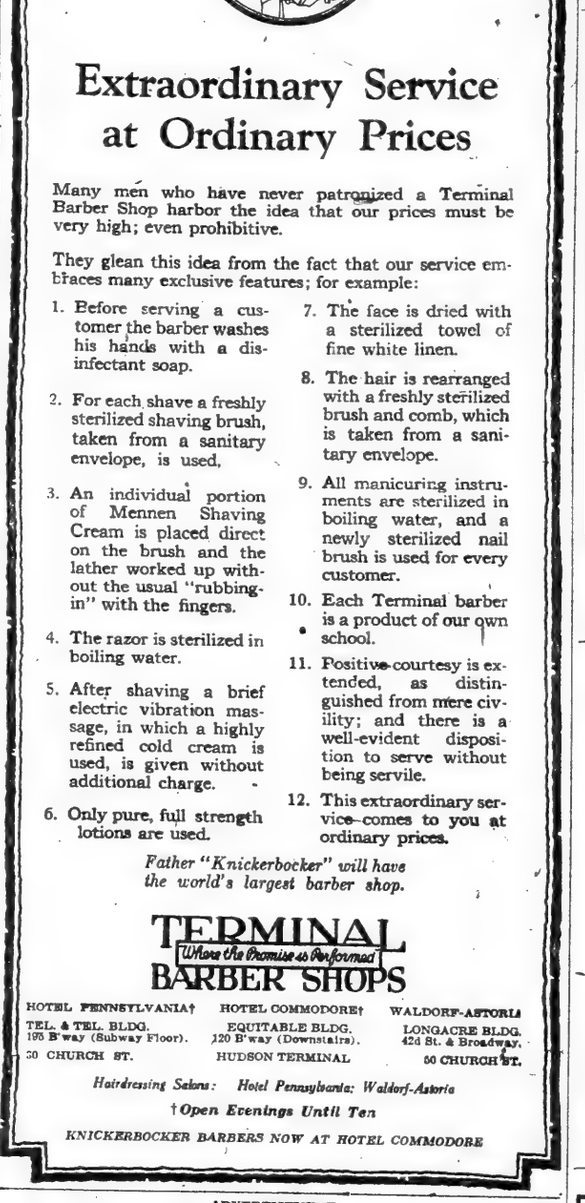
With the knowledge that the court of inquiry might recommend further proceedings in the case of the row between Lieutenants Stephen A. Farrell and Walter Hinton at Mattice over the contents of the Hinton letters, counsel for Farrell yesterday cross-examined Hinton with the expressed purpose of bringing out the fact that Farrell was in a rage before Hinton entered the room where the fist fight occurred.

"Was Farrell excited when you entered the room?" asked David Senft, counsel for Farrell.

Hinton replied that Farrell did seem to be greatly excited and overwrought. Hinton said that he believed Farrell was upset by the trip. Farrell's counsel also read a telegram from an arctic explorer who offered to appear before the court and explain the effect upon a man's nerves of the strain of being lost in the woods for four days and then of making a long trip over the northern trails.

The report of the court of inquiry, with any possible recommendations, probably will be forwarded to the Navy Department early next week. Its direct testimony contains no reference to the letters of Hinton to his wife, and no direct statement that Farrell struck Hinton during their row at Mattice. No witness was present to tell of this incident, or of the report that Farrell offered to commit suicide so that his comrades might have food.





Extraordinary Service at Ordinary Prices

Many men who have never patronized a Terminal Barber Shop harbor the idea that our prices must be very high; even prohibitive.

They glean this idea from the fact that our service embraces many exclusive features; for example:

1. Before serving a customer the barber washes his hands with a disinfectant soap.
2. For each shave a freshly sterilized shaving brush, taken from a sanitary envelope, is used.
3. An individual portion of Mennen Shaving Cream is placed direct on the brush and the lather worked up without the usual "rubbing-in" with the fingers.
4. The razor is sterilized in boiling water.
5. After shaving a brief electric vibration massage, in which a highly refined cold cream is used, is given without additional charge.
6. Only pure, full strength lotions are used.
7. The face is dried with a sterilized towel of fine white linen.
8. The hair is rearranged with a freshly sterilized brush and comb, which is taken from a sanitary envelope.
9. All manicuring instruments are sterilized in boiling water, and a newly sterilized nail brush is used for every customer.
10. Each Terminal barber is a product of our own school.
11. Positive courtesy is extended, as distinguished from mere civility; and there is a well-evident disposition to serve without being servile.
12. This extraordinary service comes to you at ordinary prices.

Father "Knickerbocker" will have the world's largest barber shop.

FARMERS DONATE 15,000,000 BUSHELS OF CORN TO HOOVER

1,250,000 JOIN IN GIFT

$7,500,000 Will Be Needed to Ship Cereal to Europe, China and the Near East.

ORGANIZATION WORK BEGUN

"Let Us Market Our Surplus in Relief and Take Pay in Good-Will," Slogan of the Givers.

Herbert C. Hoover announced yesterday that an offer of 15,000,000 bushels of corn by mid-West farmers to alleviate suffering abroad had been accepted and that the European Relief Committee would begin preparations necessary for collecting, shipping and distributing this corn. It must be milled, but the millers have not been approached on the subject.

The farmers' offer to "market our surplus corn in relief and take our pay in good-will" was accepted after a number of conferences between Mr. Hoover and other relief officials, and J. R. Howard, President of the American Farm Bureau, representing 1,250,000 farmers. The growers pledge delivery of their corn at the nearest railroad points, the work and cost of transportation to be handled by the Hoover organization, the American Committee for China Famine Fund and the Near East Relief Committee.

"I can make no statement as to time or methods, for we will first have to set up a complicated machinery for handling the corn," said Mr. Hoover. "To take corn from the farmers, handle it, have it milled and then transported overseas is no small task. We have not as yet asked the millers' help, nor have we seen the elevator men. There are many details that we will have to work out and this will be the task just ahead of us.

"Money for the transportation of the grain offered us will be raised, I am confident. The money we have is not available for that purpose, for we must use it for the relief of the thousands of children in Europe.

Funds Needed to Ship Corn.

"It is estimated that it will cost 50 cents to move a bushel of corn from an Iowa farm to Europe, and about the same amount to transport it to China. So we will have to raise $7,500,000 for transportation alone. There are other elements that go into the costs of movement and handling that have to be considered and worked out. The whole thing will require such a study of details that we are not ready at this time to make a statement. It is for that reason I cannot answer questions as to when the movement will begin."

Mr. Hoover said that probably not more than 2,000,000 bushels will be required for children in Europe. Over there, he said, the need was for condensed milk, fats, cocoa and other articles of food. Corn will supplement this diet.

Mr. Howard yesterday sent a telegram to the Farm Bureau Federation office in Chicago announcing that the relief organizations had accepted the farmers' offer. The committees, he said, had promised to use all the corn for which it could raise transportation money and undoubtedly could raise money to transport every bushel offered.

Mr. Howard came to New York several days ago, bringing with him the offer of the farmers. The farmers' slogan in the movement he announced as "Let us market our surplus in relief and take our pay in good-will.

Feeding by Rotation.

The need of food for children is illustrated by a report brought back from Austria by a former American Army officer, one of four Americans engaged in child relief work there. He said that, there was so many to feed, the Relief Committee had adopted a system of picking out the least nourished and feeding them until a measure of their strength had been restored, then letting them go back to "home feeding," taking others to fill their places. By this system of rotation, he said, the effects were multiplied and a greater number benefited.

Ray D. Henkle, General Secretary of the American Committee for the China Famine Fund, according to a report from Chicago, has written to the Farmers' Federation as follows:

"We are counting on at least a cargo of 6,000 tons ready for shipment from Tacoma the latter part of February or the first week in March, so that it reaches China for distribution on the earliest possible day in April."

It is probable that within the next few days there will be a meeting here of relief committee leaders to organize. The first thing necessary will be the upbuilding of a special fund that will enable the movement of the grain from the farms to the mills and for its transportation overseas.

When such an appeal will be made Mr. Hoover could not say, and he was not prepared to answer whether the millers and the elevator men would be asked to give their services. He said that he did not know whether it would be necessary to charter special steamships to carry the cargoes.

The shipment of corn to Europe, where the need is so great, may be the means of popularizing it as an article of food. Some years ago, before the war, the corn growers sought this popularity for their product. Corn was shipped to Europe and publicity sent out to educate the people in its use. They were in-

Jail for Men Who Won't Tell Where They Got Their Liquor

Because men brought before him accused of drunkenness usually refuse to tell where they got their liquor, Magistrate James J. Conway in Long Island City yesterday announced that in future he would send to jail all persons guilty of being drunk.

His policy was put into effect for the first time in the case of Frank McPhail, 28 years old, of 459 West 155th Street, Manhattan, accused of being drunk and troublesome at the Queensboro Bridge Plaza. McPhail told the Court that he was not well enough acquainted with Long Island City to describe the place where he bought whisky.

"Five days in jail for you," said Magistrate Conway, "and hereafter jail sentences will be imposed on all found guilty of similar violations of the law."

SMITH WOULD EASE GOV. MILLER'S WOES

Former Executive Tells Bar How He Is Submerged in Unimportant Details.

SPEAKS FOR PARDON BOARD

Association Moves to Remedy Laws That Keep the Governor Busy Signing His Name.

Amendment of the law and State Constitution to relieve the Governor from the duty of granting pardons and commutations together with a mass of petty tasks which have been accumulating for the last century was suggested by former Governor Alfred E. Smith at the dinner of the New York State Bar Association at the Hotel Astor last night. Mr. Smith said he made the suggestion without having consulted Governor Nathan L. Miller, his successor, who presided at the dinner as the retiring President of the association. Mr. Smith said the changes would give more time for consideration of the larger policies of government.

Upon motion of Charles Thaddeus Terry, William D. Guthrie, the incoming President, was directed to appoint a committee to consider the suggestion and try to find a remedy. Governor Miller said he was glad the matter had been brought up, as much of his time during his brief occupancy of the office had been passed in such tasks as Mr. Smith described.

Governor Miller introduced ex-Governor Smith in a manner that pleased the diners greatly. "The next speaker and I recently had a discussion of a somewhat controversial character, without any loss of respect on the part of either for the other," said Governor Miller. "In fact, the result was such as to considerably increase my respect for my opponent. I found him not only a square fighter, but a good loser."

Mr. Smith said he never could understand why the Governor had to be the janitor of the Capitol building, which he said was what Chairman of the Board of Trustees of Public Buildings amounted to. Mr. Smith said that no purchase of more than $1,000 could be made without the Governor calling this board together. He cited one instance where the Fire Marshal ordered four old desks removed from the Capitol basement and the Superintendent of the building had to get the Governor to call the board together to give their consent.

The Governor, Mr. Smith said, had to appoint the 65,000 notaries public and all the railroad policemen, had to sign the papers of all persons released from prison at the expiration of the minimum sentence and had to decide when to call out the State police.

"It is not fair to the Governor or to the State to put this burden on any man," said the Governor, referring to the pardoning power. "It belongs to some kind of tribunal which has nothing else to think about.

The appeal in death sentences is an ordeal that should not be imposed on any civilized human being. There were nineteen men executed while I was Governor, and I came near going with them every time. It isn't fair."

Ex-Governor Smith also suggested that some period be fixed in the session

STATE WILL TAKE UP WHITMAN INQUIRY, STEINBERG SAYS

Investigation of Every City, County and Borough Office Is Proposed.

WANTS IT OPEN TO PUBLIC

Assemblyman Asserts Evidence of Corruption Already Obtained Will Be Starting Point.

"SURFACE ONLY SCRAPED"

Swann's Office to Be Included—Ex-Governor May Be Counsel—More Indictments Are Expected.

The evidence of corruption disclosed by the Whitman investigation so far is sure to be made the starting point of a sweeping legislative investigation of affairs in city departments and in the District Attorney's office, according to Assemblyman Joseph Steinberg, one of the authors of the statement which resulted in the Whitman investigation.

Developments yesterday indicated that the State was likely to take over the assets of the Whitman investigation and make a big public inquiry of it, with plenty of legal and detective assistance, and probably with ex-Governor Whitman as chief counsel. Mr. Whitman has received assurances of effective State aid if his investigation in its present form is not properly supported by District Attorney Swann or by the city.

Assemblyman Steinberg yesterday praised the results accomplished by Mr. Whitman, but said that the weakness of his position was that, being a Swann appointee, he could not with the best grace initiate any drastic inquiry into Mr. Swann's own office. In the public statement which he issued with Senator Theodore Douglas Robinson three weeks ago, charging widespread corruption and the breakdown of some city departments, Assemblyman Steinberg made Mr. Swann one of the principal targets for his attack, alleging that graft had reached large proportions because of the negligent conduct of the District Attorney's office.

Now Favors Whitman Inquiry.

Assemblyman Steinberg, who two weeks ago characterized the Whitman investigation as "a smoke screen," modified that statement yesterday, and said he was now heartily in favor of continuing the Whitman investigation. He said that when he used the term "smoke screen" he had District Attorney Swann in mind, feeling that that official was indulging in eleventh-hour activities to put his own office in order to face investigation.

When asked if he would favor Mr. Whitman as counsel for the legislative committee, if one was appointed under the Robinson-Steinberg bill now in committee at Albany, Mr. Steinberg said:

"Mr. Whitman is undoubtedly an able investigator. I would not want to say whether I favor him or not. I don't want to add a new dispute to the disputes we have already on our hands."

While it is said that Mr. Whitman is not popular with Republican State leaders, his investigation, already marked by the indictment of two Police Captains, is sure to make him seriously considered for the position of counsel. Mr. Whitman is convinced that the Hylan administration is rich in material for the kind of probing in which he is experienced. Some Republican leaders, who were displeased when Mr. Whitman first accepted the appointment from District Attorney Swann, have been pleased with the prospect of such revelations as may destroy Mayor Hylan as a political possibility and may make the election of a Tammany Mayor impossible. While refusing to be quoted, the ex-Governor treats with scorn the rumors that he would like the nomination for Mayor.

"Mr. Whitman's investigation has only scraped the surface so far," Mr. Steinberg continued, "but it has a good start. I think it will accomplish a good deal and will not in any way interfere with a legislative committee.

"On the other hand, he holds his appointment from District Attorney Swann, and I and many others are extremely anxious to have Mr. Swann's

EX-PASTOR ADMITS MAIL ROBBERY SHARE

Planned to Secrete Money, Sell Garages and Move Away.

TEMPTATION TOO STRONG

Charges Partner With Being Actual Thief—Latter's Denial Supported by Officers.

Special to The New York Times.

MOUNT VERNON, Ill., Jan. 22.—The story of how he stepped from Free Methodist exhorter and sworn enemy of evil to mail bandit extraordinary, looter of $212,000 in United States registered funds and lone manipulator of the ill-gotten fortune, was unfolded step by step today by Guy Kyle.

Gaunt and haggard from more than a week of sleepless nights and the conscience of a religious fanatic gone hopelessly wrong, the old-time preacher came from his cell to make his first complete confession, acknowledge his complete guilt and throw himself on the mercy of the law.

While the cornered pastor unburdened his mind, his wife, for years a leader in the religious community, sat dry-eyed, rocking her four-months-old baby in his cradle. She vowed never to leave her husband, but urged the authorities to go to the bottom of the mail robbery.

"He has told me of his guilt," she said, "and I will not shield him in any way. I knew nothing of the money until he was arrested. If I had known, I would rather take the place of my washerwoman, rather than touch one cent of stolen goods. We will be waiting for him when he comes from the penitentiary and perhaps we can start all over again then."

Postal inspectors, under command of Ray Whitcock, made a final check on the recovered money. They found a cash total of $188,184.36. Several hundred dollars in cash spent by Kyle and the remainder of the loot in negotiable bonds, said to have been destroyed by him, alone remain unaccounted for. The inspectors listened to Kyle's complete confession, in which he accused Loren Williamson, his 28-year-old partner, of the actual theft and of planning for disposing of the money.

Williamson led to the discovery of the loot in the first place and has not been arrested. He will be the Government's chief witness. He declares that his partner's charges are ridiculous, that he can prove he was in bed at the time of the robbery and that he expected Kyle to accuse him.

"I am guilty of all they charge," said Kyle. "I can only say that the temptation to steal was too great when the opportunity came. I knew nothing about the money until 1 P. M. on the day it was stolen. Then my partner walked into the office carrying a gunnysack. He stepped behind a tire rack and opened the sack, disclosing a mail bag. This he ripped with his knife.

"'Here is the money,' he said. 'If no one saw me carrying the other sack to our automobile warehouse on the north side, the whole thing is a success.'

"I could think of nothing then but hiding the money away. I knew I was wrong to hide it, but I was afraid of my own hands. I took the packages of bills and stuffed them down into a box, then took the mail sack back and burned it in our heating stove in our living room.

"Next we planned to hide the money away safely. I put some of the bundles with hundred-dollar bills into an egg crate; more bundles into a big box, covering them with paper and piling jars of jellies on them. More bundles were put into another box under a layer of oats. Then we took some of the loot to our North Side warehouse and concealed it. I tore out the hair in an old mattress and stuffed it with bills.

"This was all possible because I was just moving my family to a house near our warehouse on the north side and could come and go, as I thought, unobserved. We planned to take all of the money up there gradually and bury the majority of it in my yard, leaving enough handy around the downtown office to slip into our bank account every week.

"After a year or two we planned to incorporate our automobile business, sell bonds and slip all of the money to our joint accounts, and then sell out. I was going to take my family to California then and live easy the rest of my life. With the money once thoroughly concealed I thought that I could keep easing a little at a time into the business, buying larger stocks and so on without any one once suspecting me.

"I have gone straight for twenty years, and no one would suspect me of this thing except after my partner led the inspectors to the hiding places and laying all the blame on me. I am taking the blame. I will not even employ a lawyer. But I hope that my family will be taken care of in some way while I pay the penalty for my act.

"I quit the ministry because it did not pay me enough to make ends meet," he said in answer to a question. "But I wish ten thousand times that I was back there and clean now. The fortune stolen was like dirt and ashes to me from the minute I first saw it. As a minister I preached the gospel of right living in this Central Illinois conference because I knew something of evil.

"In my youth I liked to gamble and

Forty Shots Fired by Invaders of Auction Shop—Victims Meet Attack With Chairs.

CLERK ATTACKS INTRUDERS

They Flee After Slaying One Employe and Wounding Proprietor Five Times.

YOUTHS ESCAPE IN AUTO

One on Running Board Waves Pistol as Car Speeds Away—Shots Unheard Outside.

Four boy robbers, armed with .45-calibre revolvers, burst into an East Forty-second Street auction room last night, and, in a frenzy that might have been due to drugs, fired forty shots, killing one man and sending another to a hospital, probably dying, with five bullets in his body.

Of the seven men who faced the intruders and fought them with chairs and vases seized from the auctioneer's stock, two others escaped being killed only by dropping to the floor and feigning death. Leaving their victims stretched upon the floor, the robbers escaped in a taxicab, waiting outside for them.

Shortly after 6 o'clock, in the small room at the rear of his auction room at 237 East Forty-second Street Henry Young, an old-time auctioneer, and a few friends were playing penny-ante. There had been little business during the day, but on Friday the small shop had been thronged, for the entire contents of a dry goods store—Katz's, in Third Avenue, near East Fifty-first Street—had been sold.

Doorbell Interrupts Game.

Playing the game with Young and felicitating in the good stroke of the day before were an old friend, Emanuel Shields, 54 years old, of 78 Audubon Avenue, and Peter and James Henderson, brothers, of 1,668 Avenue A. Sitting in the game also were three of Young's assistants—William Abrahams of 324 East 125th Street, Harry Howard of 429 East Fifty-first Street and Theodore Jacobson of 535 West 163d Street.

Hands had just been dealt when the card players heard the bell attached to the front door, cut off from their view by a partition, jingle a notice of an arrival. It was after hours, and Abrahams was delegated to tell the newcomer to call another time. Abrahams went around the partition and out into the shop.

A youth, described as apparently not more than 17 years old, was approaching the back room, hurrying down the dimly lighted shop between the two counters heaped with bric-a-brac and the like.

"It's after hours, son," said Abrahams, catching a glimpse of three other capped individuals standing back of the first one.

"Hands up," came the response from the youth, as he presented a revolver.

Shoots Before Clerk Can Move.

Then, before Abrahams could move, the man fired a shot at him. The bullet grazed the clerk's jaw, and with the sound of the shot the three other holdup men darted into the room.

All of them had revolvers and they made a dash for the rear room. As the police later reconstructed their theories, the intruders apparently believed some of the proceeds of the sale of the day before were kept in the back room or else they acted in the belief that the stakes of the card game would be worth stealing.

While, however, the boy robbers consolidated for their attack, Young and his friends and employes came out.

"Get out of here," yelled Young, who was stocky and muscular.

A volley of shots was the answer. Abrahams, despite the furrow on his cheek, suddenly rushed at the foremost of the intruders. He pushed up the youth's pistol arm and landed a solid right on the fellow's chin. But before the clerk could do anything else one of the robbers hit him over the head with a blackjack and he fell.

Then the hold-up men began firing in uneven volleys. A bullet hit Shields in the shoulder, but failed to stop him as he seized a chair and, swinging it over his head, returned the attack. Young grabbed another chair and rushed at the men, while the Henderson brothers and Howard and Jacobson began hurling vases.

Auctioneer Shot Five Times.

Although the shots were reverberating into Forty-second Street and the crash of pottery was adding to the din, the battle went on without any interruption. Soon three bullets in quick succession hit Young. Then another, making five in all, and the auctioneer collapsed to the floor.

Fighting back and forth in the small shop, chairs against pistols, the clerks seemed winning, when Shields with a cry dropped to the floor. He had been hit in the heart, an ambulance surgeon said, and had died instantly.

At this juncture, taking advantage of the position of the bandits, the Henderson brothers got out the front door. Left temporarily alone, Howard and Jacobson, facing the revolvers of the four men, dropped and pretended they had been hit.

"Let's beat it," said the youngest of the robbers, who appeared to be the leader.

Just then the light flashed on a diamond shirt stud which Shields was wearing. The gem caught the eye of one of the bandits.

"Not yet," he said. "That guy's got a diamond. Let's get that first."

"Nothing doing," came the answer, and when the hold-up man appeared

It is further reported that 150 persons have been arrested in Moscow in connection with the recent bomb explosion directed against Lenin.

In Kovno (Lithuania) great numbers of Bolsheviki have been arrested as the result of the discovery of a plot to blow up official buildings and kill the members of the Government.

BORAH ATTACKS ROOT ON ARMS DELAY PLEA

Ex-Secretary Advises Holding No World Conference Till Harding Takes Office.

WANTS METHOD FIXED THEN

Senator Retorts That It Is Time to Start Movement Now to Lift World's Burden.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Ex-Secretary Elihu Root, writing to the House Naval Affairs Committee, indicated in a letter made public today his belief that the proposed conference on disarmament should be delayed until after the inauguration of Mr. Harding, and that the steps toward the conference should not be undertaken until Mr. Harding and his Secretary of State could consider the best method of procedure.

His plea aroused Senator Borah, whose resolution for a conference has been favorably acted upon by the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, and he issued a statement attacking the ex-Secretary's views as tending to delay which would put a quietus on any program for disarmament.

Many Republicans who read Mr. Root's letter interpreted it as showing that he had full knowledge of what Mr. Harding was planning on the question of disarmament and his substitute for the League of Nations. There was comment that the letter gave hope to those who wished to see Mr. Root appointed Secretary of State.

Senator Borah, with other irreconcilables, is opposed to Mr. Root's ideas upon the League of Nations and an international court, and is himself fighting the suggestion that Mr. Root be made premier in the Cabinet.

Mr. Root's Suggestions.

The ex-Secretary's letter, addressed to Chairman Butler of the House committe, was as follows:

Fifth Avenue, New York City.
Jan. 20, 1921.

Dear Mr. Butler:

I have your letter of Jan. 14, asking an opinion to aid your committee in considering an estimate for additional ships of war, requiring for their completion the sum of $107,177,000.

I do not feel like hazarding an opinion as to what reply other Governments might make to a suggestion from our Government for the appointment of representatives to meet for the purpose of discussing the question of total or partial disarmament.

I feel strongly that steps should be taken promptly after the new Administration is established to bring about a general agreement on that question. It is plainly impracticable to accomplish this before the change of Administration.

The precise method of procedure through which the attempt should be made, I think, ought to be determined after and not before Mr. Harding and his Secretary of State have had an opportunity to inform themselves and to reach conclusions as to the way which affords the best prospects of success. Action on your part, based upon any opinion which you can form now as to the best method of procedure, might prove to be just the wrong thing and might create obstacles to success instead of helping it along.

The subject is especially difficult because of the disturbed condition of Eastern Europe, and it is difficult because too many nations have special apprehensive of danger against which they wish to guard. The new Administration will soon learn what is the best way to deal with these difficulties. It may be that they cannot all be dealt with in the same way or by the same process.

I think this expresses my view as fully as I could do if I were to go to Washington and appear before your committee.

Very sincerely yours,
ELIHU ROOT.

Borah for Action Now.

In his retort Senator Borah said:

"Delay is one of the methods peculiarly adapated to killing any program of disarmament. In the preamble of the military clauses of the Versailles Treaty is what amounts to a pledge for disarmament upon the part of the allied and associated powers. Two years have passed, and instead of disarmament the most stupendous programs for arma-

MARTENS DEPORTED; EXPECTS TO RETURN

Small Throng of Sympathizers, All Wearing Red, See "Ambassador" Off.

CHEERS FAIL TO UPLIFT HIM

Says He Got Money Through London to Pay Bills Here—Wife and Children in Party.

Hundreds of sympathizers stood in the rain yesterday afternoon for three hours on the pier at the foot of West Fifty-fourth Street waiting for the Swedish-American liner Stockholm to sail with Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, unrecognized Soviet Ambassador, and his secretary, Gregory Weinstein, deported by order of the Government. Customs officials called the Stockholm "the second Soviet Ark."

Martens was accompanied by his wife and two children and forty-six men and women belonging to the former Soviet Bureau. There were seventy-five other radicals deported in the third class. These consisted of sixty-four men and eleven women and children, brought to the pier in a tender from Ellis Island. They were ticketed and counted, then marched up the gangway and locked below decks until the liner had sailed.

Although Martens was presented with a bunch of red carnations and his wife had a bouquet of American beauties handed to her when they came up the gangway carrying the two children, the deported representative of the Soviet Government did not seem happy.

"How did you manage to keep your correspondence with the Government in Moscow and get money sent through for your expenses?" he was asked.

Got Money Through London.

"That was simple. I wrote to an agent in London and he forwarded the letters to the Soviet in Moscow. The gold for our expenses came through in the same manner.

Even the farewell kisses of about 100 compatriots of both sexes failed to cheer Martens. When the 400 men and women lined up on the adjacent pier saluted him with three cheers and sang what was described as a revolutionary hymn, Martens showed little joy, but waved his hat in acknowledgment.

The party in the steerage hung their heads out of portholes at the same time, and even those who did not speak the Russian tongue understood their frantic references to America and the Statue of Liberty. The women who went to see the Soviet group depart wore either red carnations or strips of red ribbon pinned to their jackets. They did not wish their sentiments to be misunderstood. There was only one flag to be seen among them, but that was an American flag carried by a small boy.

The party in the cabin paid $241 each, the minimum cabin rate from New York to Libau. Hilmer G. Lundbeck, agent of the Swedish-American Line, said that he had arranged for a steamship to meet the Stockholm in Gothenburg, the Sodia-Svdrige, which would convey the party to Libau in forty hours, and at that port the Latvian Government would have a special train waiting to carry them to the Soviet frontier. From New York into Russia by that route would require not more than twelve days, he said. The seventy-five radicals in the third class will be sent in the same way to their native land.

All Picturesquely Dressed.

The men and women in the cabin group were picturesquely dressed in Russian costumes. Many of them wore the traditional high patent-leather boots. The women had their hair bobbed beneath Russian fur caps. Their friends on the pier cried farewell messages in Russian, German and Yiddish, in which "Kamerad" could be distinguished.

When Martens was asked if he was taking any contracts to Russia from American firms, he replied that the breaking up of the Soviet office and the order for his deportation had canceled all arrangements made here, and that any contracts would be tentative upon relations being resumed.

"I think that America has made a mistake," he said, "in declining to trade with Russia, and England speedily will take advantage of that fact to do business with the Soviet Government.

"In taking leave of the United States I wish to say a word of grateful appreciation for the personal kindness and courtesy which I have received from many Americans in all vocations

WILSON REPLY TO LEAGUE

Urges That All Russian Border States Be Considered With Armenia.

ARMED INVASION USELESS

Responsibility for Further War Would Be Placed Upon the Soviets.

ALL POWERS MUST JOIN

Ready to Send Morgenthau at Once on His Mission if This View Is Accepted.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Through the League of Nations President Wilson has proposed to the great powers that they enter into a "public and solemn engagement" to guarantee Russia from aggression, with the object of testing the good faith of the spokesmen of the Soviet Government in their professions that "they are afraid to demobilize because they fear new attacks," to quote the President.

This proposal of President Wilson was the outcome of a suggestion from Mr. Lloyd George, the British Prime Minister, that the President instruct the American High Commissioner at Constantinople to take up with the Allied High Commissioners there the matter of conditions in Armenia, which, according to the communication from Lloyd George, "is reported to be under the control of Soviet Russia."

In declining to adopt the suggestion the President discusses the situation along the borders of Soviet Russia and remedies which might be applied to bring a betterment of conditions. He expresses the opinion that it seems futile to attempt to bring peace to the Caucasus alone and takes the position that "the distressful situation in Armenia is but one detail of this vast Russian problem."

The President advocates a general and comprehensive treatment of the whole problem. Only by full and generous cooperation of the principal powers, he contends, can a hopeful approach to the pacification and independence of Armenia be found.

President Wilson's message to the League on this subject was sent on Jan. 18 and was made public by the State Department today.

The message is contained in a telegram from Norman H. Davis, Acting Secretary of State, addressed to Paul Hymans, President of the Assembly of the League, through whom Mr. Lloyd George's suggestion had been forwarded to President Wilson.

THE PRESIDENT'S NOTE.

Washington, Jan. 18, 1921.

His Excellency Paul Hymans, President of the Assembly of the League of Nations, Geneva, Switzerland.

Your telegram of Dec. 26, 1920, transmitting a message received by the Council from the British Government, concerning Armenia, stating that Armenia is reported to be under the control of Soviet Russia, and suggesting that the President instruct the American High Commissioner at Constantinople to take up the matter with the allied High Commissioners, has been received and read with interest by the President, who instructs me to reply as follows:

The President does not deem it practicable to instruct the American High Commissioner at Constantinople to act for him in this matter. As was stated in my telegram of Dec. 16, 1920, he has chosen the Hon. Henry Morgenthau, who has been prepared to act for him in such steps as may be taken. Before instructing him to proceed, however, the President has been awaiting the definite assurances and information from all the principal powers interested, as requested in his cable of Nov. 30, 1920, defining the conditions under which he would endeavor to mediate.

The message from the British Prime Minister transmitted by you on Dec. 26 would seem to indicate the impracticability or futility of the President's addressing himself, at least in the first instance, to the Armenians and Kemalists. The President is inclined to share this view and to feel that no solution can be had without first getting at the source of the trouble.

Pending receipt of information and assurances requested by the President in his telegram of Nov. 30, 1920, it is deemed wise to state the problem as the President views it, its causes and possible remedies. It would appear that the immediate cause of trouble in Armenia and Turkey has been the Treaty of Sèvres. Admittedly, this was a difficult question with which to contend, but the treaty was drafted by the allied powers, and the trouble has arisen over the failure of certain factions to accept this treaty and of the Allies to enforce it. This is a question over which the President has no control, and measures which he might take or recommend in this direction would be dependent upon the hearty co-operation and support of the allied powers.

The British Prime Minister calls attention to the report that Armenia is under the control of Moscow, from which it appears that another complication has developed. The dependence of Armenia on Soviet Russia is another situation over which the President has

Erie Adopts Five-Day Week to Keep Employes; Baltimore & Ohio Lay-offs Affect 7,000

"A further reduction in payrolls shall be made by working all office, yard, station and other forces five days a week, except where the safety of property is involved. This is done as being a more humane way of meeting the situation than to lay off any more employes, which all concerned should readily appreciate. Revenue is not coming in sufficient to carry the present load, and we must all contribute to the fund. This reduction is to be put into effect at once."

In normal times 48,000 are on the Erie payroll. At present there are less, due to the recent reduction in the working force.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 22.—George M. Shriver, senior Vice President of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, today gave out a statement explaining the laying off of more than 7,000 employes, in which he said:

"While following the five days' notice the suspension is for an indefinite period, it is the expectation that work will be resumed within a limited time. Work in the Baltimore & Ohio shops has been continuous now for a long time and it is felt that the total suspension for a few days would be more generally acceptable than the large permanent reductions in forces which the volume of traffic and lesser demands on equipment would justify. It is understood that this temporary furlough will involve between 7,000 and 8,000 men over the entire system, or whom about 2,700 are located at the Mount Clare shops at Baltimore."

HATTIESBURG, Miss., Jan. 22.—Wage reductions ranging from 10 to 30 per cent., effective Feb. 1 and applying to every person on the payroll, including officers and general managers, were announced today by the Mississippi Central Railroad.

HOLYOKE, Mass., Jan. 22.—The American Writing Paper Company today announced a large lay-off among its office employes, effective Feb. 1, when the force will be reduced by about 100. The company also announced that, effective Monday, its foremen would be transferred from a salary to an hourly wage basis.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Jan. 22.—Two hundred men employed in the mechanical department of the Chicago & Alton shops here, representing 10 per cent. of the total number employed, will be laid off the first of the week because of a falling off in work. It is believed the layoff will not last more than six weeks.

no control, and he sees no action he could take to free Armenia without the moral and diplomatic support of the principal powers which holds promise of bringing peace and accord to the contending parties.

Detail of Russian Problems.

There is bitter distrust and fear of war along all the Russian borders. It seems futile to attempt to bring peace to the Caucasus, if the result is merely to free the forces there engaged for new campaigns on other sectors of this long front. The distressful situation of Armenia is but one detail of this vast Russian problem, and the President most earnestly urges his conviction that it is only by a general and comprehensive treatment of the whole problem, only by full and generous co-operation of the principal powers, that a hopeful approach to the pacification and independence of Armenia can be found.

The attitude of the President toward those now in power in Russia has been frequently and clearly expressed. He regards the Bolshevisi as a violent and tyrannical minority, by no means representing the real desires and purposes of the Russian people. But he had never believed that the problems raised by this coup d'état could be solved by military action from outside. He now hopes that the recent tragical events on the Polish front and in the Crimea have convinced all the world that armed invasion is not the way to bring peace to the people of Russia.

The rapidly shifting events of recent months have only strengthened his conviction that the Russian revolution, beneficent in its main purposes, must be developed to a satisfactory conclusion by the Russians themselves. Help may from time to time be given from outside and voluntarily received, but attempts at military coercion can but end in disaster.

There are elements in the present situation which give added hope to projects of pacification. All the world is weary of war, and the conviction grows among the peoples of all countries that the military method offers very little promise of solving the grave problems of reconstruction which face us. There is at present no overt civil war in Russia. It is now a problem of the relations between Central Russia and the surrounding smaller national groups.

The unrest and instability along the border are caused by bitter and mutual distrust. The struggling new nationalities, which were formerly part of the Russian Empire, are afraid to disarm and return to the works of peace because they distrust the Bolsheviki and fear new aggressions. The Soviets contend that they are afraid to demobilize because they fear new attacks.

The great impediment to peaceful reconstruction in those troubled border territories, the imminent danger of new hostilities is caused by the utter confusion between offense and defense. Unless this distinction can be clearly defined there is not only small hope of peace, but no hope of a clear perception of who is responsible for new wars.

It is, therefore, the thought of the President that the present moment offers a peculiarly pressing challenge to an attempt at general pacification on the Russian borders along these lines. Such an attempt seems to the President the logical outgrowth—in fact, the only logical development—of the request to mediate in the Armenian conflict, and he feels bound in conscience once more to call this matter to the attention of the associated nations.

Proposes Engagement of the Powers.

It is obvious to all that these small struggling border States will not attack great Russia unless encouraged by promise of support from the stronger powers. The President therefore believes that the sine qua non of an attempt at pacification must be a public and solemn engagement among the great powers not to take advantage of Russia's stricken condition and not to violate the territorial integrity of Russia, nor to undertake themselves any further invasions of Russia, nor to tolerate such invasions by others.

Such a public agreement would in effect say to those now in power in Russia:

"You are not menaced from outside. The great powers have voluntarily guaranteed you from attack. You can have peace if you want it."

The responsibility for any new war which might break out on the Russian border would then be clearly placed.

If the principal powers represented on the Council of the League find themselves in accord with the President in this matter and will assure him of their moral and diplomatic support, he will instruct his personal representative, Mr. Morgenthau, to proceed at once on his mission.

NORMAN H. DAVIS

First Request of the League.

The first step in the series of events that culminated in President Wilson's proposal that the great powers guarantee Soviet Russia against aggression was a note telegraphed to the President from Geneva by President Hymans, in behalf of the Assembly of the League of Nations, on Nov. 26, 1920, in which the President was asked to undertake an effort to bring peace between the Armenian Government and the Turkish Kemlites, in order to stop the "present terrible tragedy."

The proposal of the President is couched in such direct terms that it will require answers from all the powers concerned—Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan. Whether it will be taken cognizance of by the Council of the League of Nations is a matter for the Council to determine, but as it is intended to bring answers from the powers collectively or individually it is supposed that the Council will transmit copies of the communication to the Governments of the Powers and permit them to answer separately or arrange through diplomatic means for a joint reply.

SENATORS DISCUSS NOTE.

Borah Approves — Moses Thinks Subject No Concern of Ours.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Most Senators who could be reached tonight and who would comment on the President's appeal to the great powers, either publicly or privately approved the position assumed by President Wilson.

"Certainly the United States is not going to help finance any bordering States to make war on Russia," said Senator Borah. "The fact is that all the wars against Russia since the armistice have been financed by the great powers. Russia should be notified that she will not be attacked. The President's position is a wise policy and should receive the support of the great powers."

Senator Harry S. New, Indiana, said: "The President's appeal strikes me as a very extraordinary proposition. Russia has been attacked from within, and I see no evidence that she is threatened by attack from the small border States."

Senator George H. Moses, New Hampshire, said:

"The President apparently assumes that Russia is a member of the League of Nations and that her territorial integrity must be maintained by the League of Nations. He also assumes that Russia will contain herself within her own borders and not attempt to spread her Soviet doctrines. His position is not tenable and I do not believe will be accepted by those to whom it is addressed. It is a matter of course with which the United States has no concern, for surely this country will not help finance any wars against Russia."

SEATTLE AS RUSSIAN BASE.

Soviet Talks of Great Activity There by Vanderlip Syndicate.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The American syndicate which recently acquired large concessions from the Soviet Government in Kamchatka through Washington B. Vanderlip has decided to use Seattle, Wash., as the port for trade operations with Soviet Russia, says a wireless dispatch from Moscow today.

Enormous stores will be built there for export trade to Vladivostok, and the construction of oil tanks has been started, the message says, adding that plans are being made to develop the railway at Seattle.

Special to The New York Times.

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 22.—Investigation in Seattle fails to show that any new oil tanks are under construction or contemplated, nor can it be learned that the Vanderlip interests are represented locally or have ever purchased land, as reported in the Soviet wireless.

SAYS BRITISH SEEK MONOPOLY IN RUSSIA

Senator France Sees London Influencing Our Trade Policy There.

HE ATTACKS PALMER, TOO

Accusation of "Crimes Worse Than Czar's" Brings Sharp Rebuke From Senator Robinson.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22. — Senator King of Utah in the Senate this afternoon started to make a speech on the League of Nations, but before he had spoken five minutes there was a general discussion as to whether the United States should officially enter into trade relations with Russia, the debate on the Bolshevist problem finally developing into a heated controversy relating to Attorney General Palmer's administration of the Department of Justice. The League of Nations had no part in the debate, and when the speaking ended Senator King's time was up and he announced that he would defer the delivery of his speech on the League to a later date.

Senator France of Maryland was responsible for Senator King's failure to get his League of Nations speech into The Record. He charged that this Government was under the influence of Great Britain in the conduct of its Russian policy, and that while Washington stood aloof, London was "leaving no stone unturned" to monopolize trade with Russia. It was Senator France, also, who made a bitter attack upon Attorney General Palmer, which drew a fiery reply from Senator Robinson of Arkansas who informed the Maryland Senator in no uncertain terms that it did him "no credit to cast innuendo and insinuations against the character and conduct of one charged with responsibility in a co-ordinate branch of the Government."

Calls Palmer's Rule Worse Than Czar's.

That under Attorney General Palmer's administration of the Department of Justice agents of the department had committed crimes, if not murders, and that conditions in the department had been such as did not prevail even in the worst days of the Russian Czar, was the charge made on the floor of the Senate by Senator France, who, besides denouncing the Attorney General, praised the administration of the Labor Department by Secretary Wilson and Assistant Secretary Post.

Beginning his speech on the League, Senator King referred to the Russian situation. This was Senator France's cue, and he interrupted Senator King and took issue with the latter's statement that the opening of trade relations with Soviet Russia would in the end lead to recognition of the Lenin-Trotsky régime.

"Trade with Russia," said Senator France, "does not mean recognition of the Soviet Government. As a matter of fact, it would probably mean that our people would have a chance to trade with the Russian people and without making any recognition of the Soviet Government necessary. A great many prominent Russians, who are entirely opposed to the Bolsheviki, are convinced that the opening of such trade relations would not tend to strengthen Bolshevism, but on the other hand would tend to bring about on the part of the Russian people a reversion to the practices of other nations."

"With due deference to the Senator from Maryland," said Senator King, "he apparently does not appreciate the full power of the Soviet dictatorship over Russian trade, import and export. It is impossible to trade with Russia because, for one thing, Russia has nothing to give us in exchange for our products."

Senator France, replying, asserted that the United States was threatened with war in the near future with Japan, and that in the event of such a war Japan might have the assistance of powerful allies. He did not say who these possible allies were. Russia and China, Senator France said, were natural allies of the United States, and he declared that every effort should be made to strengthen and perpetuate this friendship.

Republican Colleagues Oppose France.

"Do you want the Government of the United States to go into business relations with the Russian Soviet Government?" asked Senator Poindexter.

"No, I do not," replied Senator France.

"Well, I may inform you that individuals in America are now free to trade with Soviet Russia if they want to. Why don't they do so?" said Senator Poindexter.

"Great Britain," Senator France answered, "is leaving no stone unturned to secure the Russian market and is formulating a policy that will exclude other nations from that market. I assert that the British Government exerts an influence on the Russian policy of the United States."

"If the Senator," interrupted Senator Moses, "can substantiate the charge he has just made, I hope he will do so. He says the British Government exerts an influence on the Russian policies of this Government. If he has the facts to prove that assertion, I hope he will disclose them on the floor of the Senate or else before the proper committee."

"A witness," answered Senator France, "will appear before a committee next Tuesday, and he can make a statement to the effect that while British newspapers are printing articles about the horrors of Bolshevism British merchants are at the same time working out in detail trade plans with the Russians, and that Russia is now shipping gold to England while England is shipping her goods to Russia."

"But that," Senator Moses replied, "is an entirely different matter from the charge that the Senator makes to the effect that the British Government is influencing the Russian policy of the United States. What British newspapers are printing and what British merchants are doing does not necessarily affect the policy of the British Government and does not necessarily bring the policy of the British Government in contrast or influence with the policy of our Government. That is a matter of private enterprise or business ethics as interpreted by British newspapers and British merchants. It is a far less serious proposal than that which the Senator from Maryland advanced.

"I cannot concur," continued Senator Moses, "in the proposition that our Government should open up trade relations with the Russian Soviet Government. If this is done, we shall also have to admit great numbers of Soviet commercial agents to this country—Soviet propagandists who will come into our country and spread their propaganda, a propaganda more dangerous than any I have ever known."

LUBOMIRSKI DENIES REDS PREPARE ATTACK

"Russia and Poland are at peace today, and Poland expects that Soviet Russia will live up to the preliminary peace signed at the Riga Conference and the final draft of the treaty which will probably be signed before the middle of February. Rumors of war are baseless."

This statement by Prince Casimir Lubomirski, Polish Minister to the United States, was made at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel yesterday, when his opinion was asked on the rumors of a new attack by the Soviets on Poland. He continued:

"Poland is at peace, and needs peace. Her reconstruction is otherwise impossible. Poland intends to keep that peace, and will suffer no attacks to be launched against Russia from her territory, nor any other violations of her neutrality to take place.

"Nor do we expect the Soviets to attack either this Winter or this Spring. Why should they? They know that they cannot expect militant victory over the Polish armies, because the Polish population stands to a man, not only against ever again failing under the rule of any foreign power, but also against failing under the control of a foreign philosophy such as Bolshevism is. The Soviet leaders are not stupid men. They understand this. But there are other reasons why they would not attack, and those reasons are dictated by self-interest.

"In the first place, the Soviets hope to conclude and maintain a trade agreement, with Great Britain. The surest way to destroy such an agreement would be to begin an aggressive war against Poland. Moreover, Russia looks to Poland to be her commercial gateway to the west, the channel through which the needed supplies will pour when the final peace is concluded. It is in Poland that the western merchant will meet the Russian merchant, and Warsaw will become the trading centre for Russian trade.

"Where do these war rumors come from? There is to be a plebiscite in Upper Silesia. That is the answer; and German world politics—ever the same—is the motive power. It is because of her hopes for a day of future recovery of military power that her propaganda to retain this district takes advantage of every circumstance and invents them where no Arctic exist."

Reports of a serious condition existing in Poland, contained in a cable dispatch to THE NEW YORK TIMES from Geneva yesterday, were contradicted by F. A. Ewell, Assistant Secretary of the American Polish Chamber of Commerce and Industry in the United States, Inc., 40 West Fortieth Street.

Mr. Ewell described as "preposterous" the report that the city of Warsaw is without bread, that 500,000 able-bodied men are being held under arms and consuming food which the civilian population ought to have; and that at least 175,000 Polish soldiers are being held in readiness to march into Upper Silesia should the forthcoming plebiscite there show indications of going against the annexation of this province to Poland.

Mr. Ewell said that the "joker in the quite evidently German cable" was revealed in the statement: "Should the Poles attempt a coup d'état, as in the case of Vilna, there are no military forces (German) in or near Upper Silesia to hold them up." He said that the whole cable was but one of many efforts of German origin to discredit Poland before America.

Crucible Steel Offices to Move.

The executive offices of the Crucible Steel Company in Pittsburgh will be moved to New York in April or May, it was announced yesterday by the New York office of the company. The change, it was announced, will be in the nature of a consolidation of the staff of the organization.

ASSAILS JAPANESE POLICY IN SIBERIA

WANTS AMERICA IN LEAGUE

Party, In Resolution, Urges Friendship With Us Be Made a Basic Policy of Japan.

TOKIO, Jan. 21 (Associated Press).—Japan's policy in Siberia, as conducted by the present Ministry, has been a crime rather than a failure, Viscount Takaaki Kato, leader of the Kenseikai, or Opposition Party, is quoted by the press today as saying at a general meeting of the party yesterday, held in preparation for the reopening of the Diet today.

"Japan should have withdrawn her troops as soon as relief of the Czechoslovaks was attained," Viscount Kato declared. "Otherwise, she should have dispatched a more powerful force to sweep the Bolsheviki from Eastern Siberia and aid in the establishment of a strong anti-Bolshevist Government."

He charged that indecision reigned in Japan, which had unwisely effected a compromise with the Provisional Government of Eastern Siberia in Chita, "really the tool of Lenin." Meantime, Viscount Kato asserted, the campaign had cost many lives and involved the expenditure of 400,000,000 yen, and therefore was criminal. He said he considered the occupation of the whole of Northern Saghallen and the institution of a military administration as a guarantee against another Nikolaievsk massacre to be unnecessary and that Japan would regret it.

"There are about two divisions now in the vicinity of Vladivostok," Viscount Kato declared. "The Russian Administration in Vladivostok has recognized the Chita Government as holding suzerainty over Eastern Russia, and the value of the repeated declarations of the Japanese Army commander is thus reduced to nothing. General Oi, who recently was relieved of the command of the Japanese troops in Siberia, declared repeatedly he would not tolerate Soviet rule in any of the regions occupied by Japanese troops.) As communication between Vladivostok and the interior has been cut off there is no necessity for maintaining troops at Vladivostok, and they should be withdrawn immediately."

The League of Nations was favored by Viscount Kato, but he regretted that America was not a member. He approved of the plan for restricting armaments, but considered Japan's naval program as the minimum to be fixed for the national defense.

Universal suffrage and insistence upon Japan's rights in the California question were demanded in resolutions passed by the meeting. In addition the party urged that maintenance of friendship with the United States be made a basic policy of this country, and also endorsed the League of Nations and a renewal of the Anglo-Japanese alliance in the interest of world peace.

Takeshi Inukai, leader of the Kokumin-to, or National Party, addressed a meeting of that organization, condemning Japan's policy toward America, China and Russia, declaring it was "sowing the seed for future trouble."

In a manifesto issued today the party condemns the Ministry as not possessing a fixed policy on any great question. It urges retrenchment in military expenditure in order to permit internal reforms.

"Imperialism no longer is consistent with the Japanese spirit and must be replaced by industrialism with the aim of economic expansion," says the manifesto. "Japan's politics are steeped in old thoughts and suffering from debility. The people must awaken."

throughout the country. It has been a source of constant encouragement to me to find everywhere men and women who have not allowed hysterical fears or prejudices to move them from their sympathy with the cause which I have represented.

"My departure has come as the logical and inevitable consequence of the policy of the American Government toward Soviet Russia. So long as that policy was not declared, so long as I could not secure from any responsible official any frank expression of that policy, my Government was justified in keeping me here to strive for the establishment of normal political and economic relations between the United States and Soviet Russia.

"I have no knowledge of the future plans of the American Government nor can I tell in what direction this policy of ignoring the existence of the established Government of the largest country in Europe will lead. I know that the Soviet Government is more firmly established, beyond fear or danger of foreign or internal assault, than it was on the day when I first approached the American Government on its behalf. I know further that the industrial and economic conditions of the world, not excepting America, are such that the resumption of normal economic relations with Russia has become an imperative necessity upon all nations. I can only say that when the American people are prepared to approach this problem the Government of the Russian workers and peasants will be ready to meet them in a reasonable and friendly spirit."

Martens would not commit himself as to what he might do on his arrival in Moscow, but said that he would "return to America when his Government had been officially recognized in Washington."

Weinstein, who had not been in Russia for fourteen years, also seemed dejected and uncertain about the future, which caused his eighty-year-old mother to weep over him when she gave her parting blessing before being led down the gangway.

ments ever known have been initiated by at least four of the great allied and associated powers.

"France has an army of nearly 1,000,000 men; Japan has been increasing her military and naval power; the United States has let contracts for sixteen battleships, which will cost under present conditions $40,000,000 apiece; other things accordingly. This program is going forward with a rush as if we were on the verge of a great war.

"One of the arguments which are now being made against disarmament is that we cannot stop until the initiated programs are completed. Now, shall we wait upon some mere question of partisan advantage and while new contracts and new budgets are being framed before we proceed to put a stop to this awful expenditure of money—money which must be literally extorted from an impoverished world?

"The first moment possible is not too soon, and to say that some possible methods of embarrassment may arise a little later, is to assign, in my judgment, what is a wholly insufficient reason for delay.

"The resolution now before the Senate is merely the first step and is designed merely to bring the three competitive naval building nations together in the hope that, when brought together, a plan can be worked out which will result in an agreement for partial disarmament at least. It is also a notice in a way that the overburdened taxpayers of these respective countries want a hearing, and they want it speedily.

"It is true that after March 4 we will have a new administration, but we will not have a new world. The fundamental principles of this question of disarmament will be precisely the same, and this first step will have to be taken.

Ready to Wait If Harding Wishes.

"Mr. Root says we should wait until Mr. Harding and his Secretary of State inform themselves as to the best way to insure success. If this suggestion should have come from Mr. Harding I should have felt very much like deferring. But I doubt if Mr. Harding would wish to say that he wants delay in this matter until he can inform himself as to conditions, with which I have no doubt he is entirely familiar.

"I doubt also if Mr. Harding would wish to say that he is going to appoint a Secretary of State who is not entirely familiar with the situation, so far as the underlying principles are concerned.

"These nations will have to be brought together some time. Somebody will have to name the move, and we have already made great headway in arousing public sentiment in the respective nations to force action in this matter. I regret exceedingly that Mr. Root should throw his great influence against the progress that is being made.

"If Mr. Root thinks the way suggested by this resolution, is not the surest way to go about this proposition, no one would be more delighted than myself to have a suggestion from him as to how we should go about it. I will accept any program and gladly support any program, whoever may be the author of it, which seems to be better and speedier and wiser than the one proposed. I simply want action and I do not want delay.

"If Mr. Root, with his vast experience and great knowledge of world conditions, would make a suggestion of a program of action, I will be delighted to adopt it and offer it as a substitute for the one now pending. But I cannot see the virtue of a program of delay.

"Disarmament ought not to be delayed. During the delay contracts, representing billions of expenditures, will be made and billions will be expended for armaments. Budgets are being framed and the taxpayers will have to take care of them. Taxes are being imposed and collected. In the meantime the world is on the verge of bankruptcy. Millions are freezing and dying for want of clothes and food.

"Taxes will not wait. Hunger will not wait. Death will not wait. Those things do not wait for change of Administration, or bow themselves aside out of party pride.

"Shall we loiter therefore and dally with the remedy for these fearful conditions? It may be possible (and I presume it is probable), that they can stop the passage of this resolution, but they cannot stop the movement."

Mr. Root's letter was presented to the Naval Committee today by Chairman Butler, who said:

"We are simply trying to get the views of men like Mr. Root, and it is not our purpose to embarrass the present or the incoming Administration or attempt to tie the hands of President-elect Harding. We feel that we will accomplish a good deal if we develop the subject and bring before the country the best thought of its leading men."

BRITISH LABOR FIGHT TO MAINTAIN WAGES

Leaders Meet on Thursday to Consider Relief Measures for Unemployed.

RADICALS MAY GET CONTROL

Unions Refuse to Work With the Government and Demand Sustenance for Jobless.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—A crisis in the discussion on unemployment and the means to remedy it is likely to come this week. A labor congress has been summoned for Thursday by the official leaders of labor and trade union organizations and moderate men such as J. H. Thomas, J. R. Clynes and Arthur Henderson are expected to find themselves exposed to uncomfortable criticism from extreme elements of their followers.

The Labor Party has refused to work with the Government, which in the palliative measures of its program has recognized the impossibility of retaining wages at the high rate of last Summer and has put forward a program of its own. This is based on the idea that the community must maintain the standard of workers unable to find work at practically the present level, whereas the Government's insurance scheme gives unemployed men 15 shillings per week and women 12 shillings. It will demand 40 shillings for householders, 25 shillings for single men or woman and additional allowances for dependents.

The Government gives its approval to a short time scheme whereby the existing work is shared out among the regular employes of establishments, but labor replies that if that is done the Government should grant payment of a sufficient amount of unemployment benefits to make up the wages lost. It also demands the abolition of all overtime, a forty-four-hour week, raising of the compulsory school age so as to check the flow of recruits into industry, and the immediate starting of schemes for permanent improvements whether the local governing bodies concerned feel that they can afford them or not.

To provide for these expense plans labor goes far beyond the Government's scheme for opening credits in Central Europe. It demands unobstructed trade with Russia, granting of credits by countries of such terms as will help the re-establishment of commerce, stabilization of exchanges, cutting down of expenditure in Mesopotamia and a change of policy in Ireland.

The real point of the Labor Party's policy is its fight to maintain wages. The sliding scale arrangement by which in the last few years wages have advanced automatically with the cost of living will shortly begin to work the other way, and already in many trades where a short-time system is in vogue workers have found themselves confronted with a choice between taking smaller pay or getting none at all.

John R. Clynes, writing in the London Times yesterday, declared:

"I do not hesitate to say that labor will reject any proposal for a general reduction in wages with the object of securing a reduction in prices."

He set forth arguments on which this attitude was based. Prices, he maintained, rose before wages, and have continued to rise on account of many factors besides wages. Profits in particular, he claimed, have often increased more than wages, and since the most of England's food comes from America, a reduction in wages here could not reduce the cost of living.

"Only," he said, "if steps can be taken to reduce profits in all cases where these are inordinately high, and to require the capitalist to make a real sacrifice in the interest of trade, something effective might be done to persuade workmen to consider the subject of wage reduction.

"So far, however, pressure of economic conditions seems likely to be too strong for this kind of objection. There was much talk that the Woolwich Arsenal employes would resist the Government's short time proposals, but they have gone into effect without any demonstrations and startling news of the collapse of the coal export trade and the widespread closing of factories make times very difficult for economic heroics.

Moreover, there is another side to the labor crisis. Labor leaders themselves are afraid to do anything to excite violent feelings. When the labor congress met a month ago it had to bring its proceedings to a hurried and undignified close because certain extremist delegates of the London unemployed threatened to capture the meeting and pass revolutionary resolutions. Sober labor leaders are fully aware of the danger of arousing the thousands of decent workingmen now almost in despair through lack of work, and are bound to take it into account.

Henderson Issues Warning.

Arthur Henderson was quoted this week by The Daily Herald as saying:

"Unless immediate steps are taken to provide work or maintenance, even moderate labor opinion will no longer resist the bringing of pressure by definite action of an unprecedented character."

But his outburst is all against the present trend of labor thought.

Enquiries by THE NEW YORK TIMES in authoritative quarters show that the Government is not unduly alarmed. It recognizes that any day there may be riots and that next Thursday when the labor congress meets it will be a particularly anxious time. It is fully aware of the activities of a small enthusiastic Red group and it realizes that even quiet decent workmen, starving and despairing, may do violent things. But it is "prepared to cope with sporadic outbreaks, unpleasant as they may be," and it is convinced that rioting will never turn into revolution. There was far more risk of that a year ago than now.

It is the opinion in official circles that even Lenin takes the view that the moment for bringing bourgeois society down in a crash has gone by, and that the mass of British workingmen are turning their attention to thinking out the economics of the present situation. There is still danger of violence and moderate labor leaders are in the inconvenient position of having to advocate sufficiently advanced measures so as to retain their influence and at the same time be careful lest they give the extremists their chance.

DRY AGENT KILLED IN RAID,

Two Others Are Wounded and Three Missing in Alabama.

FLORENCE, Ala., Jan. 22.—Don Stephenson of Sheffield, prohibition enforcement officer, was killed, two other members of the force were seriously wounded and three are missing as a result of a battle today with alleged moonshiners on the Tennessee River in Colbert County.

Visitor Annoys Nicaraguan Consul.

On complaint of Fernando Elisondo, Consul General of Nicaragua, Orlando Rosales of 715 West Eighty-second Street was ordered by Magistrate Simms in the Tombs Court yesterday to furnish bail of $500 as a guarantee for good behavior for six months. Rosales, who is an elevator operator, was arrested at the consulate on Friday on a charge of disorderly conduct. The Consul said Rosales had visited his office at 15 State Street on a personal matter, had argued a dispute with several of the attachés of the office and finally had made use of abusive language.

PIEZ DENIES GRAFT IN SHIPPING BOARD

Asserts There Were Some Thefts, but Not More Than Under Private Control.

SAYS SCHWAB WAS NOT PAID

He Calls Gillen Charges False—Would Relieve Board of Operation of Ships.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—If the American merchant marine is to be developed successfully the Shipping Board must be relieved of the task of operating ships and settling claims growing out of the cancellation of war contracts, Charles Piez of Chicago, former Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, declared today before the House committee investigating the board's operations.

Coupled with these declarations was a flat denial by Mr. Piez of various charges of mismanagement made against the construction divisions of the board by Martin J. Gillen in recent testimony before the committee. The witness also denied that Charles M. Schwab had been reimbursed by the Government for his personal expenses while Mr. Schwab was Director General of the Fleet Corporation.

Mr. Piez made no direct reference to the charge of Colonel E. H. Abadie, formerly Controller of the Shipping Board, that a voucher for $260,000 had been presented for Mr. Schwab's "personal expenses," but he did say positively that he was certain that no voucher had ever been issued either for salary or expenses for Mr. Schwab.

Mr. Piez told the committee how Mr. Schwab had taken over direction of the Fleet Corporation only after he had been urged to do so by Chairman Hurley of the Shipping Board, Bainbridge Colby, then a member of the board, and the witness, and finally by President Wilson.

This was in the Spring of 1918, when the Germans were making their final great drive, he said, and when the General Staff was calling on the board to transport 350,000 troops a month to France.

Yielded to Wilson's Demand.

"That meant increased tonnage," Piez continued, "and we saw the need of bolstering up the construction end of the Shipping Board. We needed a man of Mr. Schwab's experience, ability and enthusiasm. Mr. Schwab explained that firms in which he was interested had contracts amounting to $500,000,000 with the Government. He was positive he would be subjected to unfair criticism, but finally agreed if the situation were outlined to President Wilson and the President insisted.

"I know perhaps better than any one else the service Mr. Schwab rendered to the Government. He never charged his expenses to the Government, either directly or indirectly. He was too high-spirited a man for that.

When Mr. Schwab became Director General of the Shipping Board's division of construction, Mr. Piez said, the Fleet Corporation did not "stand very high in public opinion because the public expected more than could be accomplished by a new organization." Mr. Schwab, he added, paid little attention to detail work, but did "impart so much enthusiasm" that the operation division "took on new life."

The committee will return to New York tomorrow night, and on Monday morning expects to inquire further into Colonel Abadie's charges.

Mr. Piez's reply to Mr. Gillen's charges was in the form of a prepared statement, which was filed with the committee and which was not read because Chairman Walsh suggested that all members had acquainted themselves with it and that its reading would only consume time.

In this statement Mr. Piez declared that Mr. Gillen's report did not "square with the facts" in "a single vital instance," and that the charge of a lack of an accounting system in the Division of Construction was wholly wrong. The claim also was made that Mr. Gillen's report regarding the Fleet Corporation checks against authorizations and appropriations was absolutely wrong, and that the destructive effect of Mr. Gillen's testimony had seriously impaired public interest in the establishment of an American merchant marine and practically destroyed the market for shipping securities.

Discussing the policy which the Shipping Board should adopt, Mr. Piez said the board was spending 80 per cent. of its time settling war claims, "like a Coroner's jury sitting in a dead past."

"Create a tribunal that will dispose of these claims expeditiously," he said. "Turn over to the Emergency Fleet Corporation completely the operation of Government-owned ships. Give the Shipping Board an opportunity to perform the functions outlined for it in the Merchant Marine act—the development of a merchant marine."

Declaring that the wood ships had been a "thorn in the side of the American people too long," the witness urged these craft be disposed of immediately.

"Sell them at any price," he said. "If they can't be sold, burn them or take them out to sea and sink them."

Built to Meet War Needs.

Mr. Piez's statement says that ships were built to meet the necessities of war, not to establish a merchant marine; that the Emergency Fleet Corporation delivered 479 ships before the armistice was signed; that the task was to build ships faster than submarines could sink them, which was a war assignment and not a peace undertaking, and that the building of ships was conducted in a systematic and business-like manner.

Mr. Piez's statement says that he suggested in December, 1917, that no further contracts for wood ships be let, but that the Board of Trustees was obliged to keep on building when pressure for anything that would float became so intense in the early Spring of 1918. The claim says that there was not a voice in or out of Congress that was raised in protest at that time against a continuation of the wood shipbuilding program.

Wood ships represent a legitimate war expense, according to the statement, which adds:

"They should be junked and the cost written off. This nation cannot expect to realize a salvage of 100 per cent. on war construction. We must recognize that ships, like merchandise, become obsolete when held too long."

The statement says there was some payroll padding, some petty dishonesty, but no more than there would be in yards under private control. Mr. Piez remarks:

"This inference on the part of the public is in large measure the result of the wild statements made by Mr. Gillen concerning the methods of the Fleet Corporation and to the general statements of graft and corruption contained in the Fisher-Richardson report. The public does not differentiate the division of construction from that of operation, and concludes that because there was petty graft among minor ships' officers in the victualling and repairing of ships in operation the entire structure of the corporation, from top to bottom, was honeycombed by a like condition.

"Graft in ship operation has from time immemorial been considered one of the perquisites of petty officers and is a difficult disease to eradicate. It has no place in the operation of an American fleet and should be treated with an iron hand.

"But it is to be regretted that the Fisher-Richardson charges are couched in such general terms that they have besmeared the whole structure of the Shipping Board and Fleet Corporation with the slime of suspicion. Many of the charges should have been made in the police courts rather than in a report of such importance.

The statement then takes up the submarine evil. It says:

"The submarine sinkings were marked each month against the output of English and American shipyards, and the public impatience grew to a fever heat at the appalling difference. Two successive administrations in the construction division succumbed to public clamor before the end of 1917.

"Construction work did not begin in earnest until July, 1917, for the Emergency Shipping Fund bill was not passed until June 15, 1917, and the Executive order delegating authority to the Fleet Corporation and Shipping Board was not issued until July 11, 1917.

Tells of Increase in Production.

"Submarine sinkings averaged 750,000 tons per month, English output 200,000 tons per month, and the output of American yards from July 1 to Dec. 31, 1917, was but forty-nine vessels of 301,000 tons.

"In the first six months of 1918 our production rose to 169 vessels of 1,086,000 tons, and in the two months before the armistice we delivered 148 ships of 769,000 tons, or at the rate of 4,600,000 tons per year, eight times the output of the preceding year. And we had to create our own yards and facilities to do it."

In taking up his claims as to Mr. Gillen's testimony, the statement says:

"Mr. Gillen's statement that 'they continued to make contracts for ships in Washington and in Philadelphia and for material in Washington and Philadelphia, for the board was functioning at all times as the Trustees of the fleet, and great and vital contracts were being made and passed over there, while in Philadelphia you had a big general construction program going on,' &c., is wholly untrue, and the kindest thing to say is that Mr. Gillen didn't investigate the facts before he made this statement.

"Another gross misstatement of facts on the part of Mr. Gillen is, to witness that there was no record of $240,000,000 of mortgages and other securities belonging to the Fleet Corporation. He says they were afterward found in a trust company in Philadelphia.

"The facts are these: The securities in question were in the possession of the Treasurer in Washington until April 17, 1919, when the trustees of the corporation passed a resolution authorizing the transfer of these securities to the custody of Controller Bender in Philadelphia. On May 26, 1919, the Board of Trustees passed a resolution confirming action of Mr. Bender in renting a safe deposit box in the Girard Trust Company of that city. On July 9, 1919, the trustees passed a resolution transferring the custody of these securities to Mr. T. Ed. New, Assistant Controller. Mr. New has maintained a special register of these securities, and it was from this register that the list appearing in Mr. Gillen's testimony was prepared.

"Mr. Gillen states: 'There was no record in the Treasurer's office of the many millions in impressed funds—how many millions I don't know. It must have run to two or three hundred million dollars of impressed funds in the hands of contractors in the ship building districts of the country.'

"It is strange that Mr. Gillen, occupying the position of assistant to Judge Payne, President of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, should during an incumbency of ten months have been unconscious of the fact that there were monthly balance sheets in the Division of Construction, that these balance sheets showed the amounts of controlled and impressed cash funds in total and distributed among the districts, that the general balance sheets were supported by the consolidated statement of cash funds appearing each month, that this statement gave in the greatest detail the name of the bank, the balance at the beginning of the month, the receipts and disbursemnets and balance at the end of the month of each impressed and controlled cash account.

"At the very peak of our activities the combined impressed and controlled funds never exceeded $31,000,000, and during Mr. Gillen's connection with the corporation these two funds never exceeded $25,000,000."

Points to Relative Costs.

After discussing the relative costs of ships per deadweight ton, the statement says:

"Certainly, the moderate differences between war costs and the prices in the relatively free markets preceding our entry into the war and following the armistice should dispel the inference of gross extravagance and incompetence."

"The indirect advantages of our large merchant fleet in keeping ocean rates within bounds and in providing the transportation facilities that made our phenominal overseas business possible are incalculable, but will form a material offset to the shrinkage in value to which they must be subjected."

Mr. Denman's criticism, as reported in the press, of the complexion of the Ship Control Committee is unfounded," said Mr. Piez. "England had made enormous purchases on this side of war materials. Her ships at that time carried the major part of the tonnage, and she was mightily interested in expediting the turn-around of vessels and relieving congestion at our ports. Merchandise for export was backed up for many miles behind our chief ports, and Mr. Hurley's appointment of Messrs. Frank Raymond and Sir Cannop Guthrie worked order out of chaos and reduced the turn-around of both cargo and troop ships by 40 per cent. in a very few months. Sir Cannop's presence on the committee added strength through his experience and by insuring cordial co-operation in pooling all tonnage that arrived at our principal ports.

"The Ship Control Committee achieved wonders during the blackest hours of the war in getting our boys and their supplies to the front, and in bringing essential raw materials to our shores.

"What if the accounting of some of the voyages were not promptly or completely reported?"

GILLEN MAKES REPLY TO PIEZ TESTIMONY

Asks Him Four Questions on the Accounting System of Emergency Fleet Corporation.

After reading the testimony of Charles E. Piez, former Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, before the Congressional Shipping Board Committee in Washington yesterday, Martin J. Gillen, former special assistant to Chairmen John Barotn Payne and William S. Benson, made the following statement:

"At last we have found a man who acknowledges responsibility for supervision of the accounting of the Construction Division of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. He appears in the rôle of the counsel for the defense. I would like to ask him four questions.

"First—Why did he fail to have a proper system of accounting set up so that the materials and supplies purchased by the Government could be properly charged against the contracts that furnished them? For on Oct. 1, 1919, there was more than $550,000,000 worth of materials furnished to contracts which had not as yet been charged to shipbuilding contractors.

"Second—Why did he fail to have set up a proper system of inventories of materials in the yards of the shipbuilding contractors at the time that these materials were furnished by the Government, and fail to have continuing inventories kept? For on Oct. 1, 1919, more than $300,000,000 worth of Government materials was in the yards of the shipbuilders of this country, confused with the materials of the shipbuilders and no means of taking an inventory could be found.

"Third—Why did he fail to have a proper system of inventories taken of materials in the yards of the shipbuilders who were constructing 451 ships taken over in a state of partial completion? And why did he fail to have a proper record made of materials furnished to those ships and have them furnished to the contractors? Why did he fail to have proper records made of the progress payments made by former owners of these ships prior to their requisition?

"Fourth—He states that the securities of the Emergency Fleet Corporation were placed by the Shipping Board under resolution of the Emergency Fleet Corporation in a bank in Philadelphia. Will he please tell the public why proper records were not kept in the office of the Treasurer in Washington, showing the amount and location of these securities? It was in the Treasurer's office that those transactions should regularly have been registered.

"His trouble was in setting up and supervising the accounting system in the construction department and he failed because it is well known that those records could not be obtained in Washington. Ever since October, 1919, the office of the General Controller of the Emergency Fleet Corporation has been struggling with this fatal defect."

PERLEY MORSE NOT FOUND.

Efforts to Reach Head of Auditing Concern Are Fruitless.

Perley Morse, head of the accounting firm whose audit of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation resulted in the allegation by Colonel Eugene H. Abadie, former General Controller of the Shipping Board, that a voucher for $260,000, representing the personal expenses of Charles M. Schwab, former Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, had been charged against the board, and that $100,000 of it was charged against ship construction, could not be found yesterday.

He was sought at the offices of Perley Morse & Co., 110 William Street, and also at his room at the National Republican Club, 54 West Fortieth Street. He had not returned to the Republican Club up to a late hour last night, and it was said that he had not been seen there in the evening.

'GIANT' KEARSARGE PASSES AS WARSHIP

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Launched amid the Spanish War stir of 1898, the old battleship Kearsarge, then expected to revolutionize naval warfare, has passed out of the fighting line of the navy without ever having fired a gun in anger.

The big ship, a giant of her own day, was thrust aside long ago as a naval "freak." Memories that lurked in her historic name, proud imaginings of her future that filled the press at her launching, could not save her. She is to become "Naval Craneship No. 1," a peaceful, plodding handmaiden to the fighting craft of today and tomorrow. Beside them she will be almost a pigmy ship.

At League Island Navy Yard the old ship of the line is being stripped of war gear and military trappings. Guns that have fought only mimic battles are going to the crap heap. The great superimposed turrets that housed them—a new word in naval architecture when installed—are being torn out. Cage masts must go by the board. Steel walls of the conning tower will disappear. Much of the side armor will be stripped away, and only the hull and engines will be left.

On this base will rise a monster electric crane capable of lifting 250 tons. To support it the ship's sides are to be bulged to a beam of 92 feet amidships, as compared to the 72 feet of her fighting days. The lifting machine will be used to hoist aboard modern battleships sections of the three-gun turrets for 16-inch rifles, which weigh 200 tons, and the great rifles themselves.

PARIS'S WILD ARTISTS ARE BECOMING TAME

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES

PARIS, Jan. 22.—Today the salon of independent artists opened its annual exhibition to the Paris public, and the whole artistic and critical world has spent the day within Grand Palais. Before the war this exhibition, in which every picture submitted is hung, for there is no jury to decide and no restriction to control what is and what is not art, used to present many of the gestures of the nightmare. But a strange difference seems to have come over the minds and brushes of the cubists, neo-classicists and the others.

In certain rooms of the exhibition one gets the impression that the freak and experimental stage of all these schools is past. The wild men of before the war have not really altered their methods and their conception, but they have modified them, and they have educated their public so that from being wild men they have passed to a stage at which they begin to be called "masters." The Dadaists have, of course, come to help keep up the reputation of the independents for startling the visitors into wonder as to whether they are dreaming, but even their efforts have not the same frightening effect as had those of the earlier cubists and impressionists.

The general impression conveyed by the closely packed canvases is one of gayety and resolution, but to it there is another side. These new methods of painting seem by the number of exhibits to be the easy ones to learn. In all these rooms there is a strong family resemblance and it is only here and there that one finds real originality and imagination. And for this reason, perhaps, more than for any other there seems to be a rather marked disinclination of visitors to buy. The salon's success will have to be measured not by sales, and this saddening fact has produced among all the artists of Montparnasse and Montmartre a sentiment of astonishment, disquiet and melancholy such as they never felt in the days of the first experiment.

of the Legislature, after which no bills of a local nature could be passed. At present, he said, the great mass of thirty-day bills passed in the last few days of the Legislature threw an undue burden upon the Governor.

United States Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr., in discussing the future of the United States Army urged that this country should always be kept measurably prepared. He said the 175,000 limit now fixed by Congress was the minimum to which the army could be safely reduced. He said it would be necessary to have an army which might seem to be "top-heavy" with officers to provide for the training of civilians as soldiers in case of war.

Senator Wadsworth said he did not wish to pose as a prophet of future war, but that no one could say that we might not again be called upon to defend ourselves.

Other speakers were Governor William C. Sproul of Pennsylvania, and William H. Wardrobe, K. C., of Hamilton, Ont., a member of the Canadian Bar Association. William D. Guthrie, the new President, who was the last speaker, conferred honorary membership in the association upon Senator Wadsworth and ex-Governor Smith.

Besides ex-Governor Smith, there were three other former Governors at the speakers' table, Charles E. Hughes, Martin H. Glynn and Charles S. Whitman. Others at the table were George Sutherland of Utah, former United States Senator. Woman lawyers present included Emilia Bullowa, President of the Woman Lawyers' Association; Helen C. McNamara of Binghamton, Bertha Strootman of Buffalo and Anna C. W. Daly of Poughkeepsie.

HARDING AFLOAT ON INDIAN RIVER

NOW OUT OF OFFICIAL TOUCH

President-Elect Getting His First Complete Rest Since Chicago Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Jan. 22.—Somewhere along the Indian River near Summer Haven, about fifteen miles from here, Senator Frelinghuysen's houseboat, the Victoria, with President-elect Harding on board, is anchored for the night before proceeding to its first landing point at Ormond tomorrow.

For the first time since the Chicago convention the President-elect is enjoying a complete rest out of touch with the rest of the world. This will continue except when the Victoria puts in at points along the inside passage to Miami for important mail and telegrams that cannot be attended to at Mr. Harding's temporary headquarters here.

At Point Isabel and on the trip to Panama the President-elect's time was interrupted by telegraph and wireless messages that required attention. This time, however, the arrangements made by Secret Service men seem to make it certain that Mr. Harding will be as free from interruption as he wishes.

Mr. Harding arrived here this forenoon and was met at the station by Senator Frelinghuysen and driven to the golf course for the first round of golf which the President-elect has had since he was in Panama two months ago. A group of Winter visitors met the train and gave the President-elect a welcome. "Rheumatics" in heavy Winter clothing and other visitors in Summer white lined the seawall along the bay where the Victoria lay and waited several hours for Mr. Harding to come from the country club.

The Victoria was as spick and span as white paint and brass polish could make her. Flying from the bow was the burgee of the New York Yacht Club. The boat is eighty-eight feet over all and is capable of outside cruising without discomfort. She has five staterooms and there is a crew of five men, natives of five different countries, but all naturalized Americans.

Accompanying Mr. Harding and Senator Frelinghuysen are Senator Fall, Henry P. Fletcher, former Ambassador to Mexico, Harry M. Daugherty, George B. Christian Jr., Mr. Harding's secretary; Dr. Ely, Mr. Frelinghuysen's physician, and Miles B. MacCahill, who has charge of the Secret Service detail that will follow the cruise ashore in automobiles.

Joseph Murphy, Assistant Chief of the Secret Service, will go ahead of the party to cover the landing of the President-elect along the route to Miami.

Senator Cummins of Iowa, who was expected to accompany Mr. Harding on the Victoria, is ill at Daytona, and it appears doubtful whether he will be able to join the party when the yacht touches at Daytona next week.

"Free from care and worry," said the President-elect as he stepped out on the Victoria's deck after changing from golf clothes to a gray sack suit. He posed for movie and still photographers. Then the lines were cast off and the Victoria headed for the Indian River while spectators waved and shouted "good luck."

Until Miami the President-elect will spend about two weeks between here and Miami with frequent stops along the route to visit links with which Mr. Harding is familiar, having spent parts of twenty-seven Winters in Florida. Returning to St. Augustine the second week of February, he will make his headquarters here to resume consideration of Cabinet and diplomatic appointments and preparation of his inaugural address.

HARDING'S MESSAGE WELCOMED IN ENGLAND

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Discussing President-elect Harding's letter to the Sulgrave Institute, The Sunday Observer says:

"Its cordiality toward this country is expressed with an emphasis and explicitness which must be measured by the writer's approaching responsibilities. Mr. Harding is the very last man to be casual or impulsive upon the threshold of his great office. The more closely his words are studied the more impressive is the deliberation behind their force." It goes on:

"Unity of the English-speaking peoples" is as strong a phrase as ever crossed the Atlantic from the steps of the White House. It is a facer for various crusades that we need not more particularly specific and it is pregnant with the highest encouragement for men of good will everywhere in their efforts to lay a deeper foundation for the world's peace."

Declaring that "America has all along been repudiating in very practiced fashion these formularies of isolation which have been recited in his political tabernacle." The Observer quotes Admiral Niblack's account of the work of the United States Navy in European waters, and remarks: "For all the language that has sometimes sounded priestly and Levitical, America has all the time been playing the Good Samaritan by stealth, because, like ourselves, she cannot resist the claim of the weak upon the strong. The impulse to help is there, that impulse which makes 'the English speaking peoples,' as Mr. Harding puts it, 'the instrument through which civilization has been flung to the four corners of the globe.'"

PALACE HOTEL BAR GONE.

Famous Meeting Place in San Francisco Wiped Out by Prohibition.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 22. — The Palace Hotel bar, whose lustrous mahogany has been the resting place of many a famous elbow, where many big mining and business deals of the early days of San Francisco were consummated, is gone.

Its passing was celebrated quietly yesterday. The farewell toast to the place, eloquent with memories of ancient convivialities, was drunk in ginger ale.

The original bar was built in 1890. It was rebuilt after the fire and earthquake in 1906. Behind the bar hangs a famous Maxfield Parrish painting, "The Pied Piper."

The bar, a soft drink dispensary since the advent of prohibition, will be converted into an annex to the hotel grill.

Giolitti Has Prepared Bill for Participation of Toilers in Management.

ROME, Jan. 22.—Premier Giolitti has prepared a bill to be presented to Parliament respecting the participation of the workmen in the management of industrial plants. The bill takes into account the project presented by the workmen and owners in the form of a joint commission having to do with the recent controversy in the metals trade.

The Ministers of Industry and Labor assisted in preparing the bill.

The Catholic party will also present a measure dealing with a plan for the workmen to share in the management and profits of the plants.

VAST CALIFORNIA WINE SHIPMENTS IN GERMANY

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 22.—Since the United States has gone dry immense quantities of California and other American wine have accumulated in the German free ports, most of which, it is alleged, have been shipped here only for safekeeping.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent has been informed of one lot of 500,000 quarts of California wine which filled a large warehouse in Bremen, where space has grown rather scarce lately. Nobody in Bremen seemed to know whose property it was, but at the Berlin offices of the Federal Ministry for Food Supply THE TIMES correspondent elicited the fact that this enormous shipment arrived from America June 25, having been consigned to a well-known firm of wine dealers, Kempka & Co. of Königsberg.

Soon afterward Kempka & Co. requested the Ministry to release the shipment and received the reply that there was no particular objection to doing so if papers were furnished proving Kempka & Co. the owners, or at least establishing their right to dispose of the wine. This was in August of last year, and since then the Ministry has heard no more from the Königsberg firm or from anybody else claiming the wine.

Samples from other lots nearly as large have been offered to large wine firms in Berlin, but have found no buyers for two principal reasons; the first being that the price was too high in view of the rate of exchange, and the second that German consumers of foreign wine prefer French, Spanish and Italian wine to that of California, which is not known here.

As one of the largest wine dealers here, Kimpinski, explained to THE TIMES correspondent, the Berlin public would have to be educated first to appreciate California wine, which is much richer than Moselle or Rhine wine, and even then it is more than doubtful if Berliners would pay the high prices which the California dealers are not inclined to reduce, evidently hoping that some day their wine might return matured to delight Americans tired of prohibition.

"I know only two ways to dispose of this American wine," said Director Kretschmar of the Hotel Bristol, "either to sell it to liquor manufacturers or to champagne houses supplying night amusement places. It is just what our war profiteers, gamblers and their girls deserve."

SAYS DANCING SERVES USEFUL SOCIAL ENDS

BOSTON, Jan. 22.—Dancing is an instinct which is very much better expressed than suppressed, said Professor Emil Carl Wilm, head of the Department of Psychology at Boston University, in a serious defense of natural pleasures today.

"Dancing serves a useful social end," he added. "It gives married people the opportunity to associate with persons of the opposite sex under conventional circumstances, and it helps uphold conventional society.

"Dancing is an instinct like eating, fighting and mating. There is no one who can't dance, as it is only accentuated walking. My two-and-a-half-year-old son one-steps and fox-trots.

"Modern dancing is partly sensual, partly an expression of a love for rhythm and partly much-needed exercise. All of these functions are natural and therefore the appeal of dancing cannot help but be widespread. Our highly conventional society suppresses a great many natural pleasures, but dancing has not been abolished by the blue law reformers yet, and it is one of the few natural pleasures left.

"The overemphasis that is sometimes placed on dancing is the result of what psychologists know as inhibitions. Unless normal instincts get an expression or have some compensation they are apt to burst out in unusual forms.

"For instance, all women have the maternal instinct and the modern bachelor woman, her instinct unsatisfied and repressed, compensates by taking a passionate interest in animals, or else she becomes a champion of feminism."

was fortunate at times. I was arrested for gambling once and paid my fine, but kept on and was at one time given charge of a gambling house in East St. Louis where whisky was also sold. The house was raided and I served my time in Danville.

"Then I reformed, was married and entered the ministry. Of course, now I shall give up my credentials, both in the Free Methodist and Nazarene churches."

Inspector Hitchcock was positive in his rejection of that part of the confession implicating Williamson.

"We are still investigating the case, but have already disproved many of his statements about his partner and have never thought of arresting him," said the inspector. "There is still much to be checked up, the whereabouts of small parts of the cash yet unaccounted for and where Kyle spent it, but I am inclined to believe that he pulled this, the biggest cash robbery in years, by himself."

"His charges are ridiculous but expected," said Williamson, found laboring in the garage that had been turned up side down in the search for the money. "I was at home and in bed when the robbery occurred. I began to suspect him the day after when he made frequent trips to the warehouse, and in his absence searched the downtown place and found the egg crate with $100,000 in it.

"Then I telephoned State's Attorney Thompson and Sheriff Grant Irvin to bring the Inspectors at once. We went over the repair shop and the warehouse and found most of the money. Kyle led the officers to the hiding place of about $5,000 after he had been arrested. I think that his reckless spending of money first aroused my suspicions, and when Red Allen, express driver, told me Kyle had given him a tip of $3 for taking a box to the warehouse I began the investigation."

It was learned last night that Inspector Ryder has gone to East St. Louis to consult United States Attorney J. J. Burnside concerning the next step in the now highly involved investigation. Kyle will be taken to Centralia on Monday and arraigned before a Federal Commissioner there, according to Inspector Hitchcock. He will be charged with having in his possession stolen mail funds, and indictment will be asked on thirty-six counts, thirty-one for the packages of money lifted and five for the mail pouches and registered letters stolen. The maximum penalty is five years in the penitentiary on each count.

It was recalled during the investigation tonight that a similar mail robbery occurred in Mount Vernon on Jan. 27, last year, when $17,000 in cash and negotiable notes were taken from a pouch at the C. and E. I. station at the edge of the town. The pouch, ripped open, was found later near the tracks, but the thieves escaped. Last December, inspectors say, a mail pouch was taken from the same truck that held the latest fortune, at the rear of the Post Office. The pouch contained only letters, however.

SHIPBOARD TAKES UP BRITISH CONTRACT

Will Hold Hearing Thursday on International Mercantile Marine Agreement.

FRANKLIN ASKED TO APPEAR

Commissioners Believe No More Important Issue Affecting Merchant Marine Has Been Considered.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The Shipping Board voted today to investigate at a hearing next Thursday the contract between the International Mercantile Marine Company and the British Government, first brought to public notice last Thursday by Senator Jones of Washington, Chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee. The Senator declared that under the terms of the contract the company agreed to pursue "no policy injurious to the interests of the British mercantile marine or of British trade."

In announcing the decision of the board Frederick I. Thompson, Vice Chairman, said in a public statement that "the issue raised" was considered of great consequence and of a nature requiring the attention of the Shipping Board. "It may be stated," he added, that it was the opinion of the commissioners present at the session of the board this morning when the resolution was unanimously adopted that no issue of larger moment affecting the establishment and permanency of an American merchant marine had come before the present board for consideration."

The inquiry was authorized by the adoption of the following resolution:

"Whereas, it has come to the attention of the board that there exists a present contract between the International Mercantile Marine Company, a corporation existing under the laws of the State of New Jersey, and the British Government which contains certain clauses alleged to be inimical to the shipping interests of the United States and the development of an American merchant marine; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the United States Shipping Board set said matter for hearing and consideration at a meeting of the board at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., to be held on Thursday, Jan. 27, 1921, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon, and

"Resolved, That the Secretary of the board be and is hereby directed to notify the President of the International Mercantile Marine Company, and such other persons as he may be advised are interested therein, of the time, place and purpose of such meeting, to the end that they may appear and be heard, if they so desire."

PARIS, Jan. 22.—I am informed that Premier Briand will support at the Interallied Premiers' Conference next week the following reparations policy:

First—Before May 1 the Reparations Commission shall notify Germany of the total amount of damage she did to allied citizens, the amount reaching about 400,000,000,000 marks gold, the current value of which is more than any one expects Germany to pay.

Second—At some future time, when Germany shall be in better shape, the Allies shall notify her what part of this sum she is expected to pay.

Third—In the meanwhile Germany is to agree to pay 3,000,000,000 marks, gold, annually for the next five years.

Without any disrespect to France—she deserves all Germany can repay—one cannot escape the political results of the adoption of any such policy by the Allies. It would mean that for years Germany would have a sword of Damocles dangling over her head. It would leave Germany totally in the dark as to her responsibilities, and it would mean that the harder the Germans worked in the next five or ten years the more they would eventually have to pay.

France appears to be the only interested party which is really opposed to laying down between now and May 1 the sum total of what the Allies will exact from Germany. Certainly a vast majority of the nations of the world want the situation clarified as it can only be clarified by fixing quickly the amount of the reparation bill.

Reasons Advanced for Stand.

Of course, the French statesmen advance many reasons for their stand, the most important one being that, with Germany at the lowest ebb, it is no time to estimate what she can pay in the next thirty or forty years. But, discarding all these reasons, the whole matter comes down to this—the French negotiators feel themselves unable to get England to join in guaranteeing the collection of any amount with which the French public will be satisfied. That is the situation in a nutshell.

There is a very strong party in France, led by M. Poincaré, which favors fixation of a definite sum by May 1. The argument of this faction is that it is better to obtain an allied agreement now to collect a moderate sum than to take a chance of collecting a larger sum later on. The leading publicist apostle of this policy is Pertinax of the Echo de Paris. He writes:

"M. Briand is adhering to this policy, the weakness of which we have pointed out. Dodging a definite settlement of this problem, he turns to a partial solution. This is to play the diplomatic gymnast. This policy means the postponement of a definite solution. When we get to it we will find the Germans stronger and more stubborn, and, God knows, they are stubborn enough now. We have got to settle this business, and now is the time."

Herr Bergmann, head of the German experts now at Paris, declared in an interview today that Germany would insist on the right to know by May 1 what her obligations were. He said to leave the German people in the dark would be disastrous for all Europe.

"We are willing to discuss these annuities and first payments," he said, "but we must know what the total bill is. We must be able to shape our future. We cannot rest in cloudy uncertainty.

"If we can know what we owe, I assure you, the German people will get to work to pay it to the best of their ability. They cannot work with a good heart if they are unable to see when they will be finished with paying this indemnity. We cannot pay in gold. We have not got it. But we can pay in goods and coal, and when we give France 2,000,000 tons of coal that is as much good to her as 1,000,000,000 marks in gold.

"I wish to emphasize this—if the total German debt is fixed, the entire world will cease to suffer from that indecision which paralyzes Europe today. It is only when we know what we owe that we can effect financial agreements with America and other countries and make a real effort to pay the bill."

For Better Relations With France.

He said Germany would like to get into better relations with France and hoped France would agree to fixing the indemnity, because that would be the best way to get Germany back to work.

The peace of mind of French statesmen is not aided by the declaration of M. Jasper, a Belgian delegate to the interallied conference, that Belgium was in favor of fixing the indemnity and did not intend to renounce her priority right to the first 2,500,000,000 marks paid by Germany. This would mean that if Germany agreed to pay 3,000,000,000 yearly for five years most of the first year's payment would go to Belgium—and France's budget this year carries 16,500,000,000 francs expended against the prospect of German payments.

As a matter of fact the chief trouble of the French financial administration is that it has a deficit of 35,000,000,000 paper francs paid out for reconstruction and with only the German prospects to meet it. If Germany pays 3,000,000,000 marks gold yearly for five years that would mean that France, receiving 55 per cent. of the indemnity, would get during that time only 1,650,000,000 marks gold a year, or about 2,000,000,000 francs gold or 6,000,000,000 paper.

Thus the entire German receipts for the next five years would less than meet what France has already spent for reconstruction. And that may explain why M. Poincaré would not take the Ministry of Finance unless he had a free hand in the reparation matter.

MRS. STEDMAN WASN'T LOST

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 22.—Mrs. Harry B. Stedman, wife of a broker of this city, who was reported to the New York police today as missing in that city, is at her home here, members of the family said tonight.

Explanatory of the reason why Mr. Stedman had reported that Mrs. Stedman was unaccountably missing it was stated that husband and wife had planned to take a certain train from New York to this city. There was a misunderstanding over the meeting place in the Grand Central Station, and when Mr. Stedman could not find Mrs. Stedman he asked for assistance.

ARMY CUT GOES TO WILSON.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The House resolution fixing the peace-time strength of the army at 175,000 men by directing the Secretary of War to stop recruiting until the force is reduced to that size was adopted today by the Senate and sent to the White House. A similar resolution which has been before the Senate was abandoned.

In the usual course the resolution will be referred to Secretary Baker, who, it is understood, is prepared to recommend to the President that the resolution be approved.

FRENCH HOPE MUCH FROM NEW CABINET

Premier Briand Expected to Be Match for British as Well as for Germans.

BUSINESS CIRCLES GLAD

Want to Know How Country Stands Financially — Approaching End of War Restrictions Causes Optimism.

By WALTER DURANTY.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 22.—The change of Government is welcomed in business and financial circles here. The announcement in the Briand program speech that war restrictions on trade will be abolished as soon as possible, coupled with immediate abandonment of coal control and suppression of the National Coal Bureau, gave great and general satisfaction.

The personalities of three members of the new Cabinet, Briand, Loucheur and Doumer, arouse especial enthusiasm. It is hoped that M. Briand will be a match, not only for the Germans, but the British, it being an axiom of faith in France that through the selfish influence of the latter France was "trimmed" in the Spa coal deal.

M. Loucheur is expected to clean the Augean stables of the invaded regions, the administration of which those in a position to know consider a black stain on France's escutcheon, not only economically but morally. The well-informed financial editor of the Temps went so far a few weeks ago as to speak of graft, waste and mismanagement in the liberated area as well-nigh universal, and in view of the fact that this area is of such importance industrially, bankers feel that France's recovery will be greatly hastened if M. Loucheur can put matters on a more satisfactory basis. They believe that his statement in favor of decentralization and disentanglement of the present appalling confusion of the powers and bureaus responsible shows he is going the right way to work from the beginning.

Want to Know Country's Finances.

No less is hoped from M. Doumer as a financier who created a most favorable impression by the tone and matter of criticisms he directed against Francois Marsal's administration not long before the latter's fall. What financiers charged in particular against Marsal was failure to give the country a straightforward understanding of the exact position of its finances. They trust Doumer to do this so that at least they will be able to know how things really stand. Similarly he is credited with a plan to avoid marked fluctuations of exchange.

In both cases, say business men, what bothers them most is uncertainty. They know the situation is not couleur de rose and they know it cannot be improved all of a sudden. But they claim they have a right at least to know what it is in order to make plans for the future with something approaching certainty.

The new note of optimism here has already had its echo abroad. There has been a sharp rise in the value of the franc since Premier Briand formed his Cabinet, mainly due, it is stated, to changed sentiment in England. Some English firms are actually reported to have made contracts to sell French goods at a basis of 40 francs to the pound, whereas the sterling rate today is 54 and was 61 a few days ago. The dollar has fallen to keep parity and is now 14.30 instead of a round 17.

Incidentally, this sudden rise, gratifying as it is to the French on general grounds, has had the immediate result of intensifying the effects of the present business depression, which in France, at any rate, is due at bottom to the refusal of the public to pay the same high retail prices as before, when they see raw material prices, freights, coal, &c., on the toboggan.

During the last four days cotton, wool, hides, coffee and rubber, to name five important imports, have all fallen sharply in price to correspond with the rise in French exchange. This makes it all the more difficult for every one right along the selling line to dispose of goods he has already bought and paid for, which difficulty is the keystone of the depression arch. No matter what may be the optimism for the future, business at present is worse than ever. A Lille industrial said today:

"I have not had a worth-while order for three months, and cotton in the spinning now costs me 30 per cent. more than its price today. That's a fine outlook for my profits, isn't it? I suppose every scrap of goods I'm turning out now will have to be sold at a loss—if ever I do sell it. Then take coal. I've got so much of this German coal piled up you can hardly see the shop chimneys, but nearly all of it cost me much more than I'd have to pay today, because the National Coal Office made me pay the mean price between what it cost and the price of English coal, which has fallen from 180 shillings a ton to under 50 in the last six months."

His is not an isolated case. Except for a few favored trades nearly every industrial in France is in a similar position. But, save for a very few, so overcome by their present worries as to be unable to look ahead, all have high hopes for the future.

Hopes to Lead in World Trade.

It is no exaggeration to say that France looks forward to taking in great measure, the place formerly held in the world by Germany and England.

"They can't pay us indemnity," say the businessmen. "Very well, let them give us coal. With Lorraine we've got iron, and why doesn't the Government make Germany give France say 5,000,000 tons of coal per month—they'd swear they couldn't do it, but with Upper Silesia they could, and after all who won the war anyway?"

This view is exceedingly widespread and it is significant that M. Loucheur, who represents big business in the new Government, voiced immediately after taking office. With 60,000,000 tons yearly—which at today's average in France of 150 francs per ton represents 9,000,000,000 francs per annum—France could not only give her business enormous expansion, but could sell coal to the rest of Europe.

In shipbuilding alone the combined possibilities of unlimited coal and steel are tremendous. The French are well aware of this, and it can be prophesied with assurance that the French demand for German coal will grow in proportion to Germany's insistence on her inability to pay the indemnity.

FOUR REPUBLICS JOIN CENTRAL AMERICA UNION

SAN SALVADOR, Republic of Salvador, Jan. 22.—The compact creating the Union of Central American Republics has been signed by the delegates of four of the nations at the San José conference, Salvador, Honduras, Guatemala and Costa Rica, it is announced in an official dispatch today from San José, the Costa Rican capital, where the delegates of the five republics have been conferring for some time.

The Nicaraguan delegates, however, not only failed to sign but withdrew from the conference. They took this action on orders from their Government, which had refused to approve the terms of the compact previously reached by the conferees.

All five delegations had come to an agreement on the long-disputed Article 4 of the compact, says a San José dispatch to El Diario del Salvador, but the Nicaraguan Government would not confirm the action of its representatives on this point. [Apparently the article in question is that dealing with treaties between signatories and foreign nations, which Nicaragua had originally interpreted as affecting her treaty with the United States.]

GREENWOOD TALKS TO BLACK AND TANS

Tells Them They Are Custodians of Civilized Government in Defeating Conspiracy.

BAD WEEK IN IRELAND

Further Pronouncement From De Valera Is Awaited by British Before Interfering With Him.

DUBLIN, Jan. 22.—Sir Hamar Greenwood, Chief Secretary for Ireland, accompanied by Lady Greenwood, this morning reviewed the "Black and Tan" auxiliary police in the Beggar's Bush barracks. The Chief Secretary was received by General H. M. Tudor, commander of the auxiliaries.

In the course of a speech to the men, Sir Hamar expressed deep regret at the murders of some of their gallant comrades, and assured them that the Government was determined to crush out the conspiracy whose object was to smash the United Kingdom and the empire. He said no Government could tolerate or condone assassination. Sir Hamar declared he felt the auxiliaries were the custodians of civilized government in defeating the conspiracy, which depended, not on argument, but on rifle, revolver and bomb. They were up against some dirty fighters, he said.

In conclusion Sir Hamar declared: "I am sure we are breaking this terror, which has nearly ruined Ireland. Before long there will be a new and happier Ireland, thanks largely to the forces of the Crown, who have but one object in this country, that is, to relieve Ireland from the great and awful terror of assassination and to help her destiny as a part of the great commonwealth of the Empire."

Week of Many Attacks.

This has been the livewliest week in Ireland in a long time. The authorities in Dublin Castle had reported in the previous week a fall in disorders, but this was more apparent than real, as the figures for the week before last included trifling attacks on the mails.

This week was marked by serious ambushes. On one day eight barracks in Tipperary were attacked by large bands which were defeated without serious casualties. The most serious event was an ambush in County Clare, where a police patrol, whose route was known, was attacked by fifty men, who killed a district police inspector, a sergeant and four constables and wounded two others on the first volley.

Several ambushes were attempted on a large scale, the roads being blocked by stone walls and trees. They involved no casualties, but their preparation in the martial law area indicated that the extremists were not influenced by the fear of punishment.

An interesting feature of recent happenings is the frequence of ambushes and attacks on barracks in the Newry district of Northeast Ulster, which is soon to come under the Belfast Parliament.

Bombing of police and auxiliaries is increasing in Dublin, though thus far it has proved ineffective, many of the bombs failing to explode, and some of them exploding in the lorries, causing no serious damage.

Military lorries used in Dublin have now been armor-plated and their tops are covered with wiring. No hostages as yet are carried on them, but it is believed that continuance of attacks is certain to be followed by that precaution.

The military authorities record with satisfaction the operation near Timoleague, County Cork, early in the week, when an Essex regiment surprised an ambush party and captured twenty-five men.

During the past week there were fifty-one arrests for disorders and political offenses, seventy-five civilians were court-martialed and there were sixty-one convictions. Three men were sentenced to ten years' penal servitude each for kidnapping a Northern Railway guard during a fight on the railway, because munitions were being carried. Seven years in two cases and three years in another case were the sentences imposed upon men who had arms and ammunition in their possession. One man was tried for having a copy of the Irish Bulletin.

There were 131 internments during the week. The internments to Jan. 15 numbered 1,429.

New De Valera Statement Awaited.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The message "to the Irish" by Eamon de Valera, the Irish Republican leader, given out on the occasion of the second anniversary of the assembling of the Dail Eireann, or Irish Republican Parliament, is causing no perturbation in official circles, it was declared here this morning.

"It is such a colorless, unpersuasive thing that it will probably fall far short of its obvious purpose—it certainly could not be styled inspirational," was the comment of one official. "It is only vivid in its portrayal of de Valera's luckless position, the gears of his American machine having been stripped by the split in the Irish-American organization and his discovery that his influence in Ireland has been minimised. We are inclined to think the message issued last night is not de Valera's long-awaited manifesto. It is probable a lengthier exposition of the Sinn Fein position will be forthcoming soon. For that reason we do not think his arrest is imminent. It will depend on the tone of this expected pronouncement whether the 'talking President' will join 'Acting President' Griffith." (Arthur Griffith, founder of the Sinn Fein organization, is being held in prison by the British authorities.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The "Irish Republic" has selected Frank P. Walsh, former Chairman of the War Labor Board, as its legal counsellor in the United States, according to a letter written by Mr. Walsh to Secretary of State Colby and made public today.

In describing the purpose of the appointment, Mr. Walsh said in his letter:

"I shall represent the Government of Ireland in all matters in which it may be concerned before the departments of the United States Government, committees of Congress, courts of law, any council or association of nations which may hereafter be established, and any other body or agency which that Government may desire legal representation."

In a statement given out with the letter Mr. Walsh said he would work continuously "for recognition of a republic whose struggles have aroused the world."

REED HITS BRITISH ON IRISH.

Senator Says It Is Our Duty to Uphold the World's Liberty.

United States Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, speaking last night at the annual dinner of the American-Irish Historical Society in Delmonico's, attacked the British Government on the Irish question and charged the United States with the duty of upholding liberty in the world.

The Right Rev. Thomas J. Shahan, President of the Catholic University, Washington, said that in the annals of patriotism the American-Irish rank second to no element of our people.

A drive for funds for relief in Ireland was begun last night at the annual ball of the Irish Counties Association, held in the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory. The proceeds will be turned over to the American Commission for Relief in Ireland. Active support of the movement for Irish Relief was pledged yesterday in behalf of the Knights of Columbus by James A. Flaherty, Supreme Knight.

TO HEAD DIOCESE

A circular letter advocating the election of the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity Church, as Bishop of New York to succeed the late Bishop Charles S. Burch, was received yesterday by members of the Episcopal Diocese of New York. It was from the Rev. John P. Peters, who nominated Dr. Manning at the last special convention. Dr. Peters is rector-emeritus of St. Michael's Church, Amsterdam Avenue and Ninety-ninth Street, having left there in 1919 after serving as rector twenty-six years, to accept a professorship in the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn. Copies of Dr. Peter's original were struck off here.

Dr. Peters, who it is expected will attend the convention here, urges the election of Dr. Manning chiefly on the ground that Dr. Manning has done so much for the reunion of Christendom.

"You will not, I trust, regard it as an impertinence if, being unable to speak to you in person, I write to you my views with regard to the coming election of a Bishop of New York, wrote Dr. Peters.

"We are face to face with a crisis in civilization which requires the united effort of the whole body of Christ, and the body of Christ is divided. The great issue of the moment is the union of the divided Church of Christ. It is not now the question of who can most quickly build the cathedral, who can raise the most money for our various enterprises of benevolences, but who most clearly sees the vision of a united Church of Christ and can most practically lead the way toward the realization of that vision.

"It seems to me that we can best support this great movement and give it effect by choosing as our Bishop the man who more than any other has been the leader in this great work. I am aware that there are other matters to be considered in the choice of a Bishop; that he must be spiritually-minded, of deep and vital piety, and, for a diocese like New York, that he should be a man who has proved himself an able executive in large affairs.

"I think all will agree that in these matters no exception can be taken to Dr. Manning; indeed, that he is conspicuous for the possession of these qualities of sincere religion and practical capacity in administraton. And he has shown himself a leader in the war and more notably in the movement toward unity.

"I wrote thus because I feel strongly that our diocese has now a great opportunity to lead the Church in both England and America in a strong and practical movement for unity."

SAYS FEW AMERICANS SEE OR HEAR RIGHT

Dr. Eliot Tells Educators They Must Combat Too Much Credulity in the People.

BOSTON, Jan. 22.—Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard University, declared today at a conference of New England educators that "very few Americans can hear straight or see straight. It is striking how incompetent they are in these directions." He made a plea for a radical transformation of the educational system to obliterate "herd impulses," and to release individuality.

"There is an extraordinary amount of credulity in the American people in flying rumors and news of the day," Dr. Eliot went on. "That credulity is something to which the attention of the educators must be devoted. It is a new development, highly unpromising, in the last thirty years. We are more and more becoming subject to what I may call 'herd impulses,' gregarious impulses, common emotions."

Dr. Eliot said physical training was the most important movement of the day.

"We are leading hasty, busy—too busy—lives," he continued. "It is a great, threatening blight. It threatens not only the mental health of the people, but the physical health as well. More and more we see men in active business breaking down, and we see the reduced capacity of women for child-bearing, all due to this hurrying, busting life to which we are subjected.

"There are some very important changes needed in the American school. I think it is fundamental that we have new methods of instruction, of discipline and of training. There is all too common an opinion that there is no useful training except unattractive, repulsive training. This is just the opposite of the truth for child or adult."

SIR ROBT. HADFIELD WINS JOHN FRITZ MEDAL

The John Fritz gold medal for notable scientific and industrial achievement has been awarded to Sir Robert Hadfield, inventor of manganese steel and leader of the British steel industry, it was announced here yesterday by the John Fritz Medal Board, representing five leading American engineering societies.

Manganese steel was first described by Sir Robert in 1893, but it did not become generally known until the World War demanded armaments in which toughness was combined with great strength. Manganese steel is non-magnetic, and millions of helmets made of this material were worn during the war by American, British and Belgian soldiers.

In addition to inventing manganese steel, Sir Robert discovered a magnetic steel of high permeability especially suited for use in dynamos and motors.

Award of the medal was authorized unanimously by the sixteen members of the committee representing the national organizations of civil, mechanical, mining, metallurgical and electrical engineers.

The medal was established in 1902 in honor of John Fritz, iron-master of Bethlehem, Pa. Since that time noted men have been honored annually by receiving the medal, including Thomas A. Edison, General George W. Goethals, George Westinghouse, Orville Wright and Alexander Graham Bell.

Herbert Hoover was a member of the board which made the award.

GAUZE FATAL TO SOLDIER.

Surgeons Find 34 Inches in Body a Year After Operation.

FREDERICTON, N. B., Jan. 22.—Thirty-four inches of surgical gauze left in the abdomen of Harry A. Larlee of Perth, a World War veteran, after he had been operated upon at Portland, Ore., a year ago for appendicitis, caused his death here today at the Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment Hospital.

Larlee failed to recover his strength after the operation and, returning to New Brunswick, became a patient at the soldiers' institution. A few days ago surgeons decided upon another operation and discovered the gauze. After it had been removed, Larlee failed to rally.

DIFFICULT QUESTIONS FOR LEAGUE COUNCIL

COMMITTEES TO BE NAMED

One to Consider Covenant Revision Must Be Chosen at Meeting to Be Held Feb. 21.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Jan. 22.—It is understood here that Arthur Balfour is to be placed in charge of the affairs of the British Dominions in connection with the Colonial Office, and that therefore he will not attend either the next or any future meeting of the Council of the League of Nations.

Some important and difficult work is awaiting meeting of the Council on Feb. 21—enough to occupy it for a week or more. It must appoint a committee of international jurists to discuss amendments to the covenant of the League of Nations. Six other committees must be appointed by it to deal with various offices of the League to submit any proposals they may have to make for alterations to the covenant and to do so before the end of March, which will allow President Harding, after assuming office, time to suggest any amendments he may have to present.

THE NEW YORK TIMES Washington dispatch telling of Mr. Harding's intention to invite the powers to send representatives to a conference to discuss the restriction of armaments and the establishment of an international tribunal for the judicial settlement of disputes between nations has been telegraphed to Geneva; but it is pointed out here that the attempt to restrict armaments failed at The Hague Conference of 1899 and that an international arbitration court already exists.

Another question which will come before the Council at the next February meeting is whether a Danzig rifle manufacturer who has received an order from the Peruvian Government for 60,000 rifles can be allowed to execute it. It is feared that the temptation to seize the rifles might prove too strong for the Danzig authorities, and it is suspected that Peru, which is a member of the League, wants them for use against her sister republic of Chile, another League member, with whom she has a dispute.

Another thorny question concerns Lithuania, which is not a full member of the League. According to Article XVIII. of the covenant, all League members must notify the League of every international treaty concluded by them and file a copy of it with the League secretariat. Lithuania has just sent the text of the treaty she has concluded with Soviet Russia concerning Lithuanian territory. By this treaty with which Russia is at war to be quartered in Lithuanian territory.

Some French and some Polish troops are still in Vilna, and France considers herself at war with Russia. Consequently, if this treaty between Lithuania and Russia is registered with the League of Nations, the League must insist on these French and Polish troops being withdrawn from Vilna, and, moreover, would be unable to send any other allied troops to supervise the approaching plebiscite at Vilna.

The League can hardly refuse in general to register Lithuania's treaties with foreign powers; but it is understood that in this case Lithuania has not sent the full text of her treaty with Russia, and therefore this particular treaty probably will not be registered.

It is clear that the League Council meeting next month will have to deal with international questions alike delicate and difficult.

DEFENDS THE LEAGUE.

Marburg Says We Might Better Stay Out Than to Wreck Plan.

Theodore Marburg of Baltimore, Chairman of the committee on Foreign Organization of the League to Enforce Peace, spoke at the Cooper Union last night on the League of Nations, under the auspices of the Board of Education. He declared that damaging as was our absence from the League, it would be far better that the United States should remain outside of it for the time being—the next four years—than couple of our entry with conditions which would undermine the effectiveness of the League.

Mr. Marburg said that all who had the welfare of Germany at heart, those who would have Ireland enjoy greater self-government and those whose hearts bleed at the systematic slaughter of Jews in Eastern Europe should be for the League of Nations.

OF 'WILD' COUPLE'S GIRL

LAUREL, Miss., Jan. 22.—Surrounded by the comforts of civilization, Albert Parson, the "wild man" of the Leaf River Bottoms, his 58-year-old "wife," whom he says he caught twenty-three ago in a bear trap, and the 2-year-old girl, all of whom strayed into the village of Lux yesterday like people from another age, tonight are as much a mystery to the authorities as when they were first discovered.

Interest centres in the identity of the child. The authorities feel certain she is not the child of the couple who, although in perfect health, show signs of years of primitive living and constant battling with the forces of nature. The child was naked when discovered. Parsons maintains he owns the strip of land and the shack which formed their home. Although they lived principally on roots, wild fruits, and game which they trapped, there was evidence of an effort to farm with the aid of a blind horse, which Parson said he had "captured."

Ambassador Berenberg's Rejoinder to Johnson's Joke at Rome Dinner.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 22.—The Tage Blatt's Rome correspondent reports that when the German Ambassador, von Beveriberg, at a recent dinner at the Quirinal Palace, was introduced to the American Ambassador, Robert Underwood Johnson, the latter remarked jokingly:

"We are still at war, sir, and I carry a revolver to meet all emergencies."

Von Berenberg replied:

"I am sorry I cannot serve you, because we have been completely disarmed."

REPORTED IN BERLIN

Rote Fahne Says Prussian and Bavarian Chiefs Plan March Rising.

LABOR RIOTS TO BE FORCED

Then, Says Communist Organ, Ludendorff Counts on Army and Military Police.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 22.—The Rote Fahne this morning reports the discovery of a plot by which the recently organized Prussian "King's Party," in conjunction with the Bavarian "King's Party" and the "Orgesch," this coming March hopes to establish a reactionary dictatorship.

The communist organ prints, partly in facsimile, elaborate documents detailing the plans, and signed by Ludendorff, Escherich, Reventlow and Viztthum, which express confidence that this revolt can not fail because the support of the history circular letter signed by von Witkowski, the business manager of the King's Party, "the coming March will again bring riots by the unemployed; but, if not, our friends must not hesitate to provoke them. Then our time for a general rising will have come, and in Berlin all the Government buildings will be seized."

Other documents detail the armament methods in operation and name the recruiting centres for many districts throughout Germany.

Although these documents have all the appearance of genuineness, their publication by the Rote Fahne somewhat detracts from the credibility of the story. Only recently the reactionary press revealed alleged communist conspiracies with equally elaborate detail.

If these fanatical and fantastic plans of both the Right and the Left are usually done for almost before they are begun, it is due rather to the good sense of the German masses, which are tired of any kind of revolt, than to the efficiency of the authorities—least of all the German War Office, which under Minister Geessler and General von Seekt has become an asylum for reaction and junkerdom. What may one expect when officers wearing republican uniforms make speeches glorifying William II. and demand frantically that unwilling bands play the Prussian royal hymn, as THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent heard them doing in various fashionable restaurants on the night of Jan. 18?

YIELDED BY GERMANY

DYESTUFFS COME NEXT

Largest Share for France, Belgium Next and Italy Third—Dyestuffs and Lorries Allotted to Us.

PARIS, Jan. 22 (Associated Press).—A detailed list of the various deliveries made by Germany to the Allies in execution of the Treaty of Versailles during the first year it was in force has just been issued by the Reparations Commission. The deliveries were made on the reparations account up to Dec. 31. The chief item is coal, amounting in all to 17,818,840 tons. Next in importance on the list are dyestuffs, of which 10,787,827 kilos were delivered.

Other deliveries were: Steamers, sailing vessels and fishing boats, 2,054,729 tons; inland navigation materials, 38,730 tons; livestock, 360,176 head; seed, 6,802,588 kilos; ammonium sulphate, 19,000 tons; materials, 140,000 tons; agricultural machinery, 151,825.

In addition to the deliveries placed to her credit, Article 238 of the treaty provides that Germany shall effect restitution of objects of every nature and securities and cash taken away, seized or sequestrated.

The records for the year show the following deliveries under this article: To France, agricultural machinery, 14,546 machines; industrial machinery, 184,161 tons; locomotives, 15; trucks, 6,631.

To Belgium: Agricultural machinery, 14 machines; industrial machinery, 27,946 tons; locomotives, 394; trucks, 13,897.

There has also been restoration in other things, including certain securities and a quantity of furniture and objects of art, but no figures are given.

The list contains various cables which have been delivered and which have not yet been allocated by the expert conference at Washington, to which the work was intrusted. In all there are seventeen cables in various parts of the world.

The commission points out that while valuations have been reached on most of these, certain questions of principle remain undetermined. It is also explained that the figures recently published of German payments against the 20,000,000,000 gold marks under Article 235 of the treaty are much greater than the real figures.

The allocation by the Reparations Commission of Germany's deliveries shows that France received the largest share, with Belgium second and Italy third. The United States appears on the list with two items—dyestuffs, of which she received 1,300,143 kilos, and lorries, numbering 1,314.

Great Britain received 1,477,839 gross tons of shipping and 3,113,802 kilos of dyestuffs; Italy, 1,760,810; Belgium, 1,180,375; Japan, 200,062.

The only other allocations to Japan were 5,835 kilos of pharmaceutical products and 23,676 gross tons of shipping.

France and Belgium shared all livestock deliveries, the former receiving 207,949 head and the latter 152,233.

With the exception of 200 kilos to Italy, France and Belgium also received all the seed, France getting 6,591,810 kilos and Belgium 301,078 kilos. France also obtained 100,982 agricultural machines and tools, and Belgium 21,573, constituting the total delivered. France received 2,653 locomotives, and Belgium 1,016. The 19,000 tons of ammonium sulphate went to France.

BERLIN, Jan. 21.—Negotiations will be entered into within the next few days in all probability between Herr Bergmann, German delegate to the Reparations Commission, and representatives of the Entente regarding reparation payments in kind by Germany, it was semi-officially stated today.

LOST WITH 56 MEN

K-5 Submerges 100 Miles Off Land's End and Fails to Return to Surface.

AT PRACTICE WITH OTHERS

Cause of Accident Not Known—Fourth Vessel of This Class to Meet With Disaster.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—British submarine K-5, Commander John A Gaines, was lost with all hands Thursday at the approaches to the English Channel, the Admiralty announced this afternoon.

on board.

The disaster, the Admiralty announcement states, occurred 100 miles off Land's End while the K-5 was practising with four other submarines of the "K" class. She submerged and never rose to the surface again. The cause of the accident is not known.

The four other "K" boats have been ordered to proceed to Vigo, Spain, where an inquiry is to be held.

The submarine flotilla, formed part of the Atlantic fleet which left early in the week for a special cruise to Spanish ports and Gibraltar. The submarines were proceeding down the Channel from Portsmouth when they encountered a gale and took refuge in Tor Bay, on the Devonshire coast, until Wednesday.

The "K" class of submarines is the latest type of British submersibles, the vessels being 338 feet in length, with a surface speed of 24 knots and a speed submerged of nine knots. They carry eight torpedo tubes, one four-inch gun and one three-inch gun.

Naval records show three other submarines of the "K" class as having going her trials. She was raised to the surface, but the salvaging craft was forced by heavy weather to cast off from her. She was again raised, however, and ultimately repaired, being renumbered K-22.

These craft are known as "submarine cruisers," and it is claimed by British naval writers that they were in service before any of the German cruising submarines had even been begun.

POLICE GUARD RESTAURANTS

Montreal Authorities Hold Five Men for Fomenting Trouble.

MONTREAL, Jan. 22.—Police guarding restaurants here in efforts to prevent repetition of raids by unemployed former service men, similar to those of yesterday, when they stormed several places in efforts to obtain free meals, held five men today, suspected of fomenting trouble among the unemployed.

Every restaurant which it was thought likely the men might visit was under guard today.

"Tell the Public Your Policy"

—SAID A PATRON of ours last Thursday. She had just completed the outfitting of her three children, and had been impressed with the lowered price of every garment purchased. How had we accomplished this price re-adjustment, she asked, when many other stores had not?

So we told her

AS EARLY AS LAST MARCH we foresaw the radical re-adjustment in wholesale prices. We claim no credit for this—any keen merchant must have seen as much. The point is that we began at once what some stores postponed.

We cut our prices

AND NOT IN ONE DEPARTMENT ONLY.— this courageous policy was pursued throughout the store. No public announcement of the re-adjustment was made—but the news spread, and month after month, our patrons gave us the largest business we have ever enjoyed.

AND IN OCTOBER — when wholesale prices did tumble — we were able to give our customers full benefit of the drop.

TODAY WE SAY WITH CONFIDENCE in our judgment as merchants, and mindful of our responsibility to the public, that it is both wise and safe to

EXPECTED TO LIMIT LOCKWOOD INQUIRY

Albany Leaders Now Disposed to Confine Committee's Work to Housing Conditions.

FEAR UNTERMYER METHODS

Legislators Hold It Unwise to Expose Banks and Insurance Companies to Blanket Investigation.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 22.—Unless the plans of the legislative leaders undergo a radical change over the week end there will be no legislative grant of power to enable the Lockwood committee, investigating housing conditions in New York City, to inquire more deeply into the affairs of banks and insurance companies than is regarded as necessary to determine whether these institutions can be held culpably responsible for the shortage of housing facilities or any part of it.

When Samuel Untermyer, chief counsel for the committee, appeared before the Senate Finance and Assembly Ways and Means Committees this week he demanded of the Legislature authorization for a blanket investigation of the financial operations of these institutions, and urged that unless such powers were granted to his committee the inquiry could not be carried on beyond its present stage with any benefit to the public. He added that the most important work of the committee lay ahead of it—that of opening new channels through which builders may obtain mortgage loans to enable them to resume construction work.

The legislative leaders were not favorably inclined toward the Untermyer program before the hearing, and it does not appear now that the arguments of the counsel changed their minds.

There was no opposition openly voiced at the hearing, though the attitude of the lawmakers was made apparent by what verged on heckling of the lawyer. But there is opposition of the most persistent kind, although it has not come out into the open, and it is due to fear of Mr. Untermyer and his methods as much as of his program. Mr. Untermyer seemed to sense this, for he prefaced his arguments with an elaborate disavowal of any intent to cause ructions in the financial world.

One of the grounds advanced by those who object to this broad grant of powers is that the mere action of the Legislature in authorizing such an inquiry would tend to shake public confidence in the stability of these institutions and possibly bring about conditions under which quickly all securities which, under present market conditions, hardly would bring the money that was invested in them, with consequent danger of serious losses and a possible upheaval.

There will be no opposition in the Legislature to reporting the Lockwood resolution with amendments that would confine the inquiry to what might be deemed necessary to devise legislative measures which would bring the banks and insurance companies more actively into the building loan market, now that building materials and labor have come down to a level where building of tenements and dwellings again can be undertaken with profit.

PREACHERS HIT BLUE LAWS.

200 Seventh-Day Adventists Condemn Strict Sunday Measures.

A resolution opposing Blue Law legislation was adopted yesterday by almost 200 Seventh-Day Adventist clergymen meeting in the Seventh-Day Adventist Temple, Lenox Avenue and 120th Street. The meeting recorded itself as in opposition to any measure, "blue or otherwise," designed to restrict Sunday recreation.

"Since Sunday is a religious day," said Charles S. Longacre, Executive Secretary of the Religious Liberty Association, "it is impossible to draft a law compelling its observance that is not a religious law. Such laws not only are contrary to the principles of the Constitution, by which they are forbidden, but to the very principles of Christianity, for which their advocates of the clergy profess to stand."

"Jesus Himself opposed the blue law movement of His day and declared 'The Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath,'" said the Rev. Dr. John R. Trexler in addressing the convention of the Lutheran Leagues of New York, held in the Lutheran Church of the Advent, Broadway and Ninety-third Street. Dr. Trexler is pastor of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Brooklyn.

RESERVES CALLED AT FIRE.

Hold Back Theatregoers and Stop Panic in Dancing Places.

Reserves from the West Forty-seventh Street Station, under command of Captain McGrath, were called last night to hold back the crowd of theatregoers who halted to see a smoky fire subdued in the store of Mme. Kalb, 728 Seventh Avenue, near Forty-eighth Street. The fire fighters, directed by Battalion Chief Roach, quickly quenched the flames but the smoke, in big clouds, drifted through the street, just as the theatres began to empty.

Near the blazing millinery shop are two dining and dancing places. In addition to holding in check the crowds in the streets, the reserves entered the restaurants, where the smoke was making some of the guests a bit panicky, and reassured them.

POULTRY HELD OF TO RAISE PRICES

Profiteering by Wholesalers Reported to District Attorney by Commissioner O'Malley.

70 CARS TIED UP IN JERSEY

Artificial Scarcity Created, Prices Put Up—Retailers and Consumers Complain.

Another alleged combination for profiteering in wholesale poultry was reported to the District Attorney yesterday by Commissioner of Markets E. J. O'Malley, who has had one of his Deputies, Mrs. Louise R. Welzmiller, engaged for several weeks in an investigation of the situation based on complaints from some retailers and many consumers.

Deputy Welzmiller told Chief Assistant District Attorney Banton that the plan of the combination was to raise and keep up market prices by creating an artificial scarcity. To this end, she said, poultry was kept standing in freight cars at the New Jersey terminals and only small quantites released from time to time for the New York markets.

Mrs. Welzmiller told of complaints from retailers relating to prices and their difficulties in getting proper supplies of poultry, even when they sent agents to the terminals and offered the prices asked. Included in the lists of prices submitted was the wholesale rate for geese, showing advances within a few weeks from 30 to 33 cents a pound.

Commissioner O'Malley said he had found seventy cars at the Jersey terminals. The demand in the market in comparison with the supply, he said, would ordinarily lower prices at this season if it were not for the combination to withhold the normal supply.

The expenses of a single carload of poultry, including demurrage to the time of final delivery to the retailers, it was said, has averaged as much as $800. The main poultry yards are on the border line between Hoboken and Jersey City, at the Lackawanna Railroad terminal. It is said the Lackawanna brings 90 per cent. of the poultry delivered to this market.

Dartmouth Students Give $22,050.

HANOVER, N. H., Jan. 22.—Final figures given out tonight show that Dartmouth undergraduates have subscribed $22,050 toward the fund for the new athletic field to be constructed as a memorial to Dartmouth students killed in the World War. This is $6,050 more than the quota assigned. The alumni plan to raise the rest of the $360,000 fund.

Girl's Screams After Drinking Iodine Startle Holy Trinity Parishioners.

Parishioners of Holy Trinity Church, 205 West Eighty-second Street, who had gone to confession last evening at 8 o'clock, were startled by the screams of a young woman who fell to the floor just as she stepped through the door from the vestibule. Several persons, including the priests, ran to her aid.

"I have swallowed iodine," she gasped.

One of the parishioners ran to the office of Dr. Clarence J. D'Alton, 203 West Eighty-first Street, and returned with the physician. He administered first aid and an ambulance was summoned from Knickerbocker Hospital. The young woman said she was Mary Negry, 22 years, of 208 West Sixty-seventh Street. She refused to tell why she had drunk poison. She was removed to the hospital, where it was reported that her condition was not serious.

SHIPPED TO KEMAL

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The Sunday Times understands that a position of some difficulty has arisen between the French Government and French manufacturers of munitions, and that allied interests in the Near East have been badly compromised by some traders shipping munitions to Mustapha Kemal, who is fighting the Greeks.

This has given rise to misunderstandings and forebodings on the part of British commercial firms which are interested in Greek trade.

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.
CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 22.—Despite denials by the Greeks, it becomes more evident every day that Kemal's Turkish Nationalist forces are inflicting heavy losses on the Greeks. Many wounded soldiers are being sent to Rodosto.

According to the Nationalists' communiqué, their military activities have been transferred from Brussa toward Kirmasti and Inonu. This move is interpreted as an attempt to cut communications with Panderma and encircle the Greeks on the Brussa front.

The Nationalists report the occupation of Bernav, near the Smyrna front. Reserves from Kastimouni, Sivas, Trebizond and Erzerum have been ordered to the front.

PENNSYLVANIA CUTS PRICES.

223 Food Items Reduced 15 to 25 Per Cent. in Statler Hotel.

The Hotel Pennsylvania yesterday announced an average cut of 15 per cent. in its prices. The downward shading includes 223 items on the menu. E. M. Statler, proprietor of the hotel, said the reduction was as high as 25 per cent. on some articles and affected everything from "soup to nuts."

The first reductions in the Pennsylvania were made on Nov. 4 on club and table d'hote meals. They apply in other Statler Hotels in Buffalo, Cleveland, St. Louis and Detroit.

UPPER SILESIA MINES

Syndicate Is Negotiating With Germans and 75,000,000 Marks Is Offered for One Colliery.

PLESS, Upper Silesia, Jan. 22.—A syndicate of American capitalists is negotiating for an opening for investments in Upper Silesian coal mines and, according to the German owners, have offered 75,000,000 marks for one mine at present in operation and for concessions looking to the development of two others. In answer to the proposals of the syndicate the Germans have agreed to accept on condition that the mines revert to the principality of Pless after ten years. The negotiations are still pending. The syndicate's offer was made through a Colonel attached to the American Mission in Vienna.

At present there is no American or French capital invested in Upper Silesia, but there are some Belgian and British investments. The Germans are said to be anxious to close the deal with the Americans, believing it will tend toward stabilization of the economic situation.

It is understood in Interallied Commission circles that the Oppeln voting will take place about the middle of March.

Practically all property of any value in this district is owned by the Prince of Pless.

FOR PRIVATE TROLLEY LINES

Commerce Referendum 1,657 to 124 Against Public Ownership.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—A vote of 1,657 to 24 in favor of private ownership and operation of street railway lines is recorded in a referendum proposition submitted to its members by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The record of the voting on eight propositions dealing with street car problems, made public today, showed totals of 1,480 to 167 in favor of relieving the car lines of "all burdens unrelated to the service performed."

Only one vote was cast against the suggestion that car companies should have "resident responsible executives" and make available to the public "facts as to the results of operation." The vote in favor of approaching trolley problems on the basis of "present and future needs of the community" was unanimous.

STATE WILL TAKE UP WHITMAN INQUIRY

office investigated. That cannot be done very well by a subordinate of his.

In appointing Mr. Whitman, District Attorney Swann specifically told the ex-Governor to investigate anything wrong in the District Attorney's office if he found anything wrong. In telling of the extent of his powers on the day of his appointment Mr. Whitman said, with a smile:

"Why, I might even prosecute Judge Swann."

In spite of this, the Assemblyman thought that Mr. Whitman would find it awkward to dig into the official acts of his superiors. He was of the opinion also that the investigation of the Police Department alone would take all his time and means.

"I think the public wants a public investigation of all departments of the city," said Mr. Steinberg, "and I believe that in three or four weeks a legislative committee will have such an investigation started.

Wants Testimony Made Public.

"Whatever the Grand Jury does is done in secret. It indicts for certain crimes, but does not disclose conditions or give the people a picture of what is going on beneath the surface in the city government. Testimony given in public before a committee is reproductive. A man who reads the testimony of one witness says, 'I know that to be a lie,' and he goes before the committee to prove it, or else he knows more about the subject and writes to tell the committee where it can get its information.

"Besides that, a committee can take testimony about abuses, negligence and questionable acts of all kinds which do not concern a Grand Jury seeking only indictable offenses. But a legislative committee wants to expose everything that can be exposed and corrected.

"Mr. Whitman's investigation has been a good thing, as it will furnish plenty of materials to the committee to start with. When Senator Robinson and I issued our statement we had in mind the gratuity graft and the private detective agency system among other things. Those are old and well-known abuses, although they have been growing rapidly of late.

"The Police Department is only one of several that we have in mind. There are evidences of bad breakdowns in several places in the City Government. Some departments are rendering only a fraction of the service they should, but are eating up all their appropriations. The people know from what they see on the surface that there is need for a vigorous and far-reaching investigation.

Mr. Whitman stayed at home most of the day yesterday because of a severe cold. His assistants are preparing the cases of alleged "automobile graft" to present before the Grand Jury next week.

Several indictments are expected, probably on Monday, and the week's developments are said to be likely to overshadow in interest those of the first two weeks. Mr. Whitman sent yesterday to the Nassau County authorities for their evidence relating to the charge that New York policemen have connived at automobile thefts and later shared rewards with the thieves.

District Attorney Swann yesterday directed a member of his staff to look up the law bearing on the offer of Edward Hatch Jr. of $20,000 to defray the expenses of the Whitman investigation, should the Board of Estimate and the Board of Aldermen refuse to grant that sum or delay indefinitely the granting of it.

Legal Question Raised.

The question raised was whether the acceptance of this gift would not violate Section 1826 of the Penal Code, the very law under which Police Captains Bailey and Du Bois were indicted last week for accepting gratuities.

While there was some doubt as to whether the gift could be accepted outright by a man carrying an official appointment, as Mr. Whitman is, it was said that the gift could be used for salaries and expenses of Mr. Whitman's associates, provided Mr. Whitman was not personally the disburser. William Chilvers, Frederick J. Groehl and James E. King, the three lawyers unofficially helping Mr. Whitman, have no legal status and are technically personal counsel to Mr. Whitman. Their right to accept payment of salaries or expenses by private individuals is said to be clear.

Mr. Hatch made the following statement yesterday:

"My motive in giving Mr. Whitman my check was entirely civic. I have no grudge of any kind against the police, but the department is under a cloud, the fair name of this wonderful city is besmirched and an investigation is necessary to reach a basis for cleaning house.

"I think the police will welcome an investigation, as some very rough statements have been made about that body of men and conditions would seem to justify the talk of maladministration.

"Mr. Whitman did not ask me for any contribution. I simply walked into his office and tendered him the check when I understood the city authorities were reluctant to make an appropriation for the purpose of continuing his investigation. I believe it quite necessary for the citizens to know the truth regarding the department and the matters under investigation.

"I have full confidence in Mr. Whitman to conduct the investigation, because in other instances he has stood by to protect the wealth of the citizens of New York when it would have been to his political interest not to do so, but to accommodate the politicians who designed to poison the water supply of New York City by the erection of hospitals in the Croton watershed."

It happens in Wall Street.
It happens in Fifth Avenue.
It happens the world over.
Prices cannot go down forever.

NEW LABOR BILLS STIR WOMEN'S CLUBS

Protests to Be Made Against Features of Codification Pending in Legislature.

FEARS FOR CIVIL SERVICE

Too Much Power Given to Industrial Commissioner in Reorganization, Opponents Say.

The proposed amendments to bills now before the Legislature for the codification and revision of the labor laws are being discussed by the Woman's City Club and other organizations in this city, and protests against the acceptance of some of the amendments are being considered.

One of the proposals that has caused alarm among the women is that some of the places in the reorganized Industrial Commission would not come under the civil service regulations, and officers and employes of the Department of Labor would hold their offices only at the pleasure of the Industrial Commissioner.

Under the proposed laws, referees would be appointed by the Industrial Commissioner to consider claims made under the Workmen's Compensation law. The referee's decisions are to stand unless the Industrial Board overrules them.

It would be the duty of the Industrial Commissioner to assume charge of the administration of all other branches of the Workmen's Compensation law, to investigate conditions of women in industry, to inquire into the causes of labor disturbances; to propose to the industrial boards changes in their rules of operation, and to cause inspections to be made of factory buildings.

Opponents of the new measure think that it would take off many of the restrictions now operating to remove fire hazards in factories. They think also that under the proposed new system buildings might become unsanitary, and that conditions endangering the lives and health of both men and women workers might prevail.

The new Industrial Commissioner who would head this Labor Department would receive $8,000 a year and would be appointed by the Governor; the three members of the Industrial Board, all appointive, would receive $8,000 a year, and a Deputy Commissioner would receive $7,500 a year. The deputy would be appointed by the Commissioner, and could be removed by him at any time. The Commissioner would hold office for four years, and the members of the Industrial Board for six.

Some of the women opponents also contend that the Industrial Commissioner would have too much power in the disbursement of the funds of his office. They say that under the proposed amendments the accounting for expenditures would not be sufficiently strict.

At a meeting of the Woman's City Club yesterday it was decided to formulate protests this week, and the proposed amendments also are being placed before representatives of the following organizations: National Consumers' League, Women's American Association for Labor Legislation, and the National League for Women Voters. The State Federation of Labor also is studying the bills.

SEEKS WIFE'S PROPERTY.

William S. Gill Says She Has Taken Name of Mrs. Raymond Bennett.

Affidavits submitted to Supreme Court Justice Burr yesterday on an application by William Sherman Gill of 34 Gramercy Park for permission to serve papers on Mrs. Evelyn Farriss Gill by publication against her for the conversion of personal property alleged to be worth about $10,000, by mailing them to her former residence at the Hotel Brooklaire, allege that the defendant, Mrs. Evelyn Farriss Gill, is now making her home in Chattanooga, Tenn., and does not intend to return here.

Mr. Gill, who has attached a large amount of his wife's property, says she left the State to defraud her creditors. The affidavit concluded:

"The defendant now claims to be the wife of Raymond Bennett, whom she married while the plaintiff was abroad."

Justice Burr granted permission to serve the papers by mail.

structed how to make corn pone, corn bread, Indian pudding, corn cakes and other delights of the American table. Southern cooks were sent abroad to make corn pone and other dishes "a la Southern style."

But the people held to rye bread, and there were very few converted by American methods.

Ray D. Henkle, General Secretary of the American Committee for the China Famine Fund, said yesterday that he had received cable dispatches from representatives in Peking that "11,000,000 people are absolutely without food, and that altogether 40,000,000 are very seriously affected by famine." He said that reports showed that between 10,000 and 15,000 persons were dying daily.

"For the first time in national philanthropic efforts the churches are lined up solidly together to prosecute the appeal for China," he added. "Already every Protestant church, regardless of denomination, has wholeheartedly thrown itself into the work of raising relief funds. The trade organizations are actively co-operating and there is a tremendously strong volunteer organization developing in every part of the country."

ONLY ONE MEAL A DAY FOR GALICIAN CHILDREN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—American Relief Administration officials here have received from their inspectors detailed information of terrible conditions prevailing in Western Galicia. Ninety thousand children, 65,000 of them Christian and 25,000 Jewish, receive a daily meal which the American organization furnishes. It is intended to be only a supplementary ration, but in a very great percentage of cases it is absolutely the only food the children have.

Thus, in Winica the children get nothing else, and for the entire district in which the town is situated, less than half have other supplies, and these consist of only a small amount of plain boiled potatoes, without milk or fats. Disease is widespread, and typhus, scarletina, dysentery and spotted fever are rampant in more than half of the districts in which the American kitchens are operating. In the Norytarg district Asiatic cholera has made its appearance, and the chance the children have of resisting it may be gathered from the fact that 90 per cent. of them depend entirely upon the American kitchens.

The gratitude of the people toward the American relief is indicated by a great meeting of thanksgiving which was held Jan. 10 at Brezany, a town sixty miles southeast of Lemberg. One hundred and seventy thousand people inhabit the district, most of which was ravaged during the German and Russian operations, and again during the Polish and Ukrainian War. The people began the work of reconstruction only to have it wiped out by the Bolshevist invasion of 1920.

At this meeting a resolution was adopted, thanking the American people through Herbert Hoover for their great and generous work of relief. The occasion for this was the announcement of increased rations for the city and district. Twenty thousand marks was collected to defray the cost of food distribution.

PLAN 30 RELIEF LUNCHEONS.

Women to Be Busy This Week Aiding European Fund.

Mrs. Willard Straight, Chairman of the Woman's Emergency Committee of the European Relief Council, announced yesterday that the collections for the European relief fund ranged from $8,246 from the New York County Chapter of the American Red Cross to $1.10 from a club of six-year-old children in Teyabee House. Other contributions include:

Barnard College, $5,675; Parents' League of New York, $8,400; Bryn Mawr Club of New York, $1,000; Smith College Club, $2,170; Manhattan Trade School teachers and pupils, $720; Hunter College Alumnae, $300; Art Workers' Club, $375; Employes of Franklin Simon & Co., more than $100; French Evangelical Home, $23, and National Opera Club, $570.

A plan for an endless chain of luncheons to be given by women of society in their own homes has been inaugurated by Mrs. J. Borden Harriman and Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt Sr., to swell contributions to the fund for starving children.

More than thirty such luncheons are scheduled for this week. The hostesses include: Mrs. Herman Duryea, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt 2d, Mrs. Frank Gray Griswold, Mrs. Mortimer Schiff, Mrs. Walter Maynard, Mrs. Irving Brokaw, Mrs. Henry Clews, Mrs. James A. Burden, Mrs. Charles Scott, Miss Elsie de Wolfe, Mrs. Leroy Edgar, Mrs. Charles Sabin, Mrs. George Draper, Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mrs. Adrian Iselin, Mrs. Charles B. Alexander, Mrs. Walter Rosen and Miss Katherine Porter.

SAXONIA HURRIES AWAY.

Sails Again After Leaving 800 Aliens in Camp on Pier.

The Cunarder Saxonia sailed at 8:15 o'clock last night for Halifax, Plymouth, Cherbourg and Hamburg with 185 cabin and 500 steerage passengers, and will pick up as many more at the Nova Scotian port.

She arrived here on Friday morning, and as the 800 steerage passengers could not be accommodated at Ellis Island they were landed yesterday afternoon on Pier 53, which was converted into a camp. Well heated and with camp bedsteads, it was made far more comfortable than the immigrants' camp outside the port of Danzig.

The catering for the marooned aliens will be done by a local firm until they are removed to Ellis Island. The majority are Italians and the remainder Poles, Greeks, Czechoslovaks and Irish.

FEEDS JEWISH IMMIGRANTS.

American Committee Aids 500 Held Up at Danzig on Way Here.

DANZIG, Jan. 22 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—The Joint Distribution Committee for American Jewish Relief has opened a kitchen here which is daily distributing 500 meals to Jewish emigrants on their way to the United States. The committee was forced to take this step in order to save Jewish emigrants from Lithuania and Ukrainia, who are being delayed here indefinitely.

The emigrants cannot proceed to the United States because of the refusal of the American Consul to recognize Lithuanian or White Russian passports, and the emigrants are forced to wait until special permission is obtained from Washington in each individual case.

JEWS WANT SUNDAY WORK.

Also Ask Polish Government for Representation on Tax Commission.

WARSAW, Jan. 21 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Permission for the Jews of Poland to trade and work on Sunday was asked of the Government by a delegation of the local Jewish merchants' association, which called on the Finance Minister Thursday.

It also requested that the Jews be given representation on the local taxation commission. The Finance Minister promised to take the requests under consideration.

DIES ON WAY TO PLENTY.

Privations Endured in Europe Cause Death of Emigrant Child.

Special to The New York Times.

SANDUSKY, Ohio, Jan. 22.—Flight from the hunger and misery of Central Europe, begun Dec. 18, ended for Katherine Rujsic, 7, in this city late last night. The child, bound for Gary, Indiana, where a brother was waiting for her, died as she was being carried into a hospital after being taken from a New York Central train.

Hospital physicians say death was the result of privation. According to countrymen accompanying her, the child was made worse by being detained at Ellis Island nearly a week.

NO PARIS PLOT WARNING.

But London Raids Were Prompted by Fear of Attack on Premier.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The Paris police have not informed Scotland Yard that they have any special reason to anticipate a Sinn Fein attack on Lloyd George during the Premier's conference. Special precautions have, as a matter of fact, been taken here to protect Lloyd George and other prominent Ministers from Sinn Fein extremists for the last couple of months.

The police received only last week information that seemed to show that a party of gunmen was coming from Ireland to make an attempt on the Premier. This led to a series of raids on Wednesday night on the London branches of the Irish Self-Determination League and other similar organizations, but THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent learns that nothing was captured to bear out the report.

Why should I choose the city burial ground
Where roads, like creeping serpents, will encroach
And ruthlessly disturb my sleep profound
While Commerce mocks me in my mute reproach.

So many New York City cemeteries have been totally destroyed or encroached upon, that people today choose a cemetery outside the city and having strong natural barriers. Only in this way can they be sure of permanence and lasting security.

CATCH 23 WOMEN IN FLOATING POOLROOM

Seven Men Also Arrested in Raid on West 129th Street Apartment House.

HUSBAND A COMPLAINANT

Wife's Passion for Betting on Race Horses Nearly Wiped Out Bank Account.

Twenty-three women and seven men were arrested at a o'clock yesterday afternoon in a raid by Inspector Calahane on an apartment on the fourth floor of a house in West 129th Street, alleged to be the temporary quarters of a "floating poolroom."

The women were all well dressed and most of them of middle age. Two or three were past sixty.

The raid followed complaints that the apartment had for several days been frequented by crowds of women who came in and out of the place talking about race horses. One of the complainants was said to be the husband of a woman who had carried a passion for betting on tedious nurses to the point of wiping out a large bank account.

After watching the place for some time, the detectives came to the conclusion that the apartment house had been invaded by a "floating poolroom." The "floating" poolroom or gambling resort is a device much in use among gamblers now for foiling detectives.

Instead of taking up a permanent residence, which, in course of time is bound to become known as a gambling house, the gambler or poolroom proprietor rents a house or apartment for three days at a time, holds a few sessions there, packs his paraphernalia in a moving van and moves off to a new address for another short stay.

While the resort keeps in constant motion, the clients of the gambler keep in touch with the changes of address. Convinced that the resort patronized by the women was of this type, Inspector Calahane and detectives Miller and Matthews walked into the building following several women and entered the elevator with them. The women got off at the fourth floor. The policemen went up to the fifth floor and walked rapidly over a flight and arrived in the hall just as the door was being opened to admit the women.

As they reached the apartment, announced Inspector Calahane, who forced his way in with several of the detectives. There were several persons present. Inspector was swiftly informed that he was a gentleman and that he was naturally on literary conversation, current topics, tea and cake.

According to the detectives the library consisted of ten racing charts. They said that several of the women, who hastily left upon the raid, quickly made this evidence inaccessible by tearing it with their hands.

Some of the women were stopped and turned back when they were trying to escape by the fire escape. Two or three were reported to have hidden in other rooms. Detectives Connolly and Potter, running up the stairs after the main raiding party had moved up by the elevator, jumped in collecting excited and twittering prisoners and escorting them downstairs to the police wagon.

Mrs. Louise Miller, who owns the apartment, was arrested on the charge of keeping a gambling house. Mrs. Mary Anderson, charged with renting the place as a temporary anchorage for the "floating poolroom," was accused of aiding and abetting gambling.

A man calling himself Kenneth Lee, a salesman, of 810 Market Street, was charged with receiving and recording bets. The others were all charged with disorderly conduct. Their cases were taken to the West 123d Street station, where they gave bail and afterward their cases were not taken seriously by the police.

Magistrate Bernard J. Douras, in the Night Court, after hearing the testimony of Detective Miller, discharged the twenty-seven men and women charged with disorderly conduct. Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Anderson and Lee were released on bail from the police station.

SAYS HE HAS FOUND CUT STRADIVARIUS'S SECRET

By Wireless to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Jan. 22.—A Hamburg merchant, Heinrich Ohlhaver, says he has invented a process by which he can turn any ordinary violin, if delivered to him directly from the maker's hands and before it is varnished, into a veritable Stradivarius. Arthur Nikisch and other celebrated musicians who have tried an instrument to which Herr Ohlhaver's process has been applied say that they could not tell the difference between it and a genuine Stradivarius.

On Feb. 7 Herr Ohlhaver's invention will have another test before an audience of famous musicians, composers and critics in Beethoven Hall, Berlin, where experts chosen by the audience will play the instrument and their own of the genuine Stradivarius maker alternately.

The same high qualities were claimed once before for violins constructed on the so-called Grossmann method, but they generally lost their virtues after six months' use. Ohlhaver's instruments, however, are said to have improved with age.

The inventor refuses to reveal his secret, but it is surmised that it is merely an improvement of the violin bridge and the method of stringing, combined with a new way of varnishing. Ohlhaver himself says: "It is as easy as the egg trick of Columbus," and may be applied to the violoncello or double bass with equal success. Although Herr Ohlhaver will treat any instrument fresh from the factory, he prefers stoutly built frames.

What may prejudice sober-minded persons against his invention is the fact that he is a spiritualist and asserts that the ghost of Stradivarius appeared to him and told him his secret. But whether they have a supernatural origin or not, those who have heard his instruments unanimously vote them of the highest quality.

MILK DRIVERS LOSE.

Arbitration Board Finds Against Employes, as Living Is Cheaper.

The 12,000 milk drivers and other employes of the milk distributing companies in the metropolitan district lost their fight for an increase in wages of $10 a week, through a decision rendered yesterday by Federal Judge Edwin L. Garvin, who acted as impartial chairman of the Board of Arbitration. Judge Garvin held that the drivers were not entitled to an increase when the tendency is toward a reduction in wages and the cost of living. The other members of the board concurred.

Further decrease in the cost of living is promised, the decision pointed out, and in view of this the board would not be justified in taking steps which would increase the price of milk.

The decision means, according to Patrick D. Fox, President of Borden's Farm Products Company, that the distributers will pass on to the consumer the 1½ cents reduction by the producers in February. The new schedules will be announced tomorrow.

He said that Grade B milk, now 17 cents a quart, would be reduced to 16 cents. Some other products would show a greater percentage of reduction, it was said.

These blankets were manufactured on our order by a blanket maker in Czecho Slovakia who, prior to the war, manufactured our finest blankets. In ordering them, we considered the former high repute of this manufacturer and took for granted that the product would be of his usual high quality.

We expected and desired blankets which would sell from $29.75 to $46.50 and be excellent values at those prices.

To our great disappointment, the blankets on delivery were inferior to the pre-war standard—and our expectations.

Because they are not what we expected and wanted, we have marked them all one price—a price which is far below the cost to us.

The blankets are all wool and are in three sizes, 60 x 80, 60 x 90 and 70 x 90.

VANDERLIP PLANS A 'SUPER-SENATE'

Would Take Away Treaty-Making Power From Upper House of Congress.

FOREIGN COUNCIL PROPOSED

Board of 30 to Keep a Check on the Department of State.

Formation of a Council of Foreign Relations to direct American intercourse with foreign nations was proposed yesterday by Frank A. Vanderlip, who spoke in the Town Hall at a meeting of the League for Political Education. He suggested that this council have thirty members, elected at large from the country, to serve ten years, and that they take turns in spending six months abroad each year to learn something about developments diplomatically.

Another recommendation by Mr. Vanderlip was to deprive the Senate of its treaty-making powers, and empower the council to maintain a scrutiny on the Department of State.

Mr. Vanderlip prefaced his suggestion with a critical discussion of the foreign relations methods of the past and present.

"There have been pretty good appointments of Secretaries of State, as a rule," he said, "but there have been times when the Secretary of State seemed to be regarded by the Executive as a messenger boy, and ultimately not even a trusted messenger boy. There have been times when the Secretary of State has been wholly ignored, and the President has taken into his hands all the active relations that would devolve upon the State Department.

"The appointment of Ministers and Ambassadors has been a thing of political reward largely. In the main, we have been well represented, and our 'shirt-sleeve diplomacy' has frequently done very well against the trained diplomats of the courts of the Old World. But there have been instances of mere political or personal rewards, instances of glaring inefficiency upon which there was no check.

Referring to his proposed Council of Foreign Relations, Mr. Vanderlip said: "We would have this body of thirty elected with terms for ten years, three members retiring every year, and I would have them sit continuously in Washington, but never more than half of them in Washington. I would provide that one-half of them, rotating, must always be abroad. That is, broadly speaking, each man would spend six months abroad and six months at home.

"Now, I would take from the Senate, and don't all get up and leave because of the futility of taking anything from the Senate, because I have an idea of that, I would take from the Senate its treaty-making powers.

"We would have this body have a close supervision of the Department of State. I wouldn't change anything in regard to the President's relation to foreign affairs—he must initiate treaties, he may still appoint the Secretary of State, he must appoint Ambassadors and Ministers. Their confirmation should lie in the hands of the Council of Foreign Relations.

$72,858 PAID FOR 690 JAPANESE PRINTS

With returns of $21,163 for the last evening, making a grand total of $72,858 for the three nights' sale of the famous collection of 690 Japanese prints of a French connoisseur under the auspices of the Walpole Galleries at Delmonico's there closed what the experts said was the record high-price sale of Japanese prints for this and probably any country.

There was a large attendance last evening, including many people of social prominence as well as print collectors.

There was a tie in high prices of the evening. Miss Kate Buckingham of Chicago and John Spaulding of Boston, who contested hotly for many of the best prints, each carried off one at $775. Miss Buckingham gathered in hers first, getting No. 547, Harunobu's "Chrysanthemums and the Moon," a famous print which is reproduced in many books on prints. The print shows a jardiniere of the flowers in the foreground with a large moon showing full and round in the horizon.

Mr. Spaulding paid $775 for No. 655, an actor print, Toyokuni's "The 3d Sakata Hangoro," as a dayuyo dressed in the Nagabakama. Another actor print for which Mr. Spaulding paid $625 was No. 572, the 3d Segawa Kikunojo as a woman going to the theatre on the morning of the theatrical New Year. No. 490, one of the "Night Views of the Eight Famous Scenes of Kanazawa," by Hiroshige, brought $520; Miss Mary Ainsworth of Illinois gave $425 for No. 512, Hokusai's "White Cap of Fuji in a Thunder Storm," and for the famous "Red Fuji," No. 514, Miss Ainsworth paid $500. "Fuji Mirrored in Lake Misaka," No. 515, by the same artist, went to the Cleveland Museum for $100, and No. 524, the lovely "Monkey Bridge," by Taito, went to the Museum for $240.

Howard Mansfield paid $500 for No. 554, a lovely Hokusai flower print, one of the most popular prints of the collection, pink poppies with a lovely, soft blue background. No. 593, the second and third sheets of a triptych, the "Ferry Boat," by Klyonaga, was bought for the Cleveland Museum for $460. Miss Buckingham paid $300 for No. 594, "Waiting for the Ferry," by the same artist. To the Metropolitan Museum went No. 623 for $75, "Geese Flying in the Twilight," and No. 624, "Usugumo in Clear Weather," both by Eishi, for $105. A three-quarter length portrait of the "Successful Beauty, Somenosuke of Matsuba-ya," was bought by Mr. Spaulding for $525.

Among the prominent people attending the sale were Mrs. J. D. Rockefeller Jr., Mrs. E. G. Stillman, Mr. and Mrs. Harold G. Henderson, Mrs. John Osgood Blanchard, Mrs. W. H. Moore, Mrs. H. C. Chisholm, Mrs. Clarence H. Venner, George C. Tuttle of Minneapolis and Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Garland of Saco, Me. H. F. Michie of the Worcester Museum, was a buyer; also Harold H. Hall, who has an extensive collection of prints; Dr. A. B. Duel purchased many prints, and Carl Staubstadter, who is selling one large collection, began at the Walpole sale to start another. F. S. Colburn of Chicago was a large buyer of the higher priced prints.

119—The dominant attraction of this taffeta frock lies in the petal unfolding from under petal like the garden rosebud, and the outline of each is accentuated by the contrasting shade of binding. $49.50.

145—Piquancy of youth is well defined in this simple surplice waist, which ends in a smashing bow at back. Neckline and sash are outlined in white to be in perfect accord with the unusual embroidery which tops the charm of the full skirt of black taffeta. $39.50.

142—Fascinatingly simple is this brown Canton Crepe, with its narrow disappearing panel of gray pussy willow. The buttons have borrowed some of the panel's silk to fill their covering and the embroidered motifs have caught the spirit of gray for their coloring. $49.50.

143—The Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde collar does not stand alone in the distinction of this brown Canton Crepe frock. The flowing sash of Georgette with acorn bobs and the contrasting embroidered motifs make a strong appeal. $49.50.

309—A triple charm lies in the navy Poiret choosing a natural shade linen crash for collar, cuffs and vestee, all of which are outlined in henna taffeta ribbon. Two square buttons are stationed as sentinels to announce the Princess back. $39.50.

ENRIGHT ASKS HELP FOR POLICE FORCE

Tells Brooklyn Audience Laws That Cannot Be Enforced Should Be Voided.

DEFENDS SULLIVAN ACT

In proof of his assertion that this city has not been in the throes of a crime wave and that we have less crime proportionately than any city in the world, Police Commissioner Enright yesterday at a forum luncheon in the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce Building, declared: "This statement is based on the report of official police figures," and "you must assume that the Commissioner who prepared this report from statistics at hand is honest and that he is not quite a fool."

Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner, was another member of Mayor Hylan's Cabinet who addressed the gathering. He declared it was imperative that the housing situation be improved, and warned his hearers that unless that was done plagues now troubling Europe and Asia would visit this country with a probable loss of a million lives.

"There are many ways in which this department should be helped," said Commissioner Enright. "We don't make the laws, but we do try to enforce them, and it is difficult to enforce a great many of them because these laws have been made in advance of public opinion and there is no public opinion behind the enforcement of the law. These laws that cannot be enforced and that the people do not want enforced should be stricken from the statute books of the State so that we will not be troubled with them, and the laws that will aid the Police Department of this city should be improved so that we will have some weapon in hand in order to face the criminal situation as it exists from day to day.

"A sentence of ten years for burglary is not sufficient. A man that comes into your house at night armed with a weapon and will kill you if you molest him, or if he thinks his escape is endangered, that man should not be given ten years in prison. He should be given a life sentence."

The Commissioner opposed the repeal of the Sullivan law, which he said had reduced killings here. He would like to see it adopted in New Jersey, for it was there that many New York criminals got their weapons.

Mr. Enright said that prison reform was another factor that hampered the police, carried, as he believed it was, to extremes. He said the criminal no longer feared the prisons in this State.

"Hamilton Fish had a burglary in his house and came to me some time ago," said the Commissioner. "His wife had lost about twenty-five thousand dollars' worth of jewelry, which had a great deal of value beyond its intrinsic value. He came and wanted to offer a reward. I said, 'That isn't necessary, Mr. Fish. Our men will try to get this property. They will work just as hard without the reward. Let us try, and if we don't get it then you can offer your reward and that will perhaps get somebody else on the job.' We got the men in a few days and most of the property. Mr. Fish said, 'I am getting interested in this prison reform gang. I have been contributing a thousand dollars a year right along to their organization, which gets a job for the man when he gets out of prison, and when we applied they give me a burglar for a butler.'"

ENRIGHT SEES CITY 'SAFEST'

Tells 800 Police Sergeants He Has "Delivered Goods" in Three Years.

Commissioner Richard E. Enright, who reached the third anniversary yesterday of his appointment as head of the Police Department, made this reference to it last night at the eighth annual dinner of the Sergeants' Benevolent Association at the Commodore.

"The three years afford a great deal of pride because the Police Department has kept the faith and has delivered the goods by keeping this city safe and sane, beyond any degree existing anywhere in the world."

The 800 or more sergeants of police at the dinner gave Enright several rounds of applause.

Other speakers were Controller Charles L. Craig, Borough President Riegelmann of Brooklyn, the Rt. Rev. Thomas E. Molloy, Auxiliary Bishop of Brooklyn, Rabbi Joseph Silverman and Sergeant Walter W. Joyce, President of the association. Mayor Hylan sent a letter complimenting the policemen.

ENRIGHT IS CONGRATULATED

Friends Send Flowers on Third Anniversary as Commissioner.

When Commissioner Enright reached his office in Police Headquarters yesterday he found his desk covered with floral tributes in honor of the third anniversary of his appointment. Three years ago today Mayor Hylan appointed Mr. Enright Police Commissioner, after Frederick H. Bugher, appointed a few weeks before, had resigned because, he declared, the Mayor wanted to dictate appointments as deputies.

During the day many friends called on the Commissioner and telegrams containing similar sentiments were received at headquarters throughout the day.

ALPINE MONKS FIND THREE MURDERED MEN

Killing and Robbing of Italian Climbers First Such Crime in Alps History.

GENEVA, Jan. 22.—A story of murder in the Alps Mountains, a thing unheard of before in Alpine history, has been reported by the monks of the St. Bernard Hospice, which stands at an elevation of 8,110 feet.

The monks and their dogs were aroused in the early morning of Friday by revolver shots and went to investigate. With the aid of the dogs they found in the deep snow the bodies of three well-to-do Italian Alpinists, named Leten, Anselin and Brignon.

The bodies of two of the men were found first, riddled with bullets. They had been robbed of all their possessions. After the longer search, with the help of the Swiss patrol guarding the frontier, the body of the third man was discovered. The three Alpinists had started from Aosta without guides. They were last seen in the village of Gignod, 3,280 feet, whence they left for the St. Bernard Hospice.

Traces left near the victims show that the murderers used skis. Both the Swiss and Italian passes are being guarded by the Alpine police, and monks and dogs are aiding them in their search for the murderers.

A NEW OCTALOGUE LAID DOWN BY WHALEN

'Thou Shalt Not Steal,' Amplified in Eight Rules for Staten Island Car Passengers.

Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, has issued a bulletin to passengers, posted in the cars of the municipal trolley lines on Staten Island, warning them against violation of the commandment, "Thou Shalt Not Steal." Mr. Whalen wants to be certain of the city receiving all the nickels offered as fares. His admonitions follow:

"This commandment applies equally to motorman and passenger.

"The motorman steals when he fails to register and make return for every fare he collects.

"The passenger assists the motorman in stealing fares when he or she hands the fare to the motorman instead of depositing it in the coin box.

"The motorman is not permitted to receive any fares.

"The motorman may make change, but must return the full amount.

"The passenger is required to deposit the fare in the coin box.

"It is the duty of the motorman to register every passenger as he enters the car, whether he pays a cash fare or presents a transfer or ticket.

"Since this is the people's road, it is incumbent upon every citizen to see to it that the city gets a fare for every passenger and to notify this department of any violation of this rule, giving day, date, hour and number of car or of motorman's badge. At your service.

"GROVER A. WHALEN,
"Commissioner."

BECK ON THE CRIME WAVE.

Speaking last night before about 1,000 members of the 24 Karat Club at their nineteenth annual dinner at the Waldorf, James M. Beck said that the present wave of crime had no parallel since the eighteenth century. "Our lives are continually in jeopardy," he said, "and we do not know from day to day what is going to befall us."

He told what the Venetian Council of Ten did when thugs, highwaymen and burglars became too numerous in those days. The council would issue a proclamation, he said, which promised amnesty for the past sins of those highwaymen who would kill one or more of their fellow criminals. Mr. Beck jocosely added that he would commend such action to Commissioner Enright.

"We are now at the culmination of a three century movement which has transferred the political centre of the world from the Thames, the Seine and the Tiber to the Mississippi and the Hudson," he said. Mr. Harding, he asserted, was potentially the first statesman of the world, and he said he had great faith in him. Mr. Beck declared that present conditions, while gloomy, were only temporary, and that he was optimistic about the future.

to be ready to put up a fight to get the gem, the leader menaced him with the revolver and the four ran out the door.

Robbers Flee in Auto.

The whole fight, the shooting and the battle with the chairs, seemingly long to the combatants, apparently lasted only a short time, for the police were able to round up only two persons who had seen the flight of the highwaymen. They were George Barrett, 9 years old, of 355 East Fortieth Street, and Joseph Zebrosky, also 9, of 328 East Forty-sixth Street.

According to these boys, the robbers, "only young guys," came rushing out of the store and with a quick glance up and down Forty-second Street ran diagonally across the street to a machine, waiting there with its engine running. The boys differed in their versions of the appearance of the car, one telling the detectives it was a taxicab with a yellow underbody and the other describing it as trimmed with green.

The hold-up men, whatever the appearance of their car, lost no time hopping aboard it. One climbed in alongside the chauffeur, who had acted as lookout outside the shop. Two of the fugitives took a back seat, while another climbed onto the running board. The youth on the running board still had his revolver ready for action.

Tenants Fail to Hear Shots.

The car sped east in Forty-second Street to Second Avenue and disappeared down that thoroughfare. According to detectives who were hurried from the East Fifty-first Street station to the auction rooms, the number of the bandit car was not obtained.

Apparently at least five minutes elapsed between the flight of the robbers and the notification of the police. Despite the number of shots fired, tenants on the four upper stories of the house where Young's shop was located declared they had not heard a single report. Policeman Butler of the East Fifty-first Street Station, who was on post several blocks away, went to the auction room, when a man ran up to him and said that there had been "trouble" down the street.

Arriving there, Butler found Shields and Young on the floor with the Hendersons and the two clerks endeavoring to do what they could for them. Butler called two ambulances from Flower Hospital, and Drs. Hamilton and Herzikoff responded. The body of Shields was taken to the station house, while the surgeons hurried Young to Flower Hospital.

At Flower Hospital, surgeons probing Young's wounds established that he had been shot with a revolver of .45 calibre. He was wounded three times in the abdomen, once back of the left ear and again in the right leg. Detectives searching the scene of the shooting later pried several bullets from the walls. The police said that the missiles were similar to those used in the heavier type of army revolver.

Boys Rob B. R. T. News Stand.

Two young robbers, believed to have been directed by a man, last night robbed a B. R. T. news stand in the Chambers Street station, under the Municipal Building. They got between $10 and $20, and then ran from the station, one to Centre Street and the other to Park Row.

Three women and four men arrested Friday night in connection with the robbery of the jewelry store of Herman R. Caplan & Son, 33 Main Street, Paterson, N. J., were held yesterday without bail pending extradition to New Jersey. Detectives who arrested the women and two of the men in an apartment at 507 West 139th Street said only $4,000 worth of the $20,000 in jewelry obtained in the hold-up was recovered. They said they learned the robbery had been planned in the apartment in the presence of the women.

The arrests were brought about through the confession of Julius Damio, 35, of 166 East 105th Street, owner of the automobile in which the robbers fled. Detectives told Magistrate Ten Eyck that Damio said he rented the car to the hold-up men for $400, then reported his car had been stolen. Following further admissions, detectives went to the West 139th Street apartment, where they arrested Mrs. Julia Herman, 35 years old; Abbie Sheler, 21, of 60 North First Street, Paterson; Sylvia Oesterele, 22, of 254 Third Avenue; William Taylor, 30, of 56 Hamburg Avenue, Paterson; Abraham Schenck, 27, of 525 West 128th Street, and John Elwood, 25, of 56 Paterson Street, Paterson.

Magistrate Koenig in Yorkville Court held without bail for examination next Thursday Frank Pracht, 27, a chauffeur of 768 Eighth Avenue, on suspicion of being connected with the hold-up in the Montana apartment house, 375 Park Avenue, last Monday, in which Washington I. Davis, the Superintendent, was shot and robbed of $2,000.

Robert Howard, 17, of 23 Oakwood Avenue, Rye, N. Y., and Frederick Hall, 24, of 115 Eldert's Lane, Woodhaven, L. I., were discharged yesterday by Magistrate Charles E. Simms, in the Tombs Court, after an examination on a charge of knowing about the theft of $800 in jewelry from the home of Congressman Daniel Riordan, 29 Oliver Street, on New Year's night. As Howard walked out of court he was arrested on a warrant issued in Suffolk County charging violation of parole.

Locks Woman in Closet, Robs Home.

Mrs. Robert L. Massommeau was locked in a closet of her home at 12 East Nineteenth Street, Flatbush, Friday, by a maid whom her son had recommended as a woman who needed a home and work, while the maid ransacked the house and took a fur coat and neckpiece, a gold watch and $45.

Mrs. Massommeau was called into the kitchen by the maid in the morning and persuaded to enter the refrigerator closet. When she was inside the maid locked the door. The ice man came a moment later and the maid called to him that they didn't want ice, but he didn't hear her, and after trying to get into the house heard Mrs. Massommeau pounding on the closet door.

The ice man went to the Knickerbocker Field Club near by, and the superintendent called up the Parkville Police Station. It was forty minutes before policemen arrived on a motorcycle to which a side car was attached, and the maid had gone. Mrs. Massommeau was released. The police refused to give out any information about the robbery.

LOSES $10,000 IN JEWELS.

Boston Attorney's Wife Reports Handbag Missing in Theatre.

Mrs. L. A. Conrad, wife of a Boston lawyer, who has a branch office in the Equitable Building, 120 Broadway, reported to the West Forty-seventh Street Station last night the loss of a beaded bag containing $10,000 worth of gems. Mrs. Conrad said she missed the jewels when leaving a West Forty-fifth Street theatre.

The Conrads, guests at the Hotel Biltmore, told the police that included among the gems lost were a diamond lavalierre, a diamond dinner ring, a wedding band, a diamond and sapphire bracelet, a diamond bar pin, and two platinum chains. The missing bag also contained a gold vanity set and $176.

Mrs. Conrad believed she had merely dropped the bag as she arose from the seat and that somebody picked it up, intending to return it probably today.

ARMY AVIATOR BURNED TO DEATH IN PLANE

Machine Ignites When He Tries to Land in a Fog at Elkton, Md.

Special to The New York Times.

ELKTON, Md., Jan. 22.—Becoming lost in a heavy fog which prevailed in this locality this afternoon, an aviator from Bolling Field, near Washington, Lieutenant Harry J. Spaulding, was burned to death about 3:55 o'clock, when he undertook to make a landing on the McClintock farm, two miles north of Elkton.

The aviator had evidently been having trouble with his machine, as he circled several times back and forth over Elkton a few minutes before the accident. When he attempted to bring the plane to earth it struck the top of a cedar tree and swerved into a deep embankment along the road into Iron Hill station.

Instantly there was a heavy explosion and the plane was in flames. Jack Gibson and Frank Sherard, who among others saw the accident, were the first to reach the spot. But the plane was a mass of flames and they were unable to rescue the aviator.

The charred body was recovered soon afterward and brought here. Only the iron frame of the plane was left.

MUSIC

A Concert of Cesar Franck's Music.

A concert of music by Cesar Franck was given yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall by a group of musicians well known to New York—Ernest Hutcheson, pianist; Mme. Helen Stanley, soprano; Samuel Gardner, violin, and Emmeran Stocker, cellist. They began with the violin sonata in A, well played by Messrs. Hutcheson and Gardner; the piano part disclosing, as was perhaps natural under the circumstances, the greater maturity of style and insight into the spirit of the composition; but it was a performance not ill balanced and one to be enjoyed. Mr. Hutcheson played with great charm the poetical prelude, fugue and variations arranged for one piano from its original form for two pianos by Harold Bauer.

The other instrumental number was the trio in F sharp minor, Op. 1, No. 1. It dates from 1842, the master's twentieth year. It is interesting, as the first essays of a master are interesting to those who know his maturity; but it does not give much foreshadowing of what was to become his real and characteristic style. It shows, especially, not much of the harmonic profundity that glorifies his later work. The trio was played with much spirit by Messrs. Hutcheson, Gardner and Stocker.

Mme. Stanley sang five songs by Franck in her powerful and penetrating soprano voice. She was most successful in the "Panis Angelicus" with accompaniment of piano, organ and cello; and it so pleased her listeners that they prevailed on her to repeat it. In some of the others she was less fortunate; notably in the beautiful "La Procession," a poetical contemplative reverie, whose spirit she missed in her somewhat overemphasized and matter of fact delivery.

Miss Daisy Jean, Cellist.

Cellists are naturally not quite so numerous in their appearances in New York this season as violinists, but the species is fully represented. A new addition to their number appeared last evening in Aeolian Hall, Miss Daisy Jean, a Belgian. She was heard by an audience of considerable numbers.

She is a well schooled player, possessed of no little dash and imaginative power. She plays with energy, with taste, and not without finish. Her tone is large but not uniformly agreeable in quality, and loses in beauty as soon as she adventures into flatish passage work.

Miss Jean's program included Handel's sonata in G minor, Saint-Saens's concerto, his "Allegro Appassionate," Bruch's "Kol Nidrei," a couple of transcriptions of pieces by Debussy, and Popper's "Rhapsodie." In the sonata she displayed breadth of style; and in the concerto much vigor.

MAY WEAR OVERALLS TO CHICAGO OPERA

'Not Dress Suits but Money We Want,' Says Spangler, Who Plans to Make Opera Fans.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—"The average intelligent Chicago man looks upon going to grand opera with the same nervous hesitancy that he exercises in accepting a position as honorary pallbearer at a public funeral," said George Miller Spangler, newly appointed business manager of the opera.

"The result is that he does not support opera. He keeps away through fear, nothing else. I have found a rather disparaging attitude toward opera among the business men. They go ocasionally because their wives insist upon it, but they dislike the stiff clothes and the ceremonial and all the preparations.

"Now this attitude is going to be remedied. If the men don't want to wear their 'soup and fish,' why, they don't have to. It's their support, not their dress suits we want. Even if they wear overalls they're welcome.

"We intend to make opera as popular as baseball. We want the business men to be opera fans and to regard opera not only as a great thing for the city, but as a really good entertainment. We have been taking opera too seriously—as something for the classes instead of the masses. In another year men will be going to the opera not to please their wives, but because they like it."

Mr. Spangler was asked how he expected to get along with Mary Garden.

"Fine," was his reply. "They call her temperamental. Maybe she is. All of us are. Miss Garden is like a race horse. She is a most ingenious woman, a diamond of many facets. Her artistic direction will be brilliant."

Mr. Spangler has been a successful handler of big conventions over a period of thirteen years.

TO SAVE SOLDIERS' BOOTHS.

Community Service Needs $5,000 for Information Huts.

The New York Community Service yesterday appealed for contributions for its fund of $5,000, which is to be used in keeping open until June 1 the information booths in various parts of the city. There are three of these booths; one in Times Square, one in Forty-second Street, near Fifth Avenue, and one in Greeley Square.

Although the booths were opened during the war primarily to give information to soldiers and sailors who were passing through the city, they were used also by thousands of civilians who were strangers in the city. The number of visiting soldiers and sailors has become almost negligible, but there has been an increase in the number of civilians, and the Community Service wishes to keep the booths open for their convenience.

"The army cannot afford to lose this service," said Colonel B. W. Atkinson, in charge of recruiting in this city, "for we realize its worth. Aside from vitally aiding the service man, it also serves to keep up his morale by looking after his leisure-time pleasures."

The sixty-eight women volunteers who served in the booths without pay are working in the campaign, and a statement by them told of the varied uses of the booths.

"Bedell extends the courtesy and convenience of a thirty-day charge account to those with established credit."

UNTERMYER INSISTS ON PALMER INQUIRY

Renews Charges Against Attorney General and Says More Than Mud-Slinging Is Expected.

CALLS FOR HIS REMOVAL

Alleges That Hundreds of Thousands in Fees Went to Palmer's Favorites.

Samuel Untermyer in a statement yesterday charged that Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer was seeking to avoid an investigation of charges Mr. Untermyer previously had made regarding the conduct of his office. He declared that something more than mere mud-slinging was expected from the Attorney General, and said that what was needed was a thorough but absolutely just and impartial inquiry into the facts. Mr. Untermyer's statement follows:

"If the charges made in my speech at the Hippodrome against Mr. Palmer are not established by the facts why does he not say so instead of contenting himself with characterizing them as 'wild' and letting it go at that? Something more than mere mud-slinging is expected of any man who happens for the time being to be the Attorney General of the United States. The charges are very definite. They are in effect:

"1. That he turned the administration of the office of the Alien Property Custodian into a political machine for the furtherance of his own ambitions.

"2. That millions of other people's money was distributed under his direction among favorites, in the form of staggering fees to lawyers and directors whom he shoved into the properties of these unfortunate people, and that in given cases single individuals are said to have been favored in that way to the extent of hundreds of thousands of dollars. Why does he not furnish the names of the people and the amounts they received instead of just using them?

"3. That not only was the enforcement of the anti-trust laws suspended throughout the war, as he himself is forced to confess, but that since the armistice he has persistently failed to enforce these laws, although he asked and received millions of dollars from Congress for that express purpose.

"4. That most of this money has been squandered, and that so far as I know he has not offered a single indictment justifying the appropriation, or given a political reason to support his grotesque amount.

"5. That as a result of the efforts of the writer for the Judiciary committee to show the true situation to the country by the presentation of a number of conditions that it was the duty to have known and corrected, he became subject to obstructions, and would still be trying to aid until forced to do so, and then only in a grudging spirit, to efforts which, and that the [illegible] of prosecutions undertaken in that spirit and under such conditions are not conducive to the public interest.

"6. That [illegible] with [illegible] which [illegible] has been found by the Senate Judiciary at New York and by the Overman committee [illegible] which was not brought [illegible] whom I [illegible] in evidence [illegible] the Attorney General, [illegible] exciting evil interests [illegible] the evidence of which was furnished [illegible] to him properly [illegible] action on his part, acted with [illegible] that he [illegible] more fitted, and was very properly [illegible] by the Court for not leaving that particular case to the State authorities, where it belonged and was being handling it and had collected the evidence.

"7. That almost every community in the United States is now suffering from the [illegible] of rioting, and that this is due at least to some extent to his incredible inefficiency and inaction, and that his confession of non-enforcement should result in his prompt removal from office.

"8. That instead of acting in the interment of alien enemies upon his own investigations and after the most scrutinizing inquiry he in fact acted largely upon the reports of a Secret Service of the British Government which is still active at work in this country gathered here both while we were at peace and at war, and that he based Great Britain's request and punish its enemies rather than on the interment of many of those men.

"9. That after the war men were detained indefinitely and without the opportunity of a fair or judicial hearing until a writ was called for by the protests of a few broad-minded, all to the eternal shame of our country, and that he has thus abused our institutions and disgraced us in the eyes of the world.

"10. That the appropriations of men for mere trifling [illegible] official offenses amount to a few dollars, it on personal liberty for which we will never be forgiven by the enlightened opinion of the world and the people in being a free country, [illegible] he has departed into the dust as the part of discrimination under the delicate conditions under which he was called upon to act.

"11. That his persistent evasions of the charges of neglect and inefficiency constitute an additional reason for a comprehensive inquiry that shall dig far beneath the surface. I repeat that it will expose one of the most humiliating scandals of the present day and the perpetration of great wrongs that should be righted for the honor of our country.

"The attention of the Attorney General is again called to these specifications. They are not to be disposed of by the mere statement that they are 'lurid.' If they are to be characterized at all I should say that they are unfortunate, rather than lurid. Pitiless public investigation is the only course that will disclose of them, and that is all that has been asked. Mr. Palmer owes it to the country as well as to the country to [illegible] a searching investigation, and not by an investigation of his own nomination [illegible] to unify. We have already told him in the way of friendly [illegible] and suggestions [illegible] this matter [illegible] what we now need is a thorough but absolutely just and impartial searching inquiry that will spare no one."

Untermyer Praised Palmer.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Attorney General Palmer made public today a telegram of praise from Samuel Untermyer sent to him while his nomination was pending before the Senate Judiciary Committee. Four months after Mr. Palmer had written on his part, acted with [illegible] the Lodge [illegible] that he was not a fit [illegible] that particular case to the State authorities, where it belonged and was being handling it and had collected the evidence.

Mr. Untermyer's telegram read:

Harrisonburg, Va., July 28, 1919.

Hon. A. Mitchell Palmer, Washington, D.C.

Although my view of what should have been done with alien enemy property pending peace treaty in our own country's eventual interest has always differed from Government policy, I have freely, openly, consistently admired your fair judicial attitude in every transaction where I was concerned, and will be glad in common justice to repeat that assertion at any time and place.

Your office was conducted with exceptional ability. You selected best talent regardless of other considerations. No abler, more devoted officials than Garvan and Bradley Palmer could anywhere be found. Money could not buy such service.

SAMUEL UNTERMYER.

Mr. Palmer's reply was as follows:

July 30, 1919.

Dear Mr. Untermyer: Thank you very much for your telegram of the 28th instant from Harrisonburg, Va.

I deeply appreciate your cordial references to my work as Alien Property Custodian and am quite sure that your feeling is shared by the bar generally. The Senate Committee on the Judiciary has not been very much impressed by the attacks upon me, and my information now is that it will favorably report for confirmation my nomination as Attorney General in the very near future.

If an opportunity presents itself when I can avail myself of your kind offer to make a statement with respect to the office of the Alien Property Custodian, I shall be happy to do so.

With best wishes, I am, yours truly,

A. MITCHELL PALMER.

STATE BAR UPHOLDS CIVIL PRACTICE ACT

Defeats Motion to Recommend Repeal of New Law, but Asks That It Be Deferred.

GUTHRIE CHOSEN PRESIDENT

Other Officers and Committee Members Elected—Gov. Miller Cheered on Stating His Position.

Despite vigorous expressions of disapproval of the new law by members from a dozen up-State counties, the New York State Bar Association at its annual meeting at the New York City Bar Association, 42 West Forty-fourth Street, refused yesterday to recommend the repeal of the new Civil Practice act. The act was passed by the last Legislature and, unless changed, will become effective on April 15.

After appeals to sustain the act by Henry W. Taft, Simon Fleischmann and others, the association defeated by a vote of about five to one a motion to recommend its repeal. The association then by a vote of 129 to 82 defeated an amendment to request the Legislature to defer the date upon which the act should become operative until Sept. 1, 1922.

Vote to Defer Operation of Act.

It then adopted with only a few dissenting votes the report of the committee of which former Judge Alphonso T. Clearwater of Kingston was Chairman, to request the Legislature to make the act effective Oct. 1, 1921, instead of April 15, and to continue the committee, with directions to confer with the Legislature, the Governor and other State officials with a view to possible amendments.

The fact that Governor Nathan L. Miller, retiring President of the association, might be embarrassed by his dual position was suggested by an up-State member, who requested that Mr. Miller as Governor should not be influenced by the action of the association, saying the preponderance of New York City lawyers in attendance did not make the gathering truly representative of the sentiment of the lawyers of the State.

"As Governor of the State," Governor Miller replied, "I will act in this matter on my own independent judgment."

The Governor's statement was greeted with applause.

The objections of the up-State lawyers to the new Civil Practice act seemed to be based largely upon belief that it would lead to confusion when it superseded the present code of civil procedure. The advocates of the act declared it was a simplification of procedure and corrected many matters which had been subject to criticism.

SEE NO GAIN IN 5-CENT LOAF.

Bakers Tell Mrs. Welzmiller There Is No Profit at That Price.

Information has been furnished to Mrs. Louise Reed Welzmiller, Deputy Commissioner of Public Markets, she announced yesterday, by wholesale bakers showing that the 5-cent loaf of bread at this time is a commercial impossibility. The bakers are now making only about one-sixth of a cent profit on each loaf of bread, according to Mrs. Welzmiller. A 14-ounce loaf, wrapped, cost 8.34 cents to manufacture and sells for 8¼ cents, she said.

The ingredients in a loaf of white bread are given as flour, 8½ ounces; sugar, 2½ ounces; yeast, 18-100 ounces; lard, 2¾ ounces; salt, 2-10 ounce; milk and water, 2½ ounces. The flour is put down at 4½ cents; the other ingredients, roughly, at three-fourths of a cent; labor at 2¾ cents and overhead at 1 cent.

PLANS FOR "AMERICA DAY."

Security League Arranging to Have Patriotic Parades Repeated.

"America Day" parades, which were held in more than 200 cities last year as an antidote for the radical spirit of May Day demonstrations, will be repeated this year on a much larger scale, according to an announcement yesterday of the National Security League, under whose auspices the demonstrations are to be held. In a preliminary letter to the Mayors of 1,400 cities, Charles D. Orth, President of the league, says of America Day:

"It is just as necessary now, in the difficult period of reconstruction and readjustment, to demonstrate that the Constitution and the institutions bequeathed by it are triumphant, as it was during the exciting days of the war. As a matter of fact, our people are more or less on trial as to whether their patriotism will only manifest itself during the 'brain-stormy' period or whether it is a steady, sure flame."

MOVIES INSPIRED WRECK.

Two Michigan Boys Tried to Duplicate Scene on Screen.

PAW, PAW, Mich., Jan. 22.—Lester Hall, 16, and Theodore Ecker, 17, today confessed to an attempt to wreck a Michigan Central passenger train near Lawton early yesterday, according to officers who brought the boys here for examination.

They explained, it was said, that they wanted to see in real life a railroad wreck like those they had seen on the screen. It was at first believed bandits, by placing obstructions on the track, had attempted to wreck the train, which was reported to be carrying a large shipment of currency.

RALLY FOR MISS MARY WOOD

More than 200 members of the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs supporting the candidacy for President of Miss Mary Wood, as against Mrs. Victor Chapman of Brooklyn, held a reception and rally for their candidate yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Pennsylvania. The election of officers of the Federation is to be held on Feb. 4.

Mrs. Henry Coe presided at the meeting. She is a candidate for First Vice President. Among those present were Mrs. George Chapman Taft, candidate for Second Vice President; Mrs. Charles S. Whitman, Mrs. J. Hedges Crowell, Miss Emelie Bullowa, Mrs. William R. Chapman, Miss Cherrie Clarke, Mrs. Harriet Holt Dey, Mrs. Charles Poor, Mrs. Stanley Lyman Otis, Miss Jane J. Martin, candidate for Third Vice President; Mrs. Arthur J. Hanford, candidate for Corresponding Secretary; Mrs. W. J. Wilson, candidate for Historian; Miss Evelyn Goldsmith, candidate for Treasurer; Mrs. Daniel P. Duffie, candidate for Secretary, and Miss Helen Varick Boswell.

CRISIS IN JEWISH WELFARE.

Report by F. M. Warburg to Show Funds Are Insufficient for Work.

Felix M. Warburg, President of the Federation for support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies, has prepared a report showing that critical conditions face organized Jewish philanthropy in this city. The report will be read at the annual meeting of the Federation next Tuesday evening at the Hotel Pennsylvania. It will show that during 1920 the ninety organizations affiliated with the Federation were forced to conduct their activities with funds approximately one-third less than estimated for their minimum requirements.

Other reports will include those, of Leo Arnstein, on medical social service; Herman W. Bolck, child care; I. Edwin Goldwasser, delinquency; Mrs. Alexander Kohut, employment; Judge Irving Lehman, social and recreational work, and Mrs. Leopold Plant, relief.

Miss Mills Cancels Engagement.

Miss Harriet May Mills of Syracuse, who was to have been a speaker at the luncheon of the New York State Women's Democratic Committee at the Hotel McAlpin next Wednesday, will not be able to attend, it was announced yesterday. Her place will be taken by Mrs. Julius Frank of Ogdensburg. The other speakers will be Franklin D. Roosevelt, John K. Sague, Appraiser of the Port of New York; Thomas F. Conway, former Lieutenant Governor, and Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner.

PUBLIC BOND SALE MAY BE FORD PLAN

HIS AGENT HERE DENIES IT

But Opinion Holds That Several Large Banks Are Involved in Raising Money for Auto Man.

Terms on which Henry Ford is to arrange new financing for his company, it was said in the financial district yesterday, probably will be announced within the next few days. What the amount involved is to be and whether it will be raised through offering securities to the public, an acceptance credit, or some other form of bankers credit, is not known.

Reports that the Corn Exchange Bank was interested in the operation were denied by Walter E. Frew, President, who said that his bank had not been approached.

It is expected that several of the large banks and trust companies will be interested and that formal announcement will be made of their participation, possibly tomorrow. The bankers who handled Mr. Ford's commercial paper credit of a year or so ago, Bond & Goodwin, the Chase Securities Corporation and the Old Colony Trust Company of Boston, are not expected to be conspicuous in the new transaction.

Interest in Wall Street.

There is much interest in the operation. The Ford Company never has undertaken a public sale of its securities, which have been closely held, and despite reports circulated for several years no public offering of either stock or bonds has been made.

But in the new financing it is believed that a public sale of securities will be tried. These securities, according to reports in Wall Street, will not be stock of the Ford Company, but long-term bonds or short-term notes, in either case a funded obligation. Bond men and distributing bankers are anxious to see how the public will respond.

Bankers say that a commercial paper operation similar to that which Mr. Ford arranged in 1919 could be arranged without difficulty. The previous flotation was to have been for $75,000,000, but not more than $60,000,000 was put out. Under the terms, the notes were of ninety days maturity, with three renewals, and the Ford Company reserved the right to redeem as it saw fit on each renewal date. By the time of the final maturity there was only about $30,000,000 outstanding.

Ford Agent Denies Plan.

Reports that Mr. Ford is attempting to make a large financial arrangement were denied yesterday by J. Plantiff, manager of the New York branch of the Ford company.

"I know nothing of the matter, and Mr. Ford's secretary, E. G. Liebold, who handles all his private affairs, told me over the telephone today from Detroit that there is no truth in the rumor printed in today's newspapers.

"Our business is in excellent condition. During the period from Aug. 1, 1920, to Jan. 21, 1921, our business exceeded by two and a half millions that of the same period for the preceding year. There has been a slight slackening of sales in the Northwest and in the South, but on the Pacific Coast and in the East business has been excellent.

"It is true that the Ford factory at Detroit is closed on account of the general business depression, but it is expected to open again on the 1st of February. Our twenty-seven assembling plants have not been closed, but are cleaning up the surplus production of the Detroit factory.

During the next twelve months it may be necessary for Mr. Ford to make some sort of financial arrangement in the normal course of business, but I am sure that there is no truth in the present rumors."

Chauffeurs' Licenses Revoked.

John J. Lyons, Secretary of State, revoked these licenses yesterday of chauffeurs convicted in the Traffic Courts on charges of intoxication while operating cars: James Herbert, 105 East 118th Street, and Sylvester Hurley, 65 Keap Street, Brooklyn. The licenses of several violators of traffic rules were suspended for fifteen to twenty days.

RED CROSS PRIZES AWARDED

The American Red Cross last night made public the list of cash prize awards during the last year for best general first aid, railroad first aid and life-saving work. Announcement of the award of the Lockwood Cup also was made.

For general first aid a prize of $100 was divided equally among eleven employes of the Maryland plant of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation who aided an injured employe of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad at Hatfield, Pa. Second prize, $75, went to Byron A. Lawton, an American seaman on the tanker Gulfoil, who died while trying to rescue a fellow seaman from a gas-filled compartment of the vessel. The money was given to his widow.

To Walter James, Hillsdale, Ore., a Red Cross life-saving corps engineer, went third prize, $50, for first aid to passengers in a railroad collision. Fourth prize, $25, was awarded to A. E. Miller, Washington, D. C., a policeman who helped a woman overcome by illuminating gas.

Railroad first prize, $100, went to Edward J. Gagnon, a brakeman of Boston, Mass., and second prize, $75, to John Cravens, engineer of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad, who stopped his train to rescue a boy from drowning.

In the life-saving awards, first prize, $100, was given to Charles L. Mangel, policeman, San Francisco, for saving the life of one of the refugee Russian children while in this city; second prize, $75, went to Ernest Porter, Pable Beach, Fla.; third prize, $50, was given to Buell Spriesterbach, 16 years old, of Everett, Wash., who rescued another lad from drowning, and fourth prize, $25, was bestowed upon George M. Andres of Philadelphia, wireless operator of the American steamship Arsabe, for saving the lives of two persons in the Bay of Cienfuegos.

The Lockwood Cup was awarded to the Junior Red Cross Life-Saving Crew of the Endicott-Johnson Athletic Association, Endicott-Johnson City, N. Y., in recognition of the efficiency of this crew and the enrollment of 113 juniors in the crew during 1920.

I. R. T. TESTS TURNSTILES.

Ticket Choppers May Be Eliminated if New Devices Work Well.

The Interborough Rapid Transit Company has installed four new turnstile devices at the East Fifty-first Street station of the Lexington Avenue subway. If they prove satisfactory they will be placed in use throughout the entire system, thus saving the wages of ticket choppers, amounting to $1,500,000 a year.

The device consists of a turnstile that is unlocked by the dropping of a nickel in the box, but which remains immovable under any other influence. Only one passenger can pass through at one time. In coming out of the subway the passenger steps on a bit of metal strip which permits the stile to turn in the reverse direction.

Several months ago a different type of turnstile was tried out at the Seventy-seventh Street station of the same line. This one was provided with arms which caught and held a passenger until a nickel was dropped, when he was released. This type did not prove satisfactory because it invited considerable congestion when fat passengers sought to make the passage. Both types need the services of an agent to make change.

HOLD 3 UNDER BAIL IN RUM PERMIT SALE

Two Arrested Near Waldorf Are Charged With Altering Withdrawal Certificates.

SAY ONE HAD FALSE PAPERS

Genuine Blanks Were Changed to Suit Purchaser, Agents Assert—Seize $10,000 in Wine.

Morris Cohen of 235 Rivington Street, Manhattan, and Leonard Manchester, 28 South Twelfth Street, and William J. Toohey, 24 South Fifth Avenue, Mount Vernon, N. Y., who were arrested late Friday night in front of the Waldorf-Astoria, were arraigned before United States Commissioner Samuel M. Hitchcock yesterday, on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the Government by altering and attempting to sell liquor withdrawal permits to unauthorized persons. Commissioner Hitchcock held them in $2,000 bail each for hearing on Tuesday.

The arrests were brought about by a member of Supervising Prohibition Agent Daniel J. Chapin's staff, and George E. Golding and Walter P. Murphy of the Special Intelligence Unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau in command of Hugh McQuillan.

According to these officers, they met the three defendants in the lobby of the Waldorf-Astoria, where they offered to sell the agent a permit for 250 cases of whisky. The agent, who was known to the defendants as "Stern," wanted to know what the permit would cost and was told, so it was said, that the price would be at the rate of $8 a case or $2,000 for the permit. The prohibition enforcement agent, posing as a purchaser, had Special Agents Golding and Murphy present during the negotiations, and the three defendants were arrested at once.

Assistant United States District Attorney David V. Cahill, in charge of the prosecution, told Commissioner Hitchcock that three permits, which had been altered or erased were found in Cohen's possession. Mr. Cahill said that Cohen was a regular permit holder.

Manchester said he was a plumbing contractor, and Toohey gave his occupation as a superintendent o. construction. J. J. Donnellan appeared as counsel for Cohen.

The Federal officials did not seem to believe that the arrests would furnish clues to illicit operations on a very large scale, as was the case when four arrests were made recently in a room at the Hotel McAlpin. None of the three defendants were registered at the Waldorf-Astoria, and their alleged methods were said to have been different from those arrested at the McAlpin. In the latter case some of the defendants were charged with having used forged orders which were represented as genuine through the alleged connivance of a clerk in the office of Prohibition Director Charles R. O'Connor. The three men arrested in front of the Waldorf-Astoria were said to have attempted to sell a genuine permit, altered to suit the purposes of the purchaser.

Stanley Woropininci, proprietor, and Paul Cinquimarti, bartender, of the saloon at 708 Third Avenue, Brooklyn, pleaded guilty in Federal Court in Brooklyn yesterday to charges of violating the Volstead act. Judge Chatfield sentenced the owner to five days in jail and to pay a fine of $100, and the bartender to one day in jail and pay a fine of $50.

TELLS OF SHORTAGE OF DOCTORS IN STATE

Number in Country Districts Steadily Decreasing, Says Dr. Biggs, Urging Health Centres.

Speaking on methods of checking the spread of tuberculosis in this State, Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, State Health Commissioner, told 200 physicians and social workers yesterday at a convention in the Hotel Biltmore that much of the preventive work should be done among children. He pointed out also that this work was becoming more difficult in the rural districts because the proportionate number of physicians in the smaller towns was becoming smaller.

Dr. Biggs advocated the establishment of a State-wide system of health centres with adequate hospital, laboratory, public health nursing and out-patient department facilities in rural districts. He said that the number of graduates from medical colleges has declined more than one-half in recent years, and that the annual deficit in the number of physicians in the United States is between 3,500 and 4,000.

"In New York State physicians in country districts are becoming fewer and fewer," he said. "Sixty-eight communities have appealed to the State Health Department for physicians, not because they have not enough physicians but because they have not any at all in those communities."

30 FIREMEN NEAR DEATH.

Floor Caves In at Brooklyn Blaze, but Planks Form Protecting Arch.

One fireman was overcome and thirty others narrowly escaped death last night when the second floor of a four-story brick factory building, at 492 Throop Avenue, Brooklyn, collapsed and fell through the first floor, where they were fighting the flames. The building was occupied by J. Ptrengerson, manufacturer of bathing suits and sweaters.

The injured fireman was August Bollinger, 29 years old, a member of Engine Company 235, of Monroe Street and Nostrand Avenue. After he had been revived he insisted on returning to the fire and working with his comrades.

In falling the planks formed a protecting arch for the fire fighters so that none was injured. Bollinger was caught in a swirl of smoke and fell to the floor unconscious. The damage was about $50,000.

HOT WATER ROUTS BURGLAR

Massachusetts Woman Finds Way to Meet an Armed Thief.

CHELSEA, Mass., Jan. 23.—That a masked burglar with an automatic pistol is no match for a woman armed with a pantful of hot, soapy dishwater, was proved by Mrs. Elsie Waite today.

The intruder poked his head and revolver through the kitchen doorway and demanded all the money in the house. He got about a gallon of boiling suds and withdrew without further comment.

SUITS COST LANDLORD $500.

72 Actions Against 32 Tenants in the Bronx Dismissed.

In dismissing seventy-two suits against thirty-two tenants, alleged to have withheld two months rent, Municipal Court Justice Morris in the Bronx yesterday decided that Simon Shapiro, head of the Simonia Realty Company, landlord of an apartment house at 133 Daly Avenue, the Bronx, should be assessed court costs of more than $500. It was shown the landlord last October issued new rent schedules, making increases which the tenants regarded as excessive. The increases were shown to have run from 25 to 50 per cent.

Joseph Gropper, a tenant of 616 Prospect Avenue, the Bronx, yesterday began suit in the Bronx Supreme Court for $5,000 against the Milan Estates, Inc., 24 West 113th Street. He alleged his landlord failed to furnish heat in his apartment from Nov. 1 to Nov. 12, as a result of which he contracted a severe cold, was confined to his bed and in consequence suffered losses amounting to $5,000 for medical attention and loss of income.

LONG BEACH CENSUS IS 407.

Count Is Ended on Only Village Overlooked by Government.

The count of inhabitants at Long Beach, only village overlooked in the census of 1920, was finished yesterday by James F. Mitchell, who was sent out hurriedly by the Census Bureau in Washington to make this last count, and by Mrs. Walter M. Barruscale, wife of the Captain of the Long Beach police.

This enumeration showed that the population of the village was 407—although several thousand persons spend their Summers at the resort—and the unofficial total population of the United States proper is carried to 105,709,178. Including 12,148,738 persons in the Philippines and other islands and possessions, and Long Beach, the population is now 117,857,916.

SALES TAX FAVORED BY INDUSTRY BOARD

National Conference Fails to Adopt Program, but Majority Wants Retail Impost.

WOULD EXEMPT BIG PROFITS

Levy on Undistributed Earnings Proposed by Official of McGraw-Hill Company.

The Third National Industrial Tax Conference, held under the auspices of the National Industrial Conference Board in the Hotel Astor, adjourned yesterday without adopting a program. It was shown that the majority of those attending were in favor of a sales tax for raising whatever additional revenue the Government may need. The view of the conference seemed to be that this revenue should take the form of a low tax on all commodities sales and not a high tax on selected commodities.

The Tax Committee was requested to refer its final report to all associations represented in the conference for such action as they may wish to take.

"I feel that this conference has served a purpose of the first importance," said Fayette H. Plumb of Philadelphia, Chairman of the Enlarged Tax Committee, who presided. "It was highly desirable that differences of opinion as to the best substitutes for the excess profits tax and extreme individual income surtaxes should be found."

It was seen early in the conference on Friday that the tax program as outlined by the committee would meet opposition in the meeting. Those who favored a sales tax failed yesterday to get a resolution adopted endorsing this form of taxation.

Professor F. R. Fairchild of Yale, [illegible] and [illegible] and excise taxes inevitably are passed to the consumer.

J. F. Zoller, representing the Electrical Manufacturers' Club and Associated Industries of this city, pointed out that the excess profits tax will not bear so heavily because of the industrial situation, which has reduced profits. The alternative proposals of increased taxes on normal earnings would hit industry under present conditions, he said.

Arthur J. Baldwin, Vice President of the McGraw-Hill Publishing Company, said that the uncertainty of the present tax system is responsible for the industrial slump and for the high burden upon the consuming public. For this reason he favored a definite commodity tax and another on undistributed earnings.

Hugh Satterlee of this city, who assisted in drafting the present legislation for tax administration, said that a sales tax would not impose any additional burden of administration upon the Revenue Department. The effect of the sales tax on business, he said, would be less serious than the present taxes, and apply less unequally.

The manufacturers of the West Coast have pledged their support to the sales tax, Bruce Hartman of the Manufacturers Association of Washington told the conference.

CUBAN ELECTION

Message to Americans Maintains That He Was Legally Chosen President.

WILL STAND ON HIS RIGHTS

Calls Enemies' Plea for Intervention a Device to Hinder His Eventual Triumph.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Jan. 22.—Dr. Alfredo Zayas, the Presidential candidate who was recently elected on the face of the returns, tonight addressed a message on the general political situation to the American people, choosing THE NEW YORK TIMES as his medium.

For several days Dr. Zayas has been working upon the statement, which was prepared with his own hands and typed by him in Spanish; for, like President Wilson, he prefers to use his own typewriter when issuing important documents. The statement follows:

"The Liberal Party divided in 1919 because of the intrigues of General José Miguel Gomez and his friends and against my candidacy, with which I would have maintained the necessary union in the forces of that party. Under my Presidency was organized the Partido Popular (Popular Party), which in a short time inscribed 42,000 names, taking in nearly all of the Liberty Party. On the formation of the Liga Nacional by the union of the old Conservative Party and the Partido Popular, the resulting majority over the faction of the Liberal Party which remained with General Gomez was evident in all of the provinces, and without the necessity of illegal methods the fact remained fixed everywhere, with the exception of the Province of Havana, which for certain causes was lost to the Liga Nacional.

"A month before the election the Liberal Party leaders began to prepare appeals for nullifying the elections in case they lost them and through their newspapers and telegrams and communications to the electoral boards made charges of violence and coercion which they could not prove. They actually asked for the nullification of the elections in all the municipalities in the five provinces in which they lost, exploiting these pretexts for total nullification for which there existed no concrete basis and taking advantage of national excitement and the frequent differences of opinion which take place in every election. These things they put forward as grounds for defeating the will of the voters, although in some provinces the vote cast was more than 80 per cent. of the total number of electors, and in some municipalities 85 per cent.

"Certain elements of the Liberal Party have declared publicly that their plan is to keep the new Government from being constituted by the date provided by law and with the object of provoking some intervention by the Government of the United States, which, without any cause, they believe would benefit them. Anyhow, it would satisfy them to the extent of hindering the triumph of the Liga Nacional.

"I have not become impatient, but continue tenaciously to defend my rights and to see that they are not nullified by any action or threats or other measures. My election signified the force of the elements of order and lovers of peace and tranquility in this country, who desire to maintain a cordial cooperation among the living forces of the republic, as well as great harmony with the great North American nation to whom we are bound by so many choices of moral and national interests, and I have promised myself to follow this line of conduct with irrevocable firmness. My character has no idea of rancor or spirit of retaliation for my adversaries, and at the same time I have demonstrated that I possess the energy tenaciously to maintain my position, although to do this I would not use threats or underhand methods."

IN SQUASH BATTLE

RITCHIE WINS EASY MATCH

Harvard Club Player Puts Out O'Neill, 15-7, 15-8—Rochester Rated as the Dark Horse.

The national Class B championship for squash tennis players who have not been named in the ranking list for the last two years started yesterday at the Squash Club, and the two courts atop the building at 30 East Forty-second Street were kept busy from early in the afternoon till well into the evening.

There were forty-two entries and but very few defaulted. Among the better known contenders were T. S. Ritchie, Willis Putnam and C. T. Cooney in the first quarter, and R. I. Grinnell, F. S. Whitlock, R. V. Mahon, F. M. Simonds Jr., Joseph Walker 3d, Reginald Roome and J. F. Trounstine in the fourth quarter.

J. C. Rochester of the Squash Club, who is in the first quarter and won his match by the default of Joseph Coffin of the Columbia Club yesterday, is considered to be the "dark horse" of the tournament. Rochester has had the advantage of considerable valuable practice with Walter A. Kinsella, professional at the Squash Club and American court tennis and squash tennis champion.

Kinsella Rates Him Highly.

Kinsella picks his protégé as the big surprise of the tournament, but it is generally agreed that Rochester will have to play exceptionally well to defeat some of the others who have been mentioned.

C. T. Cooney of the Yale Club had no difficulty in defeating his clubmate, S. S. Walker, while F. W. Chambers of the Columbia Club defeated A. C. Scott, also of Columbia, chiefly because Scott was not in condition. The match went to three games.

E. H. Heminway of the Harvard Club, as the result of his greater experience, managed to defeat Charles F. Fuller, also of the Harvard Club, although the latter was the stronger. This match also went to three games. F. S. Ritchie and Grover O'Neill, both of the Harvard Club, tried conclusions, and Ritchie had little difficulty in winning, 15—7, 15—8.

Willis Putnam and J. W. Pulleyn, both of the Columbia Club, were the next pair to enter the court and Putnam proved to be the stronger and cleverer player, the score being 15—8, 15—10 in his favor. In fact it was a case of the favorites winning practically all of the matches, and the ranking list is liable to have some new names added to it.

Whitlock Takes Close Match.

The match between F. S. Whitlock of the Harvard Club, and Joseph Walker 3d of the Yale Club proved to be the most interesting of the day and was, in reality, of Class A calibre. The first game went to 18—17 and afforded an example of stiff playing. Beginning the second game Whitlock had Walker 4—love and also 14—10, but aside from those occasions there was no time in either game when the players were more than two points apart.

Andrew Baxter Jr. of the Crescent Athletic Club will meet E. P. Pierce Jr. of the Harvard Club today, and other matches scheduled for today are Robert H. Monks, Princeton Club, vs. J. A. Victor, Yale Club; B. E. Whitlock, Columbia Club, vs. Thomas Coward, Yale Club; C. W. Dingee, Crescent Athletic Club, vs. F. A. Sellar, Montclair Athletic Club; F. D. Shaw 2d and Alfred Moses, both of Columbia; John W. Ivins Jr., Crescent Athletic Club, and C. C. Schermerhorn, Yale Club, and N. F. Torrance, Crescent Athletic Club will meet Basil Van Gerbeg, Squash Club, today.

The great speed with which the ball rebounded from the back wall annoyed several of the players and may have accounted for some of the results.

The summaries:

First Round.

C. T. Cooney, Yale Club, defeated S. S. Walker, Yale Club, 15—10, 15—6; F. W. Chambers, Columbia Club, defeated A. C. Scott, Columbia Club, 15—10, 10—15, 15—6; E. H. Heminway, Harvard Club, defeated Charles F. Fuller, Harvard Club, 12—15, 15—12, 15—10; J. C. Rochester, Squash Club, won from Joseph Coffin, Columbia Club, by default; F. S. Ritchie, Harvard Club, defeated Grover O'Neill, Harvard Club, 15—7, 15—8; Willis Putnam, Columbia Club, defeated J. W. Pulleyn, Columbia Club, 15—8, 15—10; R. V. Mahon, Columbia Club, defeated R. I. Grinnell, Harvard Club, 15—5, 15—5; H. V. Crawford, Montclair Athletic Club, defeated G. A. Walker, Princeton Club, 15—12, 8—15, 15—4; F. S. Whitlock, Harvard Club, defeated Joseph Walker 3d, Yale, 18—17, 15—13; F. M. Simonds Jr., Columbia Club, won from H. R. Burt, Columbia Club, by default; R. F. Potter, Yale Club, won from M. M. Sterling, Crescent Athletic Club, by default; Reginald Roome, Yale Club, defeated K. F. Mac Vaugh, Crescent Athletic Club, 16—12, 15—5; Lindsay Bradford, Yale Club, won from J. F. Trounstein, Yale Club, by default.

WILL NOT SEEK TOURNEYS.

West Side Tennis Club to Adopt Passive Attitude.

At the West Side Tennis Club's annual meeting, which was held at Delmonico's on Friday evening and ended at an early hour yesterday, the chief topic of discussion had to do with the attitude of the club in the matter of applying for any of the leading tournaments at the annual meeting of the U. S. L. T. A., which is to be held in this city next month.

The Board of Governors of the club had previously decided to recommend a passive attitude, which means that, while no campaign will be waged to obtain any special tournament, the club will be perfectly willing to conduct any tournament the association may award it.

After prolonged discussion the club decided to adopt the attitude suggested by the Board of Governors. However, there was no doubt as to what tournaments the club would select if given a choice.

Philadelphia has made a strong bid for the national singles. The all-important event of the year is the Davis Challenge Cup round, which, of course, the West Side Club, naturally prefers, but, at the same time it does not object to another feature event, if it is offered, particularly as the Davis Cup matches last for but three days.

Since the rotation movement has gained sway in tennis allotments, the national singles will almost certainly go to Philadelphia. It is assumed that the logical move would be for the women's singles to go to Boston instead of Philadelphia, and Boston may be expected to relinquish the national doubles which have been held there for several years.

The West Side Club could easily handle the national doubles as well as the Davis Challenge Cup events, but there is a grave question whether the Longwood Cricket Club of Boston would yield the doubles without a fight.

The regular ticket was elected in full. Spencer Fullerton Weaver, the regular candidate for President, was returned winner over Marshall Hagar, the opposition candidate by a vote of 289 to 204, which was much closer than was generally expected. There was no other opposition to the regular ticket and Hugh Guller was elected Vice President; Waldo Hadsell, Treasurer, and C. G. Heylman, Secretary.

The expenses incidental to operation increased materially during the last year, owing chiefly to cost of maintaining the larger number of courts and to heavy taxes, so it was suggested that the dues be increased from $25 to $30 [illegible]

Davis Cup Players Win Three Matches From Australians

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Jan. 22.—The American Davis Cup tennis players made a clean sweep of the third series of matches with the Australian stars today. In the singles matches William M. Johnston beat J. B. Hawke, 6—3, 6—6, and William T. Tilden defeated Norman E. Brookes, 6—4, 6—8, 8—6. In the doubles Watson M. Washburn and Johnston beat R. W. Heath and Patrick O'Hara Wood, 6—3, 9—7, 6—1.

QUAKERS TRIUMPH IN RACQUET MATCH

With Aid of Gould and Brooke They Defeat New Yorkers in Intercity Meet.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.—Philadelphia defeated New York three matches to one in the first intercity racquet match of the 1921 season this afternoon on the courts of the Philadelphia Racquet Club.

Jay Gould, amateur tennis champion of the world, who yesterday won the open title of the United States by defeating Jock Soutar, the professional titleholder and world's racquet champion, paired with George H. Brooke, the former Penn football star and coach, defeated C. C. Pell and H. Morgan of New York in the first team match, three sets to one, 15—12, 3—15, 18—15, 17—16.

Stanley W. Pearson, a Pennsylvania State champion at squash racquets and former national titleholder, paired with Bernard Bloch, won the third team match from L. B. Irving and Eric Winstein of New York in straight sets, 15—8, 15—11, 15—12.

Cramer Roberts and W. J. McGlinn took the second team match when they pulled a surprise by defeating Stanley Mortimer and F. T. Frelinghuysen of New York in three sets, 15—9, 15—10 and 15—9.

The Philadelphians, S. B. Echert and Charles Bromley, lost to H. Haddon and N. W. Nole of New York in straight sets, 18—15, 15—6, 15—6.

The match between Gould and Brooke and Pell and Morgan produced the best exhibition of racquets of the afternoon. The Gotham pair had little chance of defeating the Philadelphians in the first set, although carrying it to 27 points before it ended. Gould and Brooke had the set well in hand at all times, following their service in good style, had a splendid attack and kept the New Yorkers on the move.

The defeat of the recent winners of the Canadian doubles racquet championship, Mortimer and Frelinghuysen, came as quite a distinct surprise to the gallery of fans, who had expected the out-of-town pair to even up the match by winning from the Philadelphians.

The New Yorkers never could get going against Roberts and McGlinn. Roberts, who is erratic, had a streak of good playing today and some of the most brilliant racquets seen in recent years was the result of the match. McGlinn is a fine strategist and was also in form, and the pair simply overwhelmed the Gotham players in almost every department of the game.

RIXEY TRADED TO REDS.

Phillies' Twirler Swapped for Pitcher Ring and Outfielder Neale.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.—Pitcher Eppa J. Rixey of the Philadelphia National League Club has been traded to Cincinnati for Pitcher Ring and Outfielder Neale, Manager Donovan of the local club announced late today. No monetary consideration was involved, the trade being a straight deal. Rixey came to the Philadelphia club from the University of Virginia.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 22.—August Herrmann, President of the Cincinnati Nationals, late today confirmed the trade for Pitcher Rixey of the Philadelphia Nationals, involving the transfer of Pitcher Ring and Outfielder Neale to the latter club.

Mr. Herrmann's only comment was that Manager Moran had been trying for a long time to add Rixey to the local team.

TICKETS NEARLY ALL BACK.

Squire Ebbets's Refund Task is Almost Completed

Squire Ebbets of Flatbush issued a statement yesterday anent the redemption of coupons for the fourth game of the world's series at Ebbets Field, or, rather, which would have been played at Ebbets Field if the Indians hadn't intervened. It seems, according to the terms of Colonel Ebbets's statement, that about 20,000 tickets were sold for this game, the receipts from the sales, including war tax, amounting to $73,-971.70. The total amount refunded up to Jan. 17 was $73,418.40, leaving a balance on hand representing unredeemed tickets of $553.30.

The redemption of these coupons, says Colonel Ebbets, was made by check only and required the issuance of over 6,500 vouchers. The cost to the Brooklyn Club of making the refund reached the sum of $1,305.85.

GIVING AUTHORITY

Cochran of London Tells New Yorker to Act for Him Regarding Dempsey-Carpentier Bout.

Despite advices from London on Friday that Charles B. Cochran, British promoter, still regarded as valid the contract drawn up for the $500,000 world's heavyweight championship battle between Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier, developments yesterday indicate that the English boxing man will follow the lead of his American partner, William A. Brady, and withdraw from the match.

Promoter Brady, who has repeatedly asserted that the contract provisions involving deposits of forfeits had been violated and that as a result he has withdrawn on behalf of himself and Promoter Cochran, yesterday received a cablegram from Cochran in which the latter said Brady was authorized to act in his behalf. Cochran's statement was the first sentence in a message which Mr. Brady did not feel at liberty to disclose in full. The sentence was: "You have full authority to act in my best interests."

Mr. Brady declined further to discuss the situation yesterday. He said he is ready, however, to assign the Brady-Cochran interest in the bout to Promoter Tex Rickard if the latter sticks to his announced plan of proceeding with the bout independently. Mr. Brady will leave New York tonight, to be gone for two days.

Mr. Rickard, when told of the receipt of the cablegram by Brady, said that, as far as he was concerned, the situation remained unchanged. The receipt of the cable indorsement of Brady, Rickard said, indicated that Brady was qualified to act on behalf of the London promoter, but did not convince the Westerner of Cochran's intention of abiding by the decision of Brady and withdrawing from the promotion of the match. Not until he has received word to this effect direct from Cochran is he prepared to accept the dissolution of the boxing triumvirate, Mr. Rickard said.

Rickard cabled Cochran at the same time Brady communicated with the London promoter, but up to a late hour last night he had not received a reply. The Garden promoter, however, refused to attach any significance to this. He reiterated his intention of proceeding with the bout, under the original plan if the boxers compelled him to discharge the $500,000 contract or under a percentage arrangement for the boxers if they would consent to a new contract for the match.

OUTPEDAL CHICAGO FIELD.

Madden and Magin Win Long Bike Grind—Cover 2,279 Miles.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Eddie Madden and Jake Magin won the six-day bicycle race which ended tonight at 10:30 P. M. They covered 2,279 miles.

The winning riders, each of whom has helped score victories in New York races, came through first by running up more than 600 points in tonight's sprints. Their total was 697. Horan and Fitzsimmons also did well in the final sprints and finished second with 394 points. Eaton and Hill and P. Drobach and Hanley tied for third and fourth with 390, while Osterritter and Kockler, the latter a local amateur, were fifth with 328. McDeath and Walker scored 321 points and Kopsky and Bello 104.

The race closed with a series of twenty-one one-mile sprints, first place in each of which counted 60 points. The biggest crowd which ever jammed into the Coliseum for a bicycle race here attended, the police being called at 9 o'clock to control hundreds of persons in the streets who wanted to jam through the doors.

It was announced that 56,842 persons attended the race during the week and that for the first time in years a six-day race had paid in Chicago. Plans were immediately started for another race in March.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.—Penn took an undisputed lead in the Intercollegiate Basketball League tonight when it beat the best Dartmouth team that has ever been seen in Philadelphia. The big Green team was defeated in the last six minutes of play. The score was 26 to 18.

Dartmouth came here with a record of three straight league victories and gave the Red and Blue a game that the 2,000 spectators will long remember. For pure grit and uphill fight Dartmouth had something on any team seen here in years.

At one stage of the game, about the middle of the first period, Penn led 10 to 1. At half time Coach McNichol's team was out in front, 14 to 9, but after that Dartmouth spurted and after tying the score at 14 points, took the lead a little later. In the dying minutes of the game Dartmouth, with several reservists in its line-up, after Cullen and McDermott had been ruled out through personal fouls, could not stand the pace and Penn rushed ahead with plenty to spare.

Captain Danny McNichol was the star for Penn with eighteen of Penn's twenty-six points. He scored one field goal and 16 out of 22 fouls. Cullen, Miller and Yuill played well for Dartmouth.

The line-up:

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Jan. 22.—The Army defeated Cornell at basketball today, 29 to 20. Cornell led for ten minutes of the initial period, but the Army's attack developed strong at this stage and field goals by Dabezies and Vichules put the West Pointers out in front at 10 to 8. The first half closed with West Point 19, Cornell 10.

The Cornellians caged two field goals in the last period, but the Army's defense kept them away from the basket for the most part. Dabezies shot a sensational field goal for the Army from the left of the centre of the court, which was the feature of the game.

Williams came back strongly in the final period, but could not overtake its opponent. Weak shooting was costly for the home team, as countless shots for the opposing hoop were missed. The line-up:

The first half was contested with great speed and spirit, and the midshipmen led by only 12 to 8. Byerly's brace of field goals near the opening of the second period gave the midshipmen a fair margin, and it was increased to comfortable proportions by the shooting of the same player and McKee later in the game.

NEW RECORD MADE BY NAVY SWIMMER

Sinclair Lowers Intercollegiate Mark for 220 Yards—Middies Beat Penn by 29 to 15.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 22.—Winning from the University of Pennsylvania by 29 to 15 in a swimming match here this afternoon, the Naval Academy team gave a remarkable general performance, the star event being the breaking of the intercollegiate record for the 220-yard swim by 2 seconds by Angus Sinclair, a Washington lad in the new class, who covered the distance in 2 minutes and 29 seconds.

The record of Sinclair is official, as it was made on a carefully measured course and the regulations of the Intercollegiate Swimming Association were followed carefully. No other records were official, as they were made across the pool, which is 4 inches short of 20 yards.

The Navy relay team covered the 160-yard swim in 1:17 1-5, which is 2 4-5 seconds better than the intercollegiate high figure. Koehler, Penn, with a plunge of 60 feet in 27 3-5 seconds, cut a second and a fifth from the local figure, and McIntosh, Navy, surpassed the Academy record in the 60-yard back stroke by a fifth of a second, doing the distance in an exhibition event in 41 seconds.

The summary:

220-Yard Swim—First, Sinclair, Navy; second, Fish, Navy; third, Rambo, Penn. Time—2:29.

40-Yard Swim—First, M. Armstrong, Penn.; second, Egery, Navy; third, Kanakanui, Navy. Time—0:19 4-5.

The score was 30-23 for the locals. Giebel added to his laurels by twice defeating Biddell, the interallied champion, in the 50 and 100 yard swims.

FAILS TO STOP CRESCENTS.

Worcester Tech is 17th Victim of Half Moon Five, 34-31.

At the Crescent A. C. basketball courts last night the Half Moon quintet won its seventeenth victory of the year. Crescent had for opponent the five of Worcester Tech, which had come over from Massachusetts for the express purpose of breaking the Brooklyn outfit's winning streak. But the Worcesterites had their journey for their pains, going home on the short end of a 34 to 31 score.

The game was brilliant throughout, the playing of Parmele, who shot seven goals from the floor, being the feature. Worcester got the lead once in the first half, and three times in the second, but the Crescent quintet always managed to rise up and overcome the margin.

WINS SWIM HONORS

Captures Team Title in P. S. A. L. Championships—Manhattan Lads Score.

Elementary schoolboy swimmers of Manhattan monopolized the honors yesterday morning in the annual swimming championships conducted under the auspices of the Public Schools Athletic League in the City College pool. In a program of five events Manhattan lads registered as many victories, overwhelming their rivals from the other four boroughs of the Greater City. Altogether a total of 590 youngsters, a record entry for the events, competed in the aquatic races, and from the time the meet started at 10 o'clock until the final event, just before noon, they transformed the C. C. N. Y. natatorium into a bedlam with their shouts of encouragement for schoolmates and cheers for victorious youngsters. Twenty-eight elementary schools were represented in the huge entry.

To the representatives of Public School 64, Manhattan, went the team championship title. The young amphibians of this school corralled the winning total of 13 points. This was three points in excess of the total scored by students of Public School 9, Brooklyn, close rivals of the Manhattan victors from end to end of the meet. Public School 40, Manhattan, finished third with 8 points, and Public School 25, Manhattan, was fourth with 7.

In addition to their team title, P. S. 64 enjoyed the further distinction of including an individual championship winner among its representatives. The lad was Squire, a sturdy youngster, who carried off the 40-yard title for 100-pound boys. He had the battle of his life attaining the title over Bedingfield of P. S. 30, Manhattan, who forced the victor right up to the finish. Squire's time was 27 2-5 seconds.

Other Manhattan youngsters who accounted for titles were Lechowitz, P. S. 40, who won the 20-yard swim for 85-pound boys in 12 2-5 seconds, and Welsh of P. S. 27, who captured the 80-yard swim, unlimited weight class. In the 400-foot relay race P. S. 25, Manhattan, registered a victory over the lads of "64" after one of the keenest races of a card which was consistently productive of close and thrilling finishes.

The only Brooklyn victory fell to the lot of H. Skinner of P. S. 9 of that borough. Skinner showed the way to his rivals in the 60-yard swim for 115-pound boys, after a hard struggle with Ruvinsky, P. S. 64.

The summaries:

20-Yard Swim; 85-Pound Class—Won by Lechowitz, Public School 40, Manhattan; Riccardi, Public School 40, Manhattan, second; Staube, Public School 25, Manhattan, third; Pivinick, Public School 64, Manhattan, fourth. Time—0:12 2-5.

ST. ISIDORE WINNER OF WEST END PURSE

Veteran Campaigner Redeems Himself and Captures New Orleans Feature Event.

MINUTE MAN GETS DECISION

Beats Tableau d'Honneur in Close Race for Eclipse Stake—United Verde Pays Backers.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 22.—With considerably less speed to contend with than on his last appearance, J. E. Nash's St. Isidore redeemed himself today after his recent defeat by winning the West End Purse, which was down as the most important of the features on the card at the Fair Grounds. This was a test at a mile and seventy yards, and the veteran campaigner was not extended to win easily from Warsaw, with Pastoral Swain third among the half-dozen starters.

St. Isidore was the best backed favorite of a day that rewarded the supporters of the public choices, three of these finishing in front. The Nash gelding was a 1 to 4 choice at post time, having backed down from the opening price of 2 to 5. The winner ran as though he deserved the confidence, for he outclassed the field.

Panaman, which showed a high flight of speed for a part of the distance, was permitted to set the early pace, while St. Isidore was kept under restraint, but never far from the leader. Hamilton, on the winner, made a rush for the lead at the far turn, and Panaman quit utterly when caught. St. Isidore had little contention for the balance of the journey, for Warsaw, which finally got up for second place, made his rush from far back and did not have a chance to overtake the winner. He did take all the running out of Flibberty Gibbet, however, and outgamed Pastoral Swain in the last sixteenth.

Good Card Offered.

The card that was offered today was one of the best of the meeting and included three named events. The result was that a large crowd was on hand, the weather being bright and warm and the track fast.

The Eclipse Purse at six furlongs furnished an exciting finish when Minute Man won a close decision from the odds-on favorite, Tableau d'Honneur. Minute Man won by only a neck, but he was probably much better than the finish indicated, as he suffered sharp interference shortly after the start, which cost him considerable ground. The favorite, on the other hand, met with no mishaps and was simply not good enough.

Minute Man broke in front, but was pushed back, and yielded the lead to Tableau d'Honneur, which set the pace to the last fifty yards. Minute Man raced up again, and, getting within a length of the leader, closed with a rush in the final furlong and was up in the last stride to nod at the judges. Mahoney was third, and the others were never contenders.

C. W. Clark's United Verde justified the confidence of his stable connections when he won the Peerless Purse, a six-furlong dash for three-year-olds, and took the measure of Bunga Buck and Rancocas, among others. United Verde broke very slowly and trailed the field through the first half mile, while Ras went to the front with a burst of speed, only to curl up badly after four furlongs.

Has Length to Spare.

United Verde moved up gradually, and, after being put to a hard drive in the stretch, drew away and had more than a length to spare at the end. Rancocas followed the pace closely all the way and was a strong contender for the long end of the purse right to the end, when Bunga Buck got up for second place by a nose. Brown Check refused to break when the barrier went up, and Day Lily had gone but a few strides when Jockey McCoy toppled off.

Brookland took the opening event from Paddy Dear and others at a mile and a quarter, winning by five lengths. Walter Turnbow was third.

University of Paris Runners Invited to the Penn Relays

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.—Athletic authorities of the University of Pennsylvania are daily expecting a reply to an invitation sent to France asking the University of Paris to send a one-mile team to the Penn relay races here in the latter part of April. The French university is said to have some good quarter-milers. Invitations have also been sent to McGill University of Montreal and Toronto University to send teams for various events. No contestants are expected from Oxford or Cambridge this year. Although these English universities have a standing invitation to participate in Pennsylvania's relay games every year, it was hardly expected they would go to the expense of sending men each year. An English team, however, is looked for in 1922.

AWARD PROTESTED AT POULTRY SHOW

Exhibitors Allege Cornish Chicken That Won Prize Was Artificially Colored.

Probably because it was staged at Madison Square Garden, which has been dedicated to the manly art of fighting, the Poultry Show, or, rather, some of the exhibitors, got into a little mix-up yesterday over one of the awards.

The trouble arose over the Dark Cornish breed. The entry of twenty-four chickens of Alfred Birch of Sefton, England, had made a clean sweep of the first prizes in competition with the American entries when Judge Minish discovered what he said was artificial coloring on the hackle of one of the Birch cocks. Mr. Birch, who crossed the ocean expressly to attend the show, has filed an affidavit to the effect that the cock was not bred by him, but was purchased from another English fancier, and that he had been entirely ignorant of the alleged artificial coloring of the hackle. However, the American exhibitors conferred with one another on the matter and entered a formal protest against awarding any prizes to Birch, this being their privilege under the rules.

The protest, which was served on Lincoln Orr, Secretary of the Garden show, and signed by W. A. Fitzpatrick, Scranton, Pa.; Ulmer D. Maloney, Matawan, N. J., and William Allen, Bethlehem, Pa., reads as follows:

"We, the following breeders of Dark Cornish, protest the awarding of any prizes to Alfred Birch. Said Alfred Birch has exhibited one cock bird, Dark Cornish, number of pen 1,900. Said cock bird is exhibited not in its natural condition, but with hackle feathers colored at base, in violation of rules of American Poultry Association. We therefore protest the awarding of any prizes to said Alfred Birch."

In addition to serving the protest, the American Cornish breeders also demanded the expulsion of the British exhibitor from the show and from the American Cornish Club. The Secretary of the show, Lincoln Orr, assured the irate Americans that the Board of Directors would take the case up today for appropriate action. The prizes previously awarded to Birch are meantime being withheld by the board.

Persons who went to the Garden yesterday expecting to view at close range the innumerable families of chickens, waterfowl, turkeys, canaries, magpies and all the other birds (with many of the beasts) which came out of the Ark, had to content themselves with taking their turn before the pens, so dense was the crowd. However, as the show has been extended throughout today, they may, by coming early, have a chance to see such feathered and furred pets as were concealed from them yesterday.

Yesterday was blue-ribbon day, and the many exhibitors who had been awarded the coveted colors, cups, trophies and other prizes crowded the office of the secretary to receive their winnings. The exhibitors, who had contributed over 16,000 entries of individuals, not only have concluded that it is the most successful show ever held, but the gate receipts already run to record figures.

N. Y. A. C. RUNNERS WIN RELAY TITLE

Take Metropolitan Honors at 880 Yards in Masonic Games—Sanger Hurdle Champion.

Two Metropolitan A. A. U. championship events, three National Cycling Association championship contests and the Masonic Derby at 600 yards were decided last night at the Brooklyn Masonic Athletic League games in the Thirteenth Regiment Armory in Brooklyn. The meet attracted a record crowd for that structure of about 5,000 persons.

The A. A. U. championship events were the 70-yard low hurdle sprint and the 880-yard relay event. The former went to Eugene B. Sanger of the New York Athletic Club and the relay event was won by the New York A. C. team, too. In the 70-yard hurdle event Don Lourie, famous Princeton athlete, gave Sanger a close call, and T. E. Hulm of Crescent University was close up at the finish. The New York Athletic Club team in the championship relay race was made up of R. Giorgi, R. Brown, Andy Kelly and Bernie Wefers Jr., and it won without great difficulty, the last man having a lead of about five yards at the finish.

Close finishes were the rule, and in some of the events the results came as a surprise to a fair percentage of the spectators. In the 100-yard sprint Howard P. Drew, one of the holders of the world's 100-yard record, made an attempt to come back. In the race with him were Bernie Wefers Jr., Eddie Farrell and Ray Morse. They finished in that order, Wefers winning by about a yard in 10 1-5 seconds, and Drew was fourth. He had not competed since the Olympic tryouts in the Harvard Stadium.

Van Allen Wins Handicap.

The 220-yard handicap dash had close to one hundred starters and was run off in nine heats and three semi-final heats. A. Van Allen of the Mohawk A. C., with 13 yards, was the winner, while J. Horway, with 3 yards was second. The time was 24 seconds.

The Masonic Derby at 600 yards was another interesting and keenly contested event on the program. It was won by Jack Sellers, N. Y. A. C., with William Stevenson of Princeton second, and Frank F. Murrey, another wearer of the Orange and Black, third. The time was 1:17 1-5. A. J. Nelson of the Knights of St. Anthony, Carl Dolger, N. Y. A. C., and V. Lally, St. Anselms A. C. were other contenders in this event.

Twice the starter's pistol failed to fire and two false starts resulted, but when they did get away Nelson went to the front at once and led around to the first turn, followed by Sellers, Murrey, Dolger, Stevenson and Lally, in that order. At the start of the second lap Sellers forged into the lead with Dolger second, Nelson third, Stevenson fourth and Murrey fifth. In the third lap, in the back stretch, Nelson passed Dolger and went after Sellers, who had started away at the bell. Right up to the home stretch Nelson was within a yard of Sellers, but then the latter went away with all he had in him and started to pull away from Nelson.

Suddenly Stevenson shot out from fourth place, taking Murrey with him, in pursuit of Sellers, but the Princeton runner started too late and Sellers beat him by two yards, while Murrey was three yards behind Stevenson. It was likely that if Stevenson had started his sprint a bit earlier he might have won, as he appeared to have plenty in reserve at the finish.

Bicycle Race to Goodwin.

The one-mile race for the N. C. A. championship was won by Eddie Goodwin, and he repeated in the three-mile championship event as well, Eddie Buckley being second in the three-mile event and Otto Bramler third. These two just reversed second and third places in the one-mile race.

Another championship event concluded the program. It was a sack race for one lap and was won by E. Sharp of the Seventy-first Regiment Athletic Club.

The summary:
